WAR AND PEACE

In the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad

ZAKARIA BASHIER

THE ISLAMIC FOUNDATION

阅知

Contents

	Transliteration Table	iv
	Foreword	7
	Author's Introduction	vi
1	From Oppression to Liberation	1
2	The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam	37
3	The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback	66
4	From Uḥud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow	105
5	The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege	143
6	The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq	166
7	The Search for Peace at Ḥudaybīyah	191
8	The Conquest of Makkah, and its Aftermath	216
9	After the Conquest of Makkah Ḥunayn and Tabūk	245
0	The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia	267
1	Epilogue	283
	Notes and References	295
	Index	304

Decitation.

In all humbleness, I dedicate this work to the Gracious Soul of the hoping to be counted one of his brothers, who will of the at his Hawd In all humbleness, I dedicate this work to the Gracious Soul prophet, hoping to be counted one of his brothers, who will heet him

Transliteration Table

Arabic Consonants:

Initial, unexpressed medial and final:

•	•	٦	d	ض	1
ب	Ь	i	dh	4		এ	k
ت	t	ر		山山		U	1
ث	th	ز	Z	ع			m
3	j	س	S	TO S	gh	ن
7		m	sh	و		4
خ	kh	ص	ş	ق		9	W
				0	q	ي	V

Vowels, diphthongs, etc.

Short:
$$-a - i - b$$

Long:  $-a - i - b$

Diphthongs:  $-a - b$
 $-a - b$

Foreword

We have great pleasure in publishing another valuable work on the illustrious life of the Prophet Muhammad, by Dr Zakaria Bashier. His earlier titles in the series published by the Foundation, Life of the Prophet in Makkah, Hijra: Story and Significance and Sunshine at Madinah, have received wide acclaim from both scholars and general readers. All these titles draw on original Arabic sources and show wide familiarity with recent works in the field. In exploring effectively and energetically the various aspects and dimensions of the Prophet's life, Zakaria Bashier's focus is on establishing the relevance of the Prophet's role model for our lives. In so doing, his works transcend the ordinary writings on the subject which are concerned mainly with relating a factual account of the life and achivements of the Prophet. Zakaria Bashier's works draw us closer to this exemplary man, his life-enriching teachings, his noble Companions, and above all, the blessed mission of Islam. Reading these, one gets a fair idea of how the Qur'an and the Prophet's guidance helped transform the notorious, lawless Arab bedouins into embodiments of virtues discipline and leadership. His writings bring into sharper focus the unassuming Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) and his selfless Companions who never hesitate to sacrifice all that they had for the sake of Allah and for the cause of Islam.

This latest addition to the series entitled War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad (peace be upon him) whilst retaining all the best features of his earlier writings on Sirah, has immediate relevance by way of its solid refutation of the misperception that Islam is inextricably linked with violence. More remarkably, this volume dismisses the Orientalists' claim about the disparity between the Prophet's Makkan and Madinan phases of life. There was never any inconsistency in the Prophet's words and deeds, as he preached and practised the same ideals of co-existence and freedom of faith in Makkah as well as in Madinah. This truth is brought home with greater force and clarity by Zakaria Bashier's insightful elucidation of verses 5 and 29 of Sūrah al-Tawbah which allow Muslims to wage war if necessary. The conclusion reached by him is that peaceful co-existence with other faiths is the rule in Islam and war is only an exception. Islam sanctions war only in self-defence or against tyrannical rulers. All the major battles in the early history of Islam are studied in the wider context of Islamic teachings on war and peace. In the same light peace treaties and delegations sent by the Prophet to various rulers are also examined. In sum, it is a substantial work on Sirah for which Zakaria Bashier deserves our thanks and appreciation.

The present work could rightfully be regarded as the concluding volume of Zakaria Bashier's earlier three works on Sirah and the reader will get a full picture of the extraordinary life and contribution of the Prophet Muḥammad (peace be upon him) if all the four volumes are studied in proper sequence.

I take this opportunity to thank the Foundation production team, especially Br Nasir Cadir for ensuring the publication of this title. May Allah reward all those who helped in its production and enable us to emulate the Prophet's role model. (Amin)

28 Ramadan 1426H 31 October 2005 CE

M. Manazir Ahsan Director General

Author's Introduction

One of the major charges pressed against Islam is that it is a violent religion which was spread by the sword. Quite a few of the orientalists of old and new have pressed this charge to its extreme limits, in every field of their study of Islam, and it has now been given new vogue and momentum after the sorrowful events of September 11.

The orientalists claim that what had been a peaceful and dovish Islam, in its initial Makkan phase, had suddenly become aggressive and power-seeking, when it assumed statehood in its Madīnan Phase. The Prophet (peace be upon him) himself was accused of being inconsistent in his practices in Madīnah with what he used to preach in Makkah about tolerance and freedom of religious belief, and that there is no compulsion in religion.

Be that as it may, some recent studies of this topic appeared which tried to interpret this change in the course of Islam – i.e. from being peaceful and tolerant in Makkah, to being violent and aggressive in Madīnah – by making use of the concept of Qur'ānic verses which were abrogated by Allah, Himself. It is alleged, in these recent studies, that the early Makkan Qur'ānic verses calling for religious tolerance and peaceful coexistence with the adherents of other religious faiths, especially with the People of the Book, were abrogated by the so-called verses of the sword of Sūrah al-Tawbah (Repentance), i.e. verses numbers 5 and 29.

Then when the sacred months are drawn away, slay the idolaters wherever you find them; and take them, and confine them, and lie in wait for them at every place of ambush. But if they repent, and perform the prayer, and pay zakāh (alms), then let them go their way. [al-Tawbah 9:5]

Fight those who believe not in God and the Last Day, and do not forbid what God and His Messenger have forbidden, such men as practise not the religion of truth, being of those who have been given the Book, until they pay jizyah with willing submission, and feel themselves subdued. [al-Tawbah 9:29]

This reading of the situation, which inevitably depicts Islam as a hawkish, violent religion, seems to me to be plainly mistaken. The basic position of Islam is that religious convictions can only be disseminated by means of valid arguments and persuasive proofs. No man can be made to believe sincerely in any ideas or theories through compulsion or force. For a coerced person may pretend to believe under the force of fear and intimidation, but that is not genuine faith, since it will be forsaken at the earliest chance that freedom of thought presents itself.

The theory put forward in this study [War and Peace in the life of the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him)] is that peace and peaceful coexistence with people of other faiths is the rule and custom in Islamic shari 'ah and Islamic way of life. Islam resorts to war only when it is compelled to defend itself against outside aggression. Almost all the historic wars waged by Islam can be construed as being just wars launched in self-defense, or against tyrant rulers and regimes under which men, women and children were oppressed and made powerless, be they Muslim or non-Muslim. Especially, war is construed as legitimate against tyrants and dictators who prevent the right of man to worship God Almighty freely and without fear or intimidation. It does not matter in Islam which religion these oppressed men, women and children are professing. They do not have to be Muslims; they could be Jews or Christians or followers of any other religious denomination, especially if it is deemed to be I started writing this manuscript in the summer of 1990, when I was visiting the Islamic Foundation, Markfield. But before I finished

As life in Khartoum was so hectic and chaotic at that time, I could not resume work on this study for many years (more than seven years altogether). In 1997, I was appointed as Vice-Chancellor of Juba University, and as that was the first and only appointment I could secure under the National Salvation Government (NSG) of al-Bashier, I thought I could not afford to fail or underachieve. So I devoted all my energies to the new post and new challenge. Not only had the manuscript of the present study suffered more delay, but I was so dispirited and exhausted that I pondered giving up the whole project of finishing the book. Then my term of office as Vice-Chancellor of Juba university was terminated and I found myself jobless in Khartoum. As I was hard pressed financially, I had to look for a job outside the country. When I obtained a job as an expert in academic planning at the University of Qatar, I was too pleased to take it. That meant more delays in the writing and editing of this manuscript, which became the longest manuscript ever to remain in my hands. Every task and every achievement has a set and ordained time during which it would be completed (Wa Li Kulli Ajalin Kitāb).

Subḥānaka Allāhumma wa biḥamdika, Ash-hadu an lā ilāha illā anta. Astaghfiruka wa Atūbu ilayk! Wa uṣallī wa usallim ʿalā sayyidinā Muḥammad tasliman kathīran. Wa'l-ḥamdu lillāhi Rabbi'l-ʿĀlamīn.

30th August 2004

Markfield Institute of Higher Education Markfield, Leicestershire, UK.

unequivocal Qur'anic permission to fight back and not passively unequivocar Qui and procession and malpractices of the polytheists against him and his followers. This new policy is expressed in verses 39-40 of Sūrah al-Ḥajj (Pilgrimage).

These verses ushered in a new phase in the history of Islam. They were revealed at a very early stage of the Madinan period, only a few months after the Prophet's arrival there, and initiated a wholly new orientation for the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the evolving society of Muslims. From then on, the newly formed Islamic regime was geared up to face the impending armed struggle with the polytheists, championed by the Quraysh from their base in Makkah. It was time to end the tyranny of the Quraysh, and destroy their power and influence. Not only were the Quraysh responsible for opposing the Muslims, and unjustly evicting them from their homes and lands. they were also a major obstacle in the way of Islam, preventing it from freely reaching the people of Arabia.

2. PERMISSION TO WAGE WAR

In effect, verses 39-40 of Sūrah al-Ḥajj not only made it permissible for the Prophet (peace be upon him) to fight back against his oppressors, they even suggest to him he should take up the challenge of armed resistance to polytheists in all earnest. This is implicit in the oblique promise, that God Almighty was capable of making the Muslims victorious over their enemies, despite the obvious disparity in their respective military strengths:

Leave is given to those against whom war has been waged (to fight back) because they have been wronged, surely Allah is capable of giving them victory - those who have been driven out of their homes without right, only because they said our Lord is Allah. For had it not been for Allah's repelling some people by means of others, then cloisters and churches, oratories and mosques, wherein the name of Allah is much mentioned, would assuredly have been destroyed. Surely Allah helps those who help Him; surely Allah is All-Powerful, All-Mighty. [Al-Ḥajj 22:39-40]

The importance of these verses of Surah al-Hajj cannot be overstated. As well as launching a new period for the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims, that was destined to last for the next eight years up to the opening of Makkah, these verses give first expression to the philosophy of waging war in Islam, basically, in defence of Islam and justice. But the term defence here, we must state at the outset, is used in a broad sense that will be better understood as we proceed to explicate the dynamics of the campaigns; military actions in which the Prophet was engaged. In some cases, these actions were indeed in retaliation against attacks by enemy. In other cases, the Prophet (peace be upon him) initiated military actions, for example, against the unjust and oppressive regimes bordering Arabia, whose existence and flourishing influence constituted a threat to the nascent Islamic state in Madinah. Also, punitive campaigns were initiated against the Bedouins surrounding Madinah, in view of their bellicose disposition and traditions of predatory raiding: the only way to deter them was to demonstrate to them that the new state of Madinah was not an easy prey; they had to be persuaded that it would be unwise for them to consider attacking the Muslims, in hope of plunder and booty.

The disposition of the Quraysh was obviously the central concern behind these verses of Sūrah al-Hajj. In a sense, these verses amounted to a declaration of war against the Quraysh. But the Quraysh was no insignificant enemy. If the Muslims were to fight them effectively, and in the hope of victory, all the proper preparations and plans needed to be made. Within an overall strategy, every action needed to be thought out ahead of time, and every risk carefully weighted. Contingencies had to be anticipated and Muslims trained to cope with them. The strategic objectives of individual actions and the campaign as a whole had to be well-defined, and necessary precautions and preparations made to ensure success. War is always a most serious endeavour, with the gravest implications for costs in life and property, but in this instance the future of the nascent Muslim society as a whole was at stake. Therefore, meeting the challenge of war against the Quraysh demanded commitment from Muslims and morale of the very highest quality.

Verse 41 of Sūrah al-Ḥajj, following the verses cited above, makes it both an obligation and a privilege for the Muslims to fight in the cause of justice, and to uphold the values and norms of Islam:

Those who, if we establish them in the land, seek to establish şalah and to pay zakāh, and they enjoin goodness and forbid evil and corruption.[Al-Haji 22:41]

It is clear that it is almost a necessary condition and consequence of the Muslims being established in the land, that they fight to uphold good and to establish Islamic precepts, norms and ideals in the actual reality of their social order.

Thus, seen in its historical and sociological context, waging war by the Prophet of Islam was quite a natural development from the Makkan phase. The old Christian polemic that Islam is a war-like religion is misconceived. Islam does not condole war as such, nor condole arbitrary resort to it. If anything, warring for its own sake is abhorred in the Qur'an. But religious persecution, injustice and oppression are regarded as more abhorrent. If war becomes a necessary means of repelling aggression and removing evil and oppression, then the Muslims should not shy away from it. The military campaigns that the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his Muslim followers waged against the Quraysh, during the first eight years of the Hijrah era, and which culminated in the conquest of Makkah, were essentially wars of liberation with the strategic aim of containing, and then putting an end to the abuses of authority and power of the oppressive and tyrannical Quraysh.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) drew up and put into practice comprehensive, thorough and meticulous plans to achieve that aim. These plans were meant to, and did, fit into a grand strategy of security and defence for the Madinan community. The comprehensive and effective nature of this strategy showed that the Prophet (peace be upon him), was working with very sophisticated and broad concepts of security and defence, and that he displayed a very clear vision of

His strategy was multi-dimensional, with educational, political, economic, as well as intelligence and military components. He was fully aware of the psychological and ideological consequences of particular policies, and combined these with hard-headed military tactics. The practical measures adopted by the Prophet (peace be upon him), were chiefly intended to achieve two goals: To enhance the security and status of Madinah as a haram or

- To put pressures on the Quraysh, that would frustrate their aims, reduce their ability to incite the Bedouins around Madinah against the Muslims, and weaken or destroy their commercial trading within and beyond the Arabian peninsula.

3. MILITARY EXPEDITIONS $(SAR\bar{A}Y\bar{A})$

The military expeditions were perhaps the first practical measures undertaken by the Prophet (peace be upon him) to implement the new orientation in policy, commanded by the verses of Sūrah al-Haji cited earlier.

3.1 Hamzah's Expedition

The first expedition, led by Hamzah, was dispatched barely five months after the Prophet's arrival in Madinah, on the 12th Rabi' al-Awwal, year 13, of his mission (24th July, 622). Ḥamzah's expedition took place in Ramadan of the first year of the Hijrah (December 622). Thirty Muslims took part in the expedition, all of them exclusively of the Muhājirin or emigrants from Makkah. They succeeded in intercepting a large commercial caravan, belonging to the Quraysh, comprising of 300 camels and their riders, led by 'Amr ibn Hishām (Abū Jahl). However, no fighting took place, as the two groups were separated, through the influence and good offices of an Arabian leader, by the name of Majdī ibn 'Amr, in a place known as al-'Āṣ on 3,2 The Expedition of 'Ubaydah ibn al-Ḥārith The following month, that is to say, Shawwal of the same year, The following month, the Banu Hāshim, a first cousin of the Ubaydah ibn al-Hārith of the Banu Hāshim, a first cousin of the Prophet (peace be upon him), led a second expedition, comprising twice the number of men in Hamzah's expedition and also exclusively made of the Muhājirin. They too succeeded in intercepting another commercial caravan of the Quraysh, led by Abū Sufyān himself, one of the Quraysh's foremost leaders. Abū Sufyān's force consisted of two hundred camels loaded with goods. The two forces met face to face, this time with no third party to intervene, at the valley of Rābigh, on the Red Sea coast between Makkah and Madinah. A minor skirmish took place, during which the gallant Sa'd ibn Abī al-Waqqāş, who later distinguished himself in leading the Muslim armies to an astonishing victory against the Persians at Qadisiyyah, shot the first arrow in Islam. fatally wounding one of the polytheists of the Quraysh. However, no full scale military engagement followed, and the two parties departed to their respective destinations.

3.3 The Expedition of Sa'd ibn Abī al-Waqqāş

In the next month Dhū al-Qa'dah (January 623), a third expedition was dispatched, comprising twenty men led by Sa 'd ibn Abī al-Waqqāṣ himself. They pursued a small caravan of the Quraysh, but missed it.

3.4 The Expedition of 'Abdullah ibn Jahsh

This was the most worthwhile of all the expeditions, and perhaps had the most far-reaching consequences and repercussions. It was led by 'Abdullāh ibn Jaḥsh, a cousin of the Prophet (peace be upon him), with a small force of twelve Muslims (some sources put their number as only eight), also exclusively from the Muhājirīn. The Prophet's instructions to Ibn Jahsh were quite different from his previous ones which indicated the uniqueness and special character

Ibn Jahsh and his men were to head southward in the direction of Makkah. He was given a letter, but ordered not to open it until the party had travelled for two complete days. He was also told that the mission was a voluntary one. No one should be obliged to take part in it. When Ibn Jahsh opened the secret letter, it read: 'If you read this letter, proceed until you descend the valley of Nakhlah, between Makkah and Ta'if. There, watch the Quraysh, and gather for Ibn Jaḥsh responded to this instruction with: 'I hear and obey,'

He then informed the others that, on the orders of the Prophet (peace be upon him), they were to proceed to Nakhlah, south of Makkah on the route from Ta'if. None was required to participate against his will. He also told them that he himself would act on the orders of the Prophet (peace be upon him), even if he had to go it alone. However, all of the men voiced their willingness to participate. And so the expedition proceeded to Nakhlah, deep in the territory of the enemy, the farthest any Muslim force had ventured to penetrate so far. It was indeed a mission fraught with grave dangers, owing to the proximity of Nakhlah to Makkah, the fact that it lay on the Makkans' trade route to Ta'if, and the smallness in number of the Muslims' force. That explains the Prophet's directive, that participation in the mission should wholly be voluntary.

This expedition took place in the sacred month of Rajab, in the second year of the Hijrah, about seven months after the expedition led by Sa'd ibn Abī al-Waqqāṣ. During these months, other expeditions did take place, including two led by the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself. But I have not included these expeditions in this group because it formed a unity in that all of the expeditions were directed against the commercial interests of the Quraysh. No sooner had Ibn Jahsh and his men descended the Valley of Nakhlah, than a Quraysh caravan, evidently coming from the south (Yemen), appeared, well stocked with goods and poorly guarded, because southern routes of Quraysh trade had never before been threatened by the Muslims. It Quraysn trade had hever below. Ibn Jahsh and his company attacked the caravan, killing one man by the name of 'Amr ibn al-Ḥaḍramī, and capturing two others, while the fourth fled to Makkah. Ibn Jaḥsh took the two captives and the caravan, and hastened northwards to Madinah, lest the Quraysh should catch up with him.

dinah, lest the Canara When the Prophet (peace be upon him) saw the two captives and When the riophet (San al-Hadrami, he was visibly displeased learned of the Annual of and said to Ibn Jahsh: I did not order you to conduct any fighting in

The emphasis of the Prophet (peace be upon him) was not on fighting as such, but on fighting in the holy month of Rajab. This incident proved a major embarrassment to the Prophet (peace be upon him) initially, since it was considered scandalous to Arabian customs to conduct fighting during four holy months, of which Rajab was one. The incident caused a great row throughout Arabia. The Ouravsh made the most of it in their propaganda war against the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims! 'They claimed to be religious and now they are profaning the sacred months,' they were clamouring.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) initially disassociated himself from the affair, had his stance publicly known, and refused either to deal with the captives or to accept his khums (or fifth of the booty). Ibn Jahsh and his men found themselves in a very difficult situation, and the Muslims did not make it easier for them. They rebuked and criticized them for having caused the Prophet (peace be upon him) such embarrassment.

3.5 The Qur'anic Revelation on the Nakhlah Incident However, the crisis was relieved by God's Grace, in the following Qur'anic revelation:

They question you concerning the sacred month, and fighting therein. Say: fighting therein is a great (sin). But to bar men from the way of Allah, And uphold disbelief in Him, and the Holy Mosque and expelling its people from it, that is indeed a greater (sin) in the sight of Allah. Indeed persecution (fitnah) is more heinous than killing people (in the sacred month)! They will not cease to fight with you till they turn you from your religion, if they could. [al-Baqarah 2: 217]

The above verse constituted a valid and most effective reply to the polemics of the Quraysh, that the Muslims, despite their claims the potentics of the Quraysh, that the Muslims, despite their to piety, had violated the holy month, killing and plundering their to piety, nau violated the noty month, killing and piundering them adversaries. The Quraysh, of all people, had no right to talk about sacred obligations, since they had totally disregarded the Arabian code of chivalry, by persecuting the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his followers, for no cause other than their saying: 'God is our Lord. They had shown no regard for the fact that the Prophet (peace be upon him) and many of his followers were close relatives of theirs, as well as being men of honour and integrity. Moreover, a just war had its own rules. The Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims were brought, by the verses just cited, to understand that the Quraysh intended the total annihilation of the Muslims, and that they should think more about the importance of their survival than about rules to do with the holiness of particular times or places. Their faith and their own lives, the life of the Prophet (peace be upon him), the principle of freedom from religious persecution, and the whole future of Islam, were all at stake. The Nakhlah expedition proved to be a decisive turning-point, marking the end of light skirmishing between the Quraysh and the Muslims. More than any other encounter before it, Nakhlah intensified the frustrations of the Quraysh to a high pitch. They felt that if they were to maintain their eminence in Arabia, then they must get out to destroy the power of Muḥammad. The Prophet (peace be upon him), too, knew that he had crossed his Rubicon in his relations with the Quraysh, that he could only expect the worst from them, and that harsh, prolonged wars were ahead of him, which he must win if he

4. THE RESULTS OF THE EXPEDITIONS AGAINST THE QURAYSH

As we noted, those four expeditions are grouped together even though the last one of Ibn Jahsh took place much later, because they were all primarily directed against the Quraysh. We now ask: did they achieve primarily directed against the prophet's major what they were meant to achieve? What were the Prophet's major what they were many objectives in launching them in the first place? It would seem that these expeditions had very decisive and quick results on the following

- a. Firstly, the once thriving international commerce of the Quraysh. the mainstay and backbone of their economic prosperity, was seriously disrupted. Their trade to Syria in the north, and Yemen in the south, were blocked and rendered unsafe. The Quraysh could do little to prevent this eventuality. As for the Muslims, they stood to lose nothing by effecting this blockade. Rather, they stood to perhaps gain some provisions and wealth in order to compensate for their lost wealth, and property at Makkah, which they had been forced to leave behind. In addition, this blockade made life difficult for the Quraysh.
- b. Secondly, the Quraysh's prestige among the inhabitants of Arabia at large, especially among the Bedouin tribes, was severely damaged. Some tribes who were not particularly friendly with the Quraysh, for example, Khuzā'ah who had long-standing feuds with the Quraysh, rejoiced at the humiliation that these expeditions had inflicted on the Quraysh, and began to ponder the possibility of allying with the emerging power of the Muslim community in Madinah.
- c. Thirdly, these expeditions achieved a strategic aim for the Prophet (peace be upon him), namely provoking and inciting the Quraysh to the battlefield, where their political, religious and moral authority in Arabia might once and for all be tested and defeated. Whereas the Quraysh was quite oblivious to such considerations and totally ill-informed about the growing power and preparedness of the Prophet and his camp, the Prophet (peace be upon him) had the most up-to-date information about the whereabouts of the Quraysh and their commercial caravans. The superb network of informants and intelligence at the disposal of the Prophet (peace be upon him), can be inferred from the way he masterminded the expedition of Ibn Jahsh, in particular, its timing, its secrecy, the location to which it was directed, and the sense of danger and anticipation associated with it.

- Fourthly, these expeditions helped to train Muslims for combat fitness and war-readiness that would be needed in the inevitable battles ahead. More importantly, the prestige of the Quraysh and their reputation for invulnerability, were thoroughly undermined, so that the Muslims no longer feared military confrontation with
- e. Finally, the Nakhlah expedition brought into the hands of Muhājirin a considerable amount of money, food provisions and maybe some armaments, all of which they were in dire need, since they had left their wealth in Makkah when forced to migrate. Those four expeditions were not the only expeditions against the Quraysh, but they were the only ones before Badr.<sup>2</sup>

5. EXPEDITIONS LED BY THE PROPHET IN PERSON

The Prophet (peace be upon him) is said to have led in person at least two major expeditions in those early days of Islam in Madinah.

- a. The Expedition of Waddan: This was directed chiefly at the Bedouins of Banū Damrah, who as a result of this expedition were duly impressed by the personality of the Prophet (peace be upon him), and by his political and military power. They decided to become the allies of the Prophet (peace be upon him), concluded a Muwāda ʿah (peace treaty) with him, and the Muslims returned to Madinah, without encountering any hardship.
- The Expedition of al-'Ashīrah: Like that of Waddan, this expedition was directed chiefly at the Bedouins, though both expeditions had implications for the Quraysh, and it too ended in the conclusion of a Muwāda ʿah with the Bedouin tribe of Banū the concussion of a safe to infer that the primary motive of the Mudlij, thus, it is safe to infer that the primary motive of the Muani, mas, it is a series of the expeditions, led by the Prophet (peace be upon him) in person. expeditions, teach, was not military, but political; hence the need for his presence as head of state. The presence of the tribal head or shaykh was as nead of the Bedouins, in order to dignify and required by the custom of the Bedouins, in order to dignify and secure inter-tribal agreements. For them, the Prophet (peace be upon him) was the head of the Muslim tribe, and therefore it was necessary that he be present for treaties to be concluded. The Prophet (peace be upon him) attached considerable importance to the matter of securing alliances with any power that could help defend the Muslims against their enemies. At no stage of his mission, was the Prophet (peace be upon him) without liable allies: in Makkah, it will be recalled, he was first allied to the Banū Hāshim and Banū 'Abd al-Muttalib, led by his own uncle Abū Tālib. When Abū Tālib passed away, the Prophet (peace be upon him) became temporarily allied with al-Mut'im ibn 'Udayy, a non-Muslim, but a man of considerable courage and integrity, with a large and effective tribal following. Then, before the hijrah, the Prophet (peace be upon him) took the Pledges of the Two 'Aqabas. Very soon after he settled in Madīnah, he concluded the momentous Şahīfah Pact between the Ansars, the Muhājirīn and the Jewish tribes of Madinah.

c. The Jewish tribes of Madinah: When war with the Quraysh became inevitable, the Prophet (peace be upon him) actively sought new allies among the powerful tribes of the Bedouins around Madinah. To this end, by means of the expeditions mentioned and other methods, further alliances were secured with Khuzā ah, Banū Damrah and Banū Mudlij. Over time, the numbers of the Prophet's followers were to increase tremendously. Thus it is clear that the concluding of alliances was a major element of his diplomatic policy as well as being a powerful instrument of his da'wah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was keenly aware of how and where political power lay in Arabia. He had a clear or now and where ponucar power ray in Arabid. The flat a vision of how and why it should become a unified, unitary power. Within his unwavering commitment to the cause of Islam, and to the ennobling of his followers through Islam, he handled political issues with extraordinary skill and acumen.

5.1 Results of the Expeditions led by the Prophet By going out to meet with the tribal chiefs, the Prophet (peace be upon him) projected himself as the political and military leader. An Arabs' chief had to make public appearances, meet frequently with his counterparts, make his person felt and his view widely known. To be able to take a public role, and to sit in public council, was considered by the Arabs of the time as an indication of good lineage and excellent manners. However, Muḥammad (peace be upon him) was not just a tribal chief or a mere statesman, he was a Prophet and the Messenger of God. His mission was to call the people to the service, and worship of the One, True God, Allah. It is his claim to Prophethood that was a reason for the Arabs around Madinah to be drawn to him, to take a glance of him and assess his person at first hand. Many of them were instantly won over by his noble looks. Many went around affirming: I have seen Muhammad, and by God, his face is decidedly not the face of a liar or an impostor,' they said.

b. The Bedouins were very appreciative of power and might. They would only respect and fear a powerful chief; they would not respect a weak or meek chief. But when they saw the great love and esteem the Prophet (peace be upon him) enjoyed among his followers, they were duly impressed, and only desired to be allied

Those who did not choose to ally themselves with the Prophet (peace be upon him) were, nonetheless, persuaded that they should not choose to make him an enemy. We can be sure that the Prophet (peace be upon him) intended to deter those tough the Propued to the Propued to raiding and plunder as a and war-like Bedouins accustomed to raiding and plunder as a

- d. Most particularly, the Prophet (peace be upon him) aimed to Most particularly secure alliances with or, failing that, the neutrality of those Bedouin tribes who lived and roamed in the area that lay between the Muslims and the Quraysh. This policy, implemented through the campaigns and expeditions led by the Prophet (peace be upon him) in person, and those led by his commanders, was an essential preparation for the impending war with the Quraysh.
- Last but not least, these expeditions were a very powerful tool for the dissemination of information about the new state and authority of Madinah, about its leading figures, about the nature and high purpose of its mission and its institutions. As news travels fast in the desert by word of mouth, Bedouins tribes, far and wide, came to hear about the Prophet's marches. At the very best, they began to fear and respect him, for that they were not to raid the Muslims or to ally with the Quraysh against Muslims. In this way, the image and prestige of the Quraysh was further tarnished, just as the star of the nascent Islamic society shone ever more brightly.

6. OTHER EXPEDITIONS

There were minor expeditions, but of an inconclusive nature and therefore not meriting very detailed study in the present context. Two of these minor expeditions were led by the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself. In the expedition of Bawat, he led a contingent of two hundred Ansars as well as Muhājirin, and tried, unsuccessfully, to intercept a caravan led by Umayyah ibn Khalaf. He stopped at Bawāt and then returned to Madinah.

He led a second expedition against Kurz ibn Jābir al-Fihrī, who had raided the outskirts of Madinah and managed to get away with some camels belonging to the Muslims. The Prophet (peace be upon him) set out immediately in hot pursuit of Kurz who was, however, able to make good his escape. When the Muslims got to the valley of Safwan, in the vicinity of the wells of Badr, they stopped and camped for a few days. For this reason, some Muslim historians call this expedition, even though it involved no fighting, the first Battle of Badr.

7. THE FINAL OUTCOME OF THESE EXPEDITIONS (SARĀ YĀ)

We can now give a clearer account of the outcome of these expeditions

- and their implications for: a. The Muslim home front.
- b. The standing of the Quraysh.
- c. Relations with Bedouins.
- a. On the home front: Through these expeditions, the Muslims learnt a new military vigorous discipline, and combat fitness. The jihād became instilled into them. Alongside à mobilization of resources and of the people, a great increase in solidarity was achieved, as every single Muslim acquired thorough knowledge of the terrain around Madinah, and as far south as Nakhlah. They gained vital experience in the techniques of preparing and fighting battles, in the logistics of manpower and provisions, and the tactics of pursuit and engagement. They also got ample opportunity to know the demography of the Madinah area, and habits, characters and disposition of the various Bedouin tribes in the vicinity and of some of the areas of desert that separated them from the Quraysh. Moreover the Muslims were able to win many strong, reliable allies, and to deter others from offensive
- With regard to the Quraysh, the Muslims managed to amount an effective threat to the trade routes upon which the Quraysh depended, and were eventually able to disrupt about half of their trade. The standing and prestige of the Quraysh among the Arabs trade. Inestanting and product the trade was thoroughly undermined, obliging them to contemplate was thoroughly and open battle with the Muslims. Little by little the Quraysh were open value open value of separated from their former allies and supporters, many of separated from the Prophet (peace be upon him) and whom were won over to the Prophet (peace be upon him) and whom were used as overlords in Arabia was compromised, and their reputation as models of the Arab traditions of honour and chivalry permanently eroded by their unjust and hysterical hostility towards the Muslims, and especially by their persecution of the Prophet (peace be upon him).

With regard to the Bedouins, the expeditions helped to win some of them as allies of the Prophet (peace be upon him), to deter others from attacking the Muslims and to deter still others from supporting the Quraysh.

In general, the Prophet (peace be upon him) set the highest ideal of a tough fighter, who was both resourceful and vigorous and also absolutely sincere and disinterested in his devotion to the cause of Islam. His superb skill as a commander and his readiness for combat, both physically and psychologically, at the advanced age of over fifty, were astonishing, and excited the highest admiration. The expeditions put the Muslims firmly on the road to victory. They afforded them ample opportunity to perfect their military skills, and to gather considerable military forces. They gained from the wealth of the Quraysh provisions as well as armaments. They became well-versed in the techniques of managing and winning battles, and acquired valuable expertise and experience in such matters as field intelligence and the management of information and psychological advantage. They had the chance to test the quality of their faith in what the power, and help of God could achieve for them. When fighting, a Muslim expected to realize either of two objectives:

a. Total victory over an unjust and belligerent enemy, or;

Shahādah (martyrdom) in the way of God knowing fully that his death is not brought on by the risk of military engagement, but only if the destined end of his fate has been reached.

8. THE PHILOSOPHY OF FIGHTING IN ISLAM Fighting in Islam is only sanctioned within the context of da'wah or a calling to Islam. This means in part that it fits within a certain conceptual system, alongside religious faith, ethical norms and a world-view based on recognition and worship of the True God, Allah. Seen within that framework, fighting or waging war is not the primary concept nor is it the first priority. There are more fundamental concepts and more important priorities which must be clarified before one can meaningfully talk about war or fighting in Islam. We have already seen that the concept of fighting or waging war was totally absent during the whole of the Makkan period. Only after the Hijrah, and the setting up of the Islamic State in Madinah, was fighting in the way of God prescribed and sanctioned.

Islam calls on mankind to submit to the authority of God Almighty Alone, and warns them not to associate partners with Him. The Prophet Muḥammad (peace be upon him) was commanded to exert himself to the utmost, invoking the Qur'an, in the pursuit of this goal. This command came in one of the early Makkan revelations in which the word jihād is explicitly used:

So obey not the unbelievers but strive against them with your utmost effort, making use of the Qur'an. [al-Furqan 25:52].

Fighting in the way of God is one phase of jihād, a phase that was only sanctioned in the Madinan stage, thirteen years after the commencement of the Islamic da wah. Thus war or fighting is the subsidiary function of jihād, and jihād is a function of the da'wah to Islam. It stems from the Arabic 'jāhada' which means 'emptying' or 'exhausting'. A man is said to have 'jihād al-nafs' when he has exhausted his utmost effort. Thus the injunction to make Jihād in the way of God is basically the injunction that a Muslim should the way of the utmost in his efforts to bring that state of affairs exert himself to the utmost in his efforts to bring that state of affairs described in the Qur'an as, when the word of Allah is supreme'... that a takūna kalimatu Allāhi hiya al-'ulyā," not in a particular region, but the world over:

And fight them (the unbelievers) until religious persecution is no more, and religion is all for Allah. But if they cease, then surely Allah is Seer of what they do. [al-Anfāl 8:39].

The Arabic phrase used in the above verse to refer to the enforcement of God's authority is: "Wa yakūna al-dīnu kulluhu lil'lāh." This could be interpreted as the condition when non-Muslim powers accept the principle of religious freedom and totally desist from religious persecution and agree, in principle and practice that all people at any time have the full right to convert to Islam, or any other divine religion for that matter, and desist from placing any obstacles in the way of religious freedom.

Thus, in the light of this interpretation, waging war against a non-Muslim state, would only be justifiable in Islam, if that non-Muslim state resorts to oppression and practises religious persecution against its people. War will also be justified if that state seeks to impose a religion or ideology against the will of its people, because there is no compulsion in religion.

In the light of the above Qur'anic verse, Islam seems to be committed to the view that armed resistance to injustice and oppression is sanctioned. It is the duty of the Muslims to help alleviate the suffering of the mustaq fafin (the powerless) wherever they exist, be they Muslims or non-Muslims. By implication, a truly Muslim state will make it one of the pillars of its foreign policy to can. This commitment is bound to set that Muslim state at variance with unjust and tyrannical regimes, should they exist. The odds are that it will find itself in conflict or outright war with such regimes.

Could a Muslim state be charged with aggression or belligerence on this account? If such an accusation is made it would be unjustified. Insaccount it such an accusation is made it would be anjusticed.

If in fact a Muslim state does champion the cause of liberty and justice, could it be said, on this account, that a Muslim state can never coexist peacefully with non-Muslim states? It is conceded that a truly Muslim state would indeed be in conflict with unjust, tyrannical and oppressive regimes. But this conflict need not, at all times, assume the proportion of armed conflict or war. It is conceivable that the conflict could take the form of a cold war of words and ideology. It may, for example, take the form of severing of trade or diplomatic ties. Be that as it may, outright war cannot be ruled out. But war can be evaded if the oppressive regimes declared their willingness to improve their commitment to basic human rights and to be more sensitive to the demands of religious freedom and human dignity. Also, a Muslim state may best serve the goals of upholding the ideals of justice and liberty by embarking on policies of dialogue and negotiations, rather than war and confrontation. If the Muslims' overriding goal is the spread of the true faith in the One True God, Allah, then this cannot be brought about by war and hostilities. The only road to influence the convictions of mankind is across the bridge of dialogue and persuasion. 'There is no compulsion in religion,' declares the Qur'an, and the power of war and coercion of mankind is very limited indeed. It is very difficult to see how humanity can be persuaded that there is just One, True God, Allah, through the use of force and coercion.

The foregoing interpretation which we suggest for the Arabic phrase: hattā lā takūna fitnatan, wa yakūna ad-Dīnu kulluhu lil'lāh is supported by other verses from the Qur'ān, which we will cite presently. But, on the other hand, it seems to be opposed by the so called 'Ayat al-Sayf' (the verses of the sword). We will first give those verses which seem to support peaceful coexistence between Muslim nations and powers, and which advocate basic of the sword, so called.

First of all, there is a group of Qur'anic verses which clearly enjoin First of all, merciangs and peace oriented in their dealings the Muslims to be fair-minded and peace oriented in their dealings the Muslims to be in the latter are lacking in justice. Moreover, with non-Muslims, even if the latter are lacking in justice. Moreover, with non-number of these verses unequivocally shun aggression and the initiation of hostilities by the Muslims: God says in the Qur'an:

Fight in the way of Allah those who fight you, but do not begin hostilities. Surely Allah loves not the aggressors. And slay them, whenever you find them, and drive them out of the places whence they drove you out, for persecution is worse than slaughter. And fight not with them at the sacred Mosque, until they first fight you, but if they fight you therein then slay them. Such is the reward of the unbelievers. [al-Baqarah 2:190-191]

And fight them until persecution is no more, and religion is all for Allah. But if they desist, then let there be no hostility except against wrongdoers. [al-Baqarah 2:193]

You who believe! Stand out firmly for Allah, witnesses to fair dealing. And let not the hatred of others for you make you swerve to wrong and depart from justice. But be just, that is nearest to piety.

You who believe! Enter peace all of you and follow not the steps of Satan. [al-Bagarah 2:208]

And if they incline to peace, so incline you to it, and trust in Allah.

Reconciliation (and settlement) is better for you. [al-Nisā' 4:128]

There is also a group of Qur'anic verses which seem to be addressed to the Prophet (peace be upon him), reminding him that religious freedom is a matter ordained by God Himself. The implications of these verses is that it is both morally wrong and practically futile to try to change the religious convictions of people by force or by waging war. There is no need for the Prophet (peace be upon him) to organize or to be excessively domineering over the recalcitrance of the unbelievers:

From Oppression to Liberation And if your Lord willed, all who are on the earth would have believed together. Would you (Muhammad) compel men until they become So remind them! You are but a reminder, you are not a controller over

The methods of the Prophet (peace be upon him), in seeking to spread his faith, did not include coercion or intimidation, manipulation or domination. His methods were essentially reasoning by varied ways and convincing arguments, and all available means of legitimate persuasion. He could appeal to common sense, to ethical ideals which are highly cherished and valued by all decent human beings, or he could appeal to noble and positive passions. It is dubious techniques of manipulating the affairs of men, exploiting their illegitimate desires, interests, fears or animosities, playing up rivalries and unwarranted ambitions, that he should totally shun. Nor did his methods embrace domination, exploitation and control. It was not his ultimate goal to seize power and authority for their own sake, but to use it to transform people's souls and lives so that they would form a community and society of brotherhood and equity, to bring about and realize God's Will and Purpose for mankind.

8.1 The Fight to Liberate the Oppressed

The Qur'anic command, that religious belief can not be changed by the use of force or by waging war, is not incompatible with the policy of declaring war against tyrannical and oppressive regimes. As a matter of fact, the Muslims were commanded by God to fight in the cause of human liberty and dignity. They were even reminded of the days when they themselves were powerless and oppressed. It was through God's Help and Grace that they became victorious over their former oppressors. Would they not then desire to fight for the sake of al-mustad afin (the powerless)? It would indeed be very strange and unacceptable that those who had suffered aggression, and tasted the bitterness of injustice, should not or would not come to the aid of the oppressed; even more unthinkable that they themselves turn of the oppressed, even into the oppression of oppression should they assume political power and thority.

God, in the Qur'an, enjoins the Muslims to fight in the cause of human emancipation:

How is it with you that you do not fight in the way of God, and the abased, feeble men, women and children who say: Our Lord. bring us forth from this city, whose people are unjust, and appoint to us protector from You, and appoint to us from You a help. [al-Nisā' 4:75]

The fight to oppose religious persecution is deemed essential for the progress and well-being of humanity at large. Hence the duty of the Muslims to be involved in it. This notion is presented in the Our an in the context of survival of human civilization and progress. The will to fight in this cause is deemed, in the Qur'an, essential if evil and destructive powers, inculcated in the dark side of human passions, are to be thwarted.

For had it not been for Allah's repelling some men by means of others. cloisters and churches, oratories and mosques, wherein the name Allah is much mentioned, would assuredly have been pulled down. [al-Hajj 22:40]

This verse highlights the fact that war is justifiable as a means of survival, a means of repelling and combating much worse possibilities. As the Quran had indicated, persecution and discriminating against people on account of their religions, is a greater evil than war. Also the domination of evil, tyrannical powers is a greater evil than war. The Qur'an told the Muslims, in clear unequivocal language, that if they lacked the will to fight against injustice and oppression, then a great fitnah (religious oppression) and corruption would spread on the surface of the earth. It even went so far as to threaten them of dire consequences, both in this life and in the next, if they fail to meet the commandment to answer the call to jihād:

@ 22 Ob

From Oppression to Liberation O you who believe, what is the matter with you? That when it is said to you 'go forth in the way of Allah', You sink down heavily to the earth, do you prefer the life of this world to the Hereafter? But little is the comfort if this life, as compared with the hereafter. Unless you go forth, He will punish you with a grievous punishment. And instead of you, He will substitute another people and you will not hurt Him anything. For Allah is Powerful over everything. [al-Tawbah 9:38-39]

In Sūrah al-Tawbah (Repentance), we find another Qur'ānic verse which threatens the Muslims that if they prefer their comfort and that of their families and friends, and so become unresponsive to the call to jihād, then they might expect the worst from God:

Say (O Muḥammad): If your fathers, your sons, your brothers, your clan, and the wealth you have acquired, and the goods for which you fear that there will be no sale, and the dwellings you love - if these are dearer to you than Allah and His way, then wait till Allah brings His command. Allah guide not the people of ungodliness. [al-Tawbah 9:24]

The way of jihād has always been depicted as the Muslims' way to success and succour in this world and the next. It has also been commended by countless sayings of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his rightly guided Caliphs. The Qur'an commands the way of jihād in forceful and vivid language, which takes account of the fact that many of the early Muslims were traders:

O you who believe! Shall I lead you to a commerce that shall deliver you from a painful chastisement? You shall believe in Allah and His Messenger, and struggle in the way of Allah with your wealth and yourselves. That will be better for you if you but knew.

In the foregoing we hope to have shown that jihād and fighting in In the foregoing we nope to have shown that your and he way of God is not just meant to safeguard the Muslims' homeland the way of God is not just means to sareguard and defend their rights to live in freedom and dignity, worshipping the One True God, Allah, without fear of molestation. It is also the One True God, Annua, the commanded in order to defend the same rights for mankind, the commanded in order to the commanded in order two objectives, international rather, they are complementary. Should the Muslim states allow unjust rather, they are compound and tyrannical regimes which deny their people religious freedom and tyrannical regime to thrive around their boundaries unchecked, then its very security. to thrive around discovering the threatened and defence and indeed its survival would be seriously threatened and detence and indeed and jeopardized. Taking the offensive against such regimes, if the situation so demands, is part and parcel of the overall defence commitment of

The above interpretation of the doctrine of jihād would appear to be incompatible with the so-called Ayat al-Sayf, to which we referred earlier. As a matter of fact, there is a school of Muslim thinkers who believe that Ayat al-Sayf (the verse of the sword) were revealed in Sūrah al-Tawbah, much later than the other sūrahs in which other iihād verses are found, so they have abrogated or otherwise superseded all earlier Qur'anic verses on the issue.

8.2 Ayat al-Sayf (Verses of the Sword)

The verses of the sword (Ayat al-Sayf) are interpreted as predominant and overriding by the hard-liners among Muslim thinkers, as also by some orientalists who favour this interpretation because they give substance to the view which they are inclined to hold, that Islam is a militant religion, prone to violence and aggression. Let us first give the text of these verses: one of them is verse number 29 of Sūrah al-

Fight those who believe not in Allah and the Last Day, and do not forbid what Allah and His Messenger have forbidden - such men as practice not the religion of Truth, from amongst the people of the Book, until they pay Jizya with willing submission, and feel themselves subdued. [al-Tawbah 9:29]

Some Orientalists<sup>3</sup> have taken this verse as signifying the impossibility of peaceful coexistence and co-operation between Islam and the outside world. They see it as implying that a Muslim state From Oppression to Liberation is committed to be in constant war with non-Muslim forces until they (a) accept Islam, or (b) pay jizyah (a defence tax, against Non-Muslims) and thus become subdued, or (c) are utterly defeated and

On the other hand, the hardliners among Muslim thinkers claim that this verse of the sword is overriding because it is part of Sūrah al-Tawbah which is one of the very last sūrahs to be revealed. They claim that earlier verses reflect earlier stages in the history of Islamic da'wah, stages which had subsequently been superseded by the prevalence of new circumstances and new legislation. But this line of argument seems quite untenable, if pressed in every case, and without producing tangible evidence that a change in the direction of legislation had been made, either by abrogation or otherwise modifying the previous legislation. It would indeed be very damaging to the Islamic da'wah if the above line of argument is pressed without further evidence. One of the consequences of adopting the above line of thinking would be the cancellation of all the shari ah, excepting those aspects of it revealed in the very last days of the Prophet (peace be upon him). To evade such a possibility, the Prophet (peace be upon him) used to point out promptly and very clearly any verse of the Qur'an which God had abrogated. The practice of verse abrogation was governed by very exact and specific rules, and it is one of those topics with respect to which independent personal opinion has no role to play. Succession in time alone does not constitute a valid reason for abrogation. The difference in the content of Qur'anic verses dealing with the same issues, e.g. fighting in the way of God or jihād, revealed at different times in succession, is to be understood by jurists in the light of (a) the principles and ultimate goals of the shari'ah (b) previous Qur'anic revelation unless abrogation had been explicitly pointed out, the requirement here being that of harmony explicitly pointed out, the requirement nere of the state of the reason behind the revelation (asbāb nuzūl al-Ayah), (d) the change in the situation and times especially when these tend to militate against the reasons and wisdom behind the carlier revelation in the historical development of the Islamic society earlier revelation in the many and state. The mild verses revealed before the verses of the sword and state. The mild verses revealed before the verses of the sword and state. The minu variative policies and strategies that continue could be viewed as alternative policies and strategies that continue to be valid and which are to be practised should the circumstances to be valid and which and the verse of the sword. Moreover, require a less militant handling than the verse of the sword. Moreover, require a less minutant management of valid and very broad principles some of these mild verses consist of valid and very broad principles some of unexchanged in the source of universal applicability, and therefore need not be abrogated just or universal approach of the was revealed later, unless otherwise because some stronger verse was revealed later, unless otherwise

Indeed, the situation with regard to jihād and war is not a typical one in that it appears to consist of two apparently contrary tendencies: one towards fighting and waging war in the way of God, the other towards kindness, mercy and tolerance. In many major issues, this same feature of shari ah seems to be present: there are always two strands of attitude, apparently contradictory but actually fused into a harmonious whole; perhaps comparable to two electrical poles, one negative, the other positive, which working together supply useful energy. Thus, in shari ah, there is always the passing temporal aspect of any legislation and also the positive, eternal one. The temporal one is needed to cater for the changing, earthly human conditions reflective of man's weakness, evil intentions and his base passions of envy, greed and aggression, while the eternal, more permanent aspect embodies the Divine will and purpose for man, stating as it does normally universal principles.

In the issue of war and peace, these two aspects are there. They complement each other, and they naturally fuse together to give a consistent policy of war and peace. Yet peace is clearly the more basic, more permanent option in Islam, while war is only necessitated by man's unavoidable passions for aggression and injustice. That peace is the foremost overriding option in Islam is clearly demonstrated by the following considerations:

a. As-Salām (or peace) is one of the Beautiful Names of God.

From Oppression to Liberation b. It is well known that salām (peace) is the ordinary salutation of the Muslims, every time they meet or depart. Salām is also the salutation of the Muslims in the Hereafter. After each of the five obligatory daily prayers, a Muslim's supplication and du'ā' is: 'O Lord! You are the Peace. All peace proceeds from You. All peace returns unto You. Help us to live in peace, O our Lord. Allow us to enter the Paradise which is Your lodge, the lodge of peace.'

d. Paradise itself is depicted essentially as the abode of peace, in the gracious Qur'an:

Surely this is the path of Your Lord, Straight, We have detailed the verses (thereof); For those people who take heed For them is the abode of peace with their Lord. And He is their Protector for that they were doing... [al-An'ām 6:126-127]

The ultimate goal to which Islam is calling humanity is to lead them to the abode of peace. God says in the Qur'an:

And Allah calls to the abode of peace, and leads whom He will to the straight path. [Yūnus 10:25]

War as envisaged in the verses of the sword, and indeed in many other contexts, is far from diminishing this fundamental, unshakable commitment to peace as the permanent, ultimately desirable reality, as a necessary means to ensure and secure the right of everyone to live in peace. But peace cannot be achieved if tyrannical powers, and agents of oppression, evil and ungodly religions and cults are allowed a free hand over the affairs of men. Where such evil powers tend to Prevail, then it is the sacred duty of Muslims to resist them and indeed engage them in the battlefield, with the aim of destroying them and

9. THE VERSES OF THE SWORD AND THE PEOPLE OF THE BOOK

We have alluded to the two aspects of the shari ah, the temporal and We have amused the temporal aspect it remains in touch with, the eternal. Through its temporal aspect it remains in touch with, the eternal radiose with, the changing, fluid human concerned with, and interacting with, the changing, fluid human concerned white condition of this life. But through the eternal aspect, the shari ah expresses God's last will and purpose for man. Thus it would be a gross mistake to hold the view either that all of shari ah rules and injunctions are absolute or that they are all relative in the sense of being history-bound. The right view is the balanced one that both aspects are there together always, thus making it uniquely possible for the shari'ah to be both the eternal, unchangeable will of God Almighty, and at the same time malleable and flexible, suited to the changing conditions and circumstances of human development on

What is shocking to many regarding the verses of the sword is that one of them is not directed against the Arab polytheists, towards whom the Qur'an had adopted a hard, uncompromising attitude from the start, but against the People of the Book, i.e. Jews, Christians and Magians. The prevailing attitude towards Ahl al-Kitāb (People of the Book) is one of tolerance and magnanimity. The Qur'an enjoins that they be allowed to live in peace, practise their religions in freedom and that they be protected by the Muslims, if they opt to come under the protection of Muslims, by paying a special tax towards that end called al-jizyah. Moreover, the Qur'an has in fact enjoined pro-active tolerance, charity and love to be shown to those People of the Book, who showed themselves to be peacefully inclined towards the Muslims, and did not initiate any hatred or hostilities against them. This line of policy regarding the People of the Book, is expressed in many verses

God forbids you not, with regard to those who did not fight you on account of your faith, nor did they drive you out of your homes, that you may deal kindly and justly with them. For God loves those who are prone to justice... [al-Mumtahinah 60:8]

From Oppression to Liberation

If they withdraw from you and do not fight you, and offer you peace, then Allah has opened no way for you against them.

Far from permitting the Muslims to wage war against the People of the Book, the Qur'an forbids the Muslims even to utter harsh words, when engaged with them in arguments or polemics.

And argue not with people of the Scripture, save in the fairer manner, except for those of them that do wrong, and say 'We believe in what has been sent down to us, and has been sent down to you; And our God and your God is one, and unto Him we have surrendered.' [al-'Ankabūt 29:46]

Qur'anic verses, such as the ones cited above, are expressive of the permanent, overriding norms and rules that govern the relation of Muslims with the People of the Book. The verse of the sword, number 29 of Sūrah al-Tawbah, is thus a departure from those fundamental, permanent norms. The hardened attitude of this verse of the sword pertains more to the temporal aspect of shari'ah, in the context of inter-communal relations with the People of the Book. This is not to be taken to mean that the verse of the sword is relative. It is perfectly universal; enforceable whenever circumstances demand its enforcement and application. It is an exception to fight the People of the Book rather than the rule. Verse 46 of Sūrah al- 'Ankabūt above, clearly envisages such as exception... 'except for those of them that

When the Prophet (peace be upon him) first descended on Madinah, his relations with the People of the Book, namely the Jews, since no Christians or Magians lived there, were very cordial. But soon afterwards they began to sour and tensions began to mount. Then tribe after tribe of the Jews of Madīnah became hostile to the Prophet (peace be upon him), as they saw him rise in power and prosperity, and succeed in spreading the message of Islam far and wide, scoring decisive victories over his enemies. Their place of pride and eminence in Madinah, and in Arabia at large, were compromised and later in Madman, and intermed and intermed and intermed in the road of confrontation, and undermined. They then embarked on the road of confrontation, and became involved in intrigues and conspiracies against the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims. Not only this, but they waged a war of slant and slander against the Muslims, and ultimately joined hands with the polytheists of the Quraysh in waging direct war against the Muslims, during the Battle of the Trench (al-Khandaq). Thus, the rules of the game were changed, the Prophet (peace be upon him) unsheathed the sword against them, because that was the path they chose to follow in their relations with the Muslims, in total disregard for the friendly approach and kindness which the Prophet (peace be upon him) had shown towards them, and despite the pact (sahifat al-Madinah) which they signed with him.

@ 28 D

The theory proposed by some militant Muslim thinkers on the issue, namely that the verse of the sword in question (No. 29 of al-Tawbah) is in fact overriding, on account of its being revealed later in time than the other more lenient verses, is clearly untenable:

First of all, the verse of the sword indicates that it is directed, not against all the People of the Book without discrimination, but against those whom war is to be waged who are carefully delineated as:

- a. Not believing in God and the Hereafter.
- They do not forbid what God has forbidden.
- They do not accept the true religion.
- Furthermore they are pointed out as a group within Ahl al-Kitāb 'min Ahl al-Kitāb'.

The Arabic article (min) clearly indicates 'some', thus, not all the People of the Book are being meant by the verse of the sword.

This line of interpretation is borne out by the actual practice of the Prophet (peace be upon him) in his conflict with the People of

a. Firstly, he never waged war, nor even threatened war against the Christians of Anti-Christians of Arabia, especially the Christian Arabian tribe of Banú Taghlub in northern Arabia. It is doubtful if he threatened the Christians of Najrān by the use of force if they did not pay jizyah, although, of course, he had asked for it and they agreed to pay. However, the case with Banu Taghlub was different in this respect, in that they were not even asked to pay jizyah.

Secondly, even when open hostilities with the Jews of Madinah broke out the Prophet (peace be upon him) never attacked them, all at once, nor did he attack them arbitrarily and without a reason. In every case, he attacked only a particular group, in retaliation against their misdeeds and aggressive designs against himself, while sparing the other peaceful groups. There was never an all-out war against all the Jews indiscriminately, let alone such a war against all the People of the Book, in general, Jews as well as Christians!

Thus, this verse of the sword could not, under any interpretation, be taken as warranting an all-out war against the People of the Book. Nor could it be interpreted, as some orientalists and some militant Muslims would like it to be interpreted, as an abrogation of all previous legislation concerning the relationship of Muslims with the People of the Book. The dominant norms governing that relationship were ones of pro-active tolerance and cordiality, as long as they abided by the spirit of peaceful co-operation and coexistence. Muslims and the People of the Book have thereafter, coexisted peacefully together for many centuries. This is a testimony of the tolerant views expressed about them in the Qur'an and the sunnah. If the twentieth century has been characterized by tensions and conflicts between Muslims and the People of the Book in such places as Palestine, India, Philippines and Lebanon, it is because evil and sinister forces were stirring things up and instigating enmity and hatred between Muslims and their non-Muslim compatriots from amongst the People of the Book. Otherwise, the Muslims and the People of the Book, especially the Christians, would have lived together, visiting each other's homes, intermarrying and mingling together for social, cultural and commercial purposes and mingling together for some and mingling together for some and purposes, last but not least, the verses of the Sword reflected a special historical Last but not least, the verses of Muslims with the Jews of Madinah and stage in the relationship of the Muslims of the P stage in the relationship when later on against the Byzantine Christians of the Roman empire, when later on against the soldiers at the northern frontiers of the they started to amount they started they st Muslim states it was a state in the Christians of Najran, (c) or the Christians of the northern Arabia tribe of Banu Taghlub.

@ 30 D

Thus, the verses of the sword, though of course an eternally valid and universal Qur'anic revelation, is reflective of a temporal phase in the relationship of the Muslims with the People of the Book; it is not an overriding rule applicable irrespective of whether or not the People of the Book were peaceful or otherwise.

10. EPILOGUE: THE PROPHET OF MERCY AND THE PROPHET OF WAR

The Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) is described as 'Nabiy al-rahmah wa nabiy al-malhamah,' i.e. the Prophet of mercy and the Prophet of combat. As we have explained, in the arguments above, these two epithets are not necessarily contradictory: rather, they are complementary. The wars which the Prophet (peace be upon him) launched during his life were means of da'wah and were carried out in the context of his religious and spiritual mission to liberate humanity from the tyranny of false gods, and oppression of unjust systems and regimes. The wars of the Prophet (peace be upon him) were almost all defensive, in the broad sense of the word (defensive), to which we have been alluding.

These wars were never fought in the spirit of personal or national glory, nor were they carried out with a view to material gains. They were fought in the way of God, so that religious persecution was no more and religion became totally a godly affair. Religion could not be exploited husbace. exploited by the force of tyranny or superstitions. The Muslims were commanded by the force of tyranny or superstitions. commanded, by the Qur'an, to go to war if need be, so as to remove the obstacles of tyranny and oppression, and clear the way for the That Prophet Muḥammad is 'Nabīy al-raḥmah' is attested to by freedom of man to worship God Almighty Alone. no lesser testimony than the Qur'an itself. God said: 'We have not sent you save as mercy unto mankind.' [al-Anbiyā' 21:107] However, no equivalent Qur'anic text exists to the effect that the Prophet (peace be upon him) is also a warrior Prophet. But Qur'anic exhortations to the Prophet (peace be upon him) to fight in the way of God and to wage all-out war against the Arabian polytheists are abound in the Qur'an. Yet the discrepancy in the relative weight of the two epithets of 'Nabiy al-raḥmah' and 'Nabiy al-malḥamah' is not to be lost. We venture to say that the first epithet is the more fundamental and the more expressive of the essence of Muhammad's mission, personality and career. It is the more permanent, everlasting definition of his essence and reality.

Thus war is merely a passing, temporary instrument of his da'wah and policy. War had been necessitated by certain circumstances and contingencies. If these circumstances and contingencies ceased to exist, so would war become obsolete, according to the prevalence of altogether new conditions. The concept of a warrior Prophet is not alien to the Judaic tradition or history (witness the careers of David and Solomon). Nor was it abhorrent to the Abrahamic tradition. It was only uncongenial to the particular mission of Jesus and of his immediate predecessors, John the Baptist and Zachariah of the Holy Altar. They were passive victims of the violent, soulless Israelites of

The murdering of Zachariah and his son John, and the attempt on the life of Jesus by the forces of evil amply showed, I think, that changing times and human conditions both demanded and called for the resumption of the Prophet-warrior tradition of Judaism. However, the concepts of mercy, love and tolerance emphasized in the mission of Jesus were neither lost nor wasted. They were in the mission of Jesus were neutron 1051 1101 wasted. They were incorporated in the eternal mission of Muhammad (pbuh), in his superior capacity as 'Nabiy al-raḥmah' (i.e. The Prophet of Mercy).

It is indeed remarkable that a man of such gentle nature, of such It is indeed remarkable to the pacific and friendly disposition, as Muhammad was during his whole pacific and menusy start pacific and menusy start pacific and menusy start pacific until the age of fifty-three, should suddenly take to the battlefield his until the age of incy and become involved in military challenges and conflicts, and even and become involved and even more remarkable that he emerged victorious. With the possible more remarkable more recognition of the Battle of Uhud, which was not a decisive defeat, the exception of the exception him) was a victor throughout his military prophet (peace be upon him) was a victor throughout his military career. Nevertheless, it is the portrait of the Prophet (peace be upon him) as the gentlest and mildest of all men that has survived in the sirah sources (i.e. Life of the Prophet) and is narrated over and over again. The violent phase of his life and career did not overshadow or compromise his most gentle nature:

He was neither gruff, nor impolite nor was he taken to raising his voice like a hawker in the market-place. If he passed by, a flaming candle would no more than flicker owing to the serenity of gait; and if he walked over reeds, not a sound would come from below his feet. He never used obscene language. Through Him, the Almighty God opened eyes that were blind, ears that were deaf, and hearts that were sealed.6

Not only is it clear that he was quite averse to war and violence by disposition and style for the greater part of his life, it is also perfectly clear that he never used war as a tool of personal ambitions, aggrandisement or other material interests. The conclusion, therefore, inescapable that, in waging the wars he did, he was constrained into doing so by the realities and necessities of his religious and political mission, that is, by the need and obligation to fulfil God's commandments and achieve His will and purpose for man at the time. Moreover, the forces of evil would not leave the Muslims alone, but were adamant in their determination to destroy them.

That eventually also made military confrontation inescapable. Throughout the last three centuries that witnessed the decline of the Muslim religious and political power, the military dimension of the Prophet (peace be upon him) was totally ignored. Through decline and weakness, the Muslims of modern times came very close to and weakness, the musims of mouern times came at any cost losing their hearts and spirits. They clamoured for peace at any or any price, even if that meant a dishonourable and unconditional or any price, even it that meant a dishonourable and differentiation of a surrender to a cruel and ruthless enemy. They failed to see that, in certain circumstances, preparing for a possible war and demonstrably possessing the will to fight is the Muslims' best defence against their enemy. Otherwise, the Muslims will be easy targets for the aggressive attacks of their enemies; 'sitting ducks' for the enemy to shoot at, to use a phrase which Shaykh Ahmad Deedat, the celebrated Muslim thinker and lecturer, was very fond of repeating. The Qur'an has repeatedly warned the Muslims against such slackening and failure of spirit vis-à-vis their enemies, warned them against neglecting the exhortation to jihād and being content with dishonourable peace.

So do not faint and call for peace, when you should be the uppermost, and Allah is with you and He will not deprive you of your labours. [Muhammad 47:35]

Muslims today are subjected to the worst sorts of victimization, oppression and domination, yet they fail to resort to jihād, with the exception of a few cases, and thus continue to be the target of the aggression of their enemies. Worse still, the malicious, but very powerful and effective propaganda machines of these enemies are portraying them as terrorists and aggressors. So powerful and so effective is this campaign of the anti-Islamic mass media, that the Muslims are cowed into a passive defensive posture. Had they heeded the repeated calls of the Qur'an to the legitimacy of jihad for the purposes of self-defence, and in defence of justice and liberty, and had they emulated the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him), they could not have found themselves in the pitiful state of affairs in

We end this chapter with the general conclusion to be drawn from the above discussion. Far from being apologetic or polemical, our construal of the Islamic theory of jihād and peace is that it should be considered the normal state of affairs for Muslims to peacefully coexist with the People of the Book in honour, dignity, mutual trust coexist with the reopher and friendship. But should the People of the and reciprocated equality and friendship, then it would be considered to the constant of and reciprocated equation and enmity, then it would be quite cowardly Book revert to aggression and enmity, then it would be quite cowardly Bookrevert to aggression and reprehensible for the Muslims to shy away from the prospects and representation and confrontation. To clamour for peace in of military cages in these circumstances is tantamount to an unconditional and cowardly surrender. It is in the light of such unfavourable conditions that we surrender. It is in the Should understand the Qur'an's repeated calls to the Muslims, never should understand the Qur'an's repeated calls to the Muslims, never to abandon the preparations for the engagement of their enemy under all circumstances of war and peace:

Make ready against them all that you can of (armed) force, and of horses tethered, that you may terrify thereby the enemy of Allah and your enemy, and others besides them that you know not. [al-Anfal 8:60]

Thus, jihād, in the broad sense of the word, which means to exert oneself to the utmost of one's effort and ability, is a way of life for a Muslim community. It is to be followed in times of war and times of peace - particularly times of peace because it is an essential prerequisite of waging jihād in the narrow military sense. It is also a method for successful nation-building, which is based on the solid foundation of totally developed, trained and mobilized individuals. Underscoring this interpretation, the Prophet (peace be upon him)

Whosoever died and he never participated in a military campaign, nor told himself of such participation, he would die and a residue of hypocrisy still in his heart.7

The Prophet (peace be upon him) is also reported to have said:

Whenever a group of Muslims abandoned jihād, and became totally absorbed in cultivating the land and the raising of cattle, then God would impose humiliation and abasement upon them, and would not remove it, until they return to their religion, and be ready for jihād in self-defence.8

@ 36 D

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam

1. BADR, THE FIRST TASTE OF DECISIVE VICTORY Badr, was no ordinary historical incident, nor was it an isolated event in the Prophet's career. In a sense, no Islamic struggle will be complete or manage to achieve its final goal of victory over the forces of evil and unbelief without finding its Badr. Thus viewed, Badr becomes a permanent feature of the Prophetic paradigm of jihād, or struggle, in the way of God Almighty. In other words, Badr, is an essential stage in any genuine and successful Islamic struggle.

In order to help the reader grasp and appreciate the importance of Badr in the Prophet's career, we must try to answer the following

- a. What were the reasons and causes that led to the Battle of Badr?
- b. How did Badr take place?
- c. What were the striking features of that fateful encounter with the
- d. Why did the Muslims emerge victorious, and the Quraysh and
- e. What were the most decisive consequences of that battle? f. What lessons and morals can the student of history draw from

@ 37 D

2. THE CAUSES OF BADR As to the causes that made Badr inevitable, they are not difficult to As to the causes unat made culmination of the Islamic da'wah and seek. Badr was the logical culmination of the Islamic da'wah and seek Badr was the logistic movement, initiated by the Prophet (peace be upon him) some movement, initiated by some fourteen hundred years ago in Makkah. Every event and development fourteen numerous the fourteen numerous the fourteen numerous the struggle that ensued between the Muslims and the Quraysh. in the struggle trace duraysh, because of the inception of Islam, was building in the direction of Badr: the challenge and provocation posed by the new Islamic worldview to the vested interests of the Quraysh, and to their vantage position in pre-Islamic Arabia; the conflict that ensued between the two parties; the eviction of the Muslims from Makkah; together with the appropriation of their wealth and homes; the hijrah to Madīnah and last but not least, the Qur'anic permission for the Muslims to fight back, revealed immediately after the hijrah to Madīnah; all these events were building up towards Badr. Before the granting of permission, the Muslims could not engage their adversaries in the battlefield. The permission to fight back was immediately followed by other Qur'anic verses, exhorting Muslims to fight back in self defence and instituting jihād as a permanent major strategy of the Muslims' struggle against evil and unbelief. These other Qur'anic revelation verses made it clear, that evil and unbelief were not passing features of reality, but a permanent one. Moreover, the encounter with evil is inevitable, because evil forces are, by their very nature, aggressive, uncompromising and provocative. They seek to eradicate goodness and godliness from life by every possible means in their possession. The efforts to avoid a showdown with evil forces are futile, because they sooner or later will enforce such a showdown, unless the forces of righteousness surrender to them; God forbid.

The Prophet's expeditions and sarāyā, which are discussed in the first chapter, perfectly prepared the ground for Badr. The trade routes of the Quraysh were effectively blocked or interrupted. With the Quraysh commerce disrupted, many Bedouin tribes, especially the powerful Khuza'ah, though still unbelievers, were won over to the side of the Pearl. side of the Prophet (peace be upon him), as allies against the Quraysh.

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam Meanwhile, the Muslims' exodus from Makkah was successfully Meanwine, the Musikins Caudin Holling Handle Completed and their nascent state in Madinah was secured, not merely as a set of rules or laws, or even as a set of formal institutions and policies, but firmly established in the hearts and minds of the vast majority of the inhabitants of the city, notwithstanding the enmity

However, the immediate cause of the Battle of Badr was the of the Madinan Jews and Hypocrites. Muslims' pursuit of a Quraysh commercial caravan, coming from Syria, and led by none other than Abū Sufyān himself. Abū Sufyān, the head of the Quraysh opposition to Islam, managed to dodge his Muslim pursuers and arrived safely, with the caravan intact, in Makkah.

When he arrived in Makkah, Abū Sufyān found the Makkans fully alerted, and mobilized for war against the Muslims, having received news about the Muslim offensive against their caravan. He was there in time to join the army, in fact to assume its command.

3. HOW DID THE BATTLE TAKE PLACE?

The original pledge the Madinans gave to the Prophet (peace be upon him) was just to defend him against any attack. The situation had changed. So, the Prophet (peace be upon him) called a  $Sh\bar{u}r\bar{a}$  Council. He asked: 'O People! Give me your counsel.' One by one, the leaders of Muhājirin spoke supporting the Prophet (peace be upon him), and assuring him of their ability to fight the Quraysh and defeat them. Abū Bakr, 'Umar and al-Miqdād ibn 'Amr, all of them spoke very enthusiastically in support of the proposal that they should engage their Quraysh adversaries. But the Prophet (peace be upon him) again

Sa'd ibn Mu'adh, the celebrated Anṣār leader, sprang to his feet and said: 'Perhaps we are the men you mean, O Messenger of God.' 'Yes,' said the Prophet (peace be upon him). 'We have faith in you, and we believe what you have told us is the truth, and we have testified to that; and we have given our firm pledge to hear and obey!' So do what you will, and we will be with you. For by Him Who has sent you with the truth, if you were to plunge into that sea, we would do the same, not a truth, it you were to pumpe same, no single man amongst us would stay behind," said Sa'd ibn Mu'adh.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) was indeed very pleased to The Propnet (Peace to Mu'adh, the foremost chief of the Aws, and the most gallant amongst them.

the most gardent through the most gardent thro impending threat of war, is both a tribute to the Prophet's resoluteness and keenness of purpose, and also a hallmark of that unmistakable prophetic genius and acumen in leadership and statesmanship. By this act of shūrā (consultation), the Prophet (peace be upon him) had both underwritten and strongly emphasized the principle of mutual consultation and shūrā and at the same time consolidated his home front vis-à-vis the advancing enemy from Makkah. By eliciting the Ansar's support for his military strategy of taking the offensive against the Quraysh, the Prophet (peace be upon him) managed to supersede the merely defensive pledge to which the Ansars had agreed in signing the Second 'Aqabah Pledge'.

Thus, having consolidated the home front, the Prophet (peace be upon him) managed to achieve, from the outset, a tremendous tactical advantage over his enemy, which was divided and in discord, due to the heterogeneous nature of its supreme military command, vacillating between the hawkishness of Abū Jahl and dovishness of 'Utbah ibn Rabi'ah and Abū Sufyān ibn Ḥarb'. The Prophet's leadership, in peace and war, was profoundly mindful of the need of the leader to accommodate and incorporate the best of his followers' opinions, thoughts and aspirations. The mode of the Prophet's leadership was decisively collective and pluralistic. The heterogeneous ideas and opinions of the community of the faithful were thus woven and integrated in the final outcome of a general  $sh\bar{u}r\bar{a}$  or consultation.

3.1 Al-Ḥubāb's Objection to the Stationing of the Troops

As soon as the Prophet (peace be upon him) moved forward, and stationed his troops in the valley of Badr, another occasion presented itself for more extended and more intensive practice of the  $sh\bar{u}r\bar{a}$ . This

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam time, the exchange of opinions was initiated, not by the Prophet (peace time, the exchange of opinions was mulated, not by the Frophic (peace) be upon him) as leader and commander-in-chief of the Muslim army, but by an ordinary soldier, by the name of Al-Ḥubāb ibn al-Mundhir: Al-Hubab disapproved of the way the Prophet (peace be upon him) had stationed the Muslims' army in the valley of Badr. Is this a position which God has commanded you to take, or is it merely of your opinion and of the tactics and ruses of war?' asked replied the Prophet (peace be upon him). Then, this is not a good stationing of the troops! A better stationing will be further down the valley, around the nearest well to the enemy. We shall destroy all the wells behind us and station our troops around the nearest well to the enemy. This way, we drink while we deprive the enemy of any source of water,' advised al-Ḥubāb ibn al-Mundhir.

'It is merely of my opinion and of the tactics and ruses of war.' ibn al-Mundhir.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) immediately saw the soundness of al-Hubāb's expert opinion and acted upon it. It proved a tremendous success. This incident validated the necessity of the shūrā, as a safeguard against the fallibility of human judgment albeit Muḥammad's judgment, in his capacity as a human being.

Moreover, shūrā is also envisaged, within the Islamic scheme of policy and ideology, as a check against the tyranny and despotic tendencies of leaders and commanders. Sh $\bar{u}r\bar{a}$  is also commended because, in a community where it is practised, men come together as equals and brothers, and thus become united in mind and heart. The leaders behave with humility, and the rank and file become active participants in the whole affairs of the community. In this way everybody becomes part of the decision-making process of the

In one aspect of it, shūrā is a derivative rule that can be subsumed, under the more comprehensive Islamic principle of equality, of the faithful in the sight of God. The only legitimate criterion of the faithful in the significance (piety). Prima facie all believers are discrimination is that of taqwā (piety). Prima facie all believers are discrimination is that to voice their opinions, and are equally entitled equal in their right to took equally entitled to have them heard with respect, dignity and brotherly regard, all to have them neared to have the have them neared to have the h other things occurs value of the Islamic moral standards, or is judged in some way falls short of the Islamic moral standards, or is judged in some way ratio opportunity to participate in the shūrā practice at any level could be jeopardised, at his own risk and responsibility.

Also illustrative of the general moral norm of equality in Islam is the Prophet's insistence, en route to Badr, on being treated exactly as an ordinary soldier, as far as the facility of transportation was concerned. At the rather advanced age of fifty-four, he insisted on having an equal share in walking beside or riding the camel that he was sharing with two of his Companions:

You are not more capable of marching than I, and I am not less in need for other-worldly reward than you!' insisted the Prophet

The fortitude, high spirit and fitness of the Prophet (peace be upon him) were indeed remarkable, comparable if not, surpassing those of 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib, at that time in his early twenties, and Marthad Ibn Abi Marthad al-Ghanawi, also a powerful young man of extraordinary physique, who worked as a blacksmith. But more important, and more significant than the Prophet's physical fitness at fifty-four, was his keenness to put into practice the principles which were integral parts, central to his Prophetic teaching, the norms and values he ardently advocated. The hardship which the gracious Prophet (peace be upon him) took upon himself in his insistence on giving a practical example, could be grasped and appreciated, if we remember that the march towards Badr was started on the 8th of Ramadan, of the second year of the Hijrah. The distance between Madinah and the valley of Badr, which is approximately 80 miles, took the Muslims about seven or eight days, since the battle took place on the 17th of Ramadan.

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam In attempting to answer this question, no elaborate details will be given, because they are available in most of the standard texts on the sirah. However, for the sake of completeness in the present account, a sketchy account of the event will be attempted, while the main emphasis will continue to be on gaining better understanding and appreciation of the phenomenon of Badr and its significance in

When the Muslims learned of the escape of the caravan and the presence of a powerful the Quraysh force at the other end of the valley of Badr, some of them were obviously disappointed. They had been asked to come out in pursuit of a commercial caravan, with the prospects of booty and inflicting a loss on their adversaries, the Quraysh. Then, those prospects were replaced by the possibility of having to fight that powerful force: some of the Muslims were not yet psychologically prepared to engage so formidable an enemy, especially in view of the great discrepancy in the relative numerical strength of

The Muslims' army consisted altogether of three hundred and five men, seventy camels, and two horses. Of the men, eighty-three were Muhājirīn, sixty-one were of the Aws and the rest were of the Khazraj. The army of the Quraysh consisted of almost a thousand soldiers, well equipped, many of whom were on horseback. Most of the gallant leaders of the Quraysh were there.

At first, there was some hesitation and anxiety in the Muslims' camp. But God and the gracious Prophet (peace be upon him) assured them of God's backing and of the imminent victory over the enemy.

3.4 The Qur'ān's Depiction of the Situation

The Qur'an depicted the condition of the Muslims army as follows: Even as your lord caused you to go forth from your home, with the Truth, and surely a party of the believers were averse (to this). They argue with you of the truth, after it has been explained to them, as if they have been driven to death, with their eyes wide open. And when God promised you one of the two bands (of the enemy) that it when you promise you longed that other than the armed one might beyours. But God willed that the truth should triumph by His words and that He would eradicate the unbelievers. [al-Anfal 8:5-7]

The Muslim Companions of the Prophet (peace be upon him) were a superior band of men and women, yet they remained men of flesh and blood, because some of them, at some times, showed visible signs of human weakness and frailty. God had accepted their best offering, and had forgiven their weakness and failings. In the frank, honest and truthful style of the Qur'an, nothing is concealed. no embarrassment is meant, only to display and take cognizance of all the facts of the situation. The above Qur'anic verses of al-Anfal make it very clear that the timing of the Battle of Badr was determined by God alone. Other Qur'anic verses convey the same impression.

When you were in the near hill (of the valley) and they were on the farther and the caravan was below you (on the coast plain). And had you made an appointment to meet one another, you surely would have failed to keep the appointment, but (it happened, as it did, without the forethought of either of you), that Allah might conclude a thing that must be done; that he who perished (on that day) might perish by a clear sign, and he who lived, might live by a clear sign. Surely Allah is All-Hearing, All-Knowing. When Allah showed you them, in your dream, as few, and had He shown them as many, you would have lost heart; and quarrelled about the matter but Allah saved (you). He is surely knowing of what is in the breasts (of man). And when He showed them, when you encountered, in your eyes (Muslims) as few and made you few in their eyes, that Allah may conclude a matter that must be done. Unto Allah all matters are returned. [al-Anfāl 8:42-44]

Thus, the impression is further confirmed that Badr had been lusival. exclusively conceived and meticulously executed by God alone; that the Prophet, the Muslims and the Quraysh unbelievers were all drawn into it by ward. into it by various devices of Divine making. Moreover, God prepared

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam the stage for the battle, and eventually sent His soldiers of the angels, the stage for the battle, and eventually sent this solutions of the angelog dressed like Arabs, with white turbans, and led by Gabriel himself The Qur'an gives minute details of God's involvement and the help He rendered to the Muslims, and the defeat which He inflicted

When you were crying and calling upon your Lord for help, and He answered you: I will reinforce you with a thousand angels, riding behind you... Allah wrought this not, save as good tidings, and that your hearts thereby might be at rest. Victory comes only from Allah. Surely Allah is All-Mighty, All-Wise. When He was causing slumber to fall upon you, as a reassurance from Him, and sent down water from the sky upon you, that thereby He might purify you, and remove from you the defilement of Satan, and to strengthen your heart, and to confirm your feet. When your Lord was revealing to the angels, 'I am with you, so confirm the believers, I shall cast into the hearts of the unbelievers terror; so smite upon the necks, and smite every finger of them. [al-Anfāl 8:9-12]

Notwithstanding all these demonstrations from the Qur'an, that God was Himself commanding the Muslims' side on the Battle of Badr, the Qur'an, at the same time, makes it amply clear that God's succour was not meted out arbitrarily. In some sense, it was succour well-deserved by the Muslims, because they had been severely tried, and they had withstood the trial for almost fifteen years, since the beginning of the call to Islam in Makkah. Badr itself was yet another such tremendous trial, and they had succeeded in it, when they were few in numbers and poorly armed, half-hungry, and with no previous experience in combat. They fought gallantly, and they successfully

The Quranic text went straight to emphasize this aspect of the

Those only are the believers who, when God is mentioned, their hearts quake, and when His verses recited to them, it increases them in faith, and in their Lord they put their trust. Those who perform the prayer, and expend of what We have provided them, those are the prayer, and experiment are degrees (of honour) with their Lord, and forgiveness and generous provision. [al-Anfal 8:2-4]

In order that God's victory would be complete for them, the Qu'an exhorted the Muslims of Badr to live up to what was expected of them, when they met their enemy on the battlefield. This was their role, which they had to fulfil, if they were to qualify, in the decisive last moments, for God's victory, which was already close at hand:

O believers, when you encounter the unbelievers marching to battle. turn not your backs to them. Whoever turns his back to them on that day, unless manoeuvring for battle, or intent to join another host, he has truly incurred anger from Allah, and his abode will be Hell, and evil homecoming. [al-Anfal 8:15-16]

The two armies met in the early morning of Friday, 17th Ramadan. Before they marched to the battleground, the army of the Quraysh was hidden from the eyes of the Muslims by the hill of 'Aqanqal'. That morning, the Quraysh army crossed that hill and came down its slope, into the valley of Badr to face the Muslims. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) caught sight of them, he prayed passionately:

O Lord! Here are Quraysh: they have come in their arrogance and their vanity, opposing You, and belying Your Messenger. Lord! Your victory which you have promised me! Lord! should this (Muslim) company perish today You will not be worshipped on this earth. O Lord! This morning destroy them!

When the two armies met, the Angels and other soldieries of God were already at work, setting the stage of the battleground in such a way that it would be advantageous to the Muslims, and disadvantageous to the unbelievers:

The sky rained heavily making the grounds transverse where the unbelieves unbelievers stood, muddy and heavy and very difficult to walk

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam upon. The nature of the soil where the Quraysh troops were upon. The nature of the soft that rain had that kind of effect upon it. While stationed was such that rain had that kind of effect upon it. the nature of soil where the Muslims stood was sandy and the rain had a very congenial effect upon it, making it firmer and

The weather became cool, and a pleasant breeze swept across the Muslims' faces. They became drowsy, as they stood there, to the extent that the swords fell out of the hands of some of them. They would pick them up to drop them once more. This strange state of affairs continued for a few minutes just before the melee took place! But it had a wonderful refreshing effect upon them. They became relaxed, their hearts relieved from fears and anxieties, their heads became cool and clear, and their energy and stamina revived.

- c. Due to the fatigue, many of them experienced orgasm and rain water cleansed and purified them from janābah (i.e. the state of being unclean after experiencing orgasm). It also cleansed them from the dirt and dust they incurred, during the week-long journey from Madinah.
- d. God caused their hearts to be reassured, their minds to be at rest, and the enemy was belittled in their eyes.
- e. Terror was one of God's formidable hosts and soldiers, one that was the Prophet's privilege to always have at his side. He was supported by it 'I have been helped and made victorious with Ru'b' (i.e. Terror), the Gracious Prophet (peace be upon him)
- Last but not least, the angels were there, ready to join the battle
- g. Moreover, the Prophet, while imploring his Lord passionately went into a trance and was actually shown the outcome of the Battle, with the Muslims achieving a clean and decisive victory over their Quraysh adversaries. The Prophet (peace be upon over their Quisississis of the Muslim troops, and their morale was him) conveyed that the boosted greatly. He told them he was shown who and where boosted greaty. The boosted greaty has been been been been greaty of the Quraysh nobles would fall and be killed. This was many of the Quality was an outstanding miracle of the Prophet (peace be upon him). an outstanding, because those whom he had said would be killed of the Quraysh nobles were indeed killed on that day, and fell precisely on the spots he had indicated for them.

@ 46 D

4. STRIKING FEATURES OF BADR

As we have seen, Badr was accompanied by many phenomena that could be described as supernatural; such as we have referred to above. On the other hand, it was also marked by actions and events, which could be described, as superhuman. Some of what the Muslims did and said seemed truly superhuman.

- a. First and foremost, we have seen the fortitude and stamina of the Prophet (peace be upon him), walking at the age of fiftyfour, at least two-thirds of the distance between Madinah and Badr, a distance of more than eighty miles, during Ramadan and the hot season. We have seen his humility and modesty, his compassion for his Companions, and his regard and respect for their opinions and wishes.
- $b. \ \ \, \text{Then we must praise the high mindedness and the utter devotion}$ and dedication of the Muhājirīn. They joined the campaign almost to a man, none opting to stay behind, despite the long struggle, the suffering and the hardships they had been through, since the inception of Islam.
- c. We must also praise the high-mindedness of the Anṣār, who were not confused or deterred by the changing situation, and who were ready and willing to amend their contractual obligation to support and defend the Prophet (peace be upon him). We must

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam also praise the Ansar for honouring the commitment made on also praise the August 101 Household their behalf by their chief, Sa'd ibn Mu'adh, even though they

There was the example of 'Umayr of Banu Zahrah of the Muhājirīn, who was only fifteen years old, and who implored the Prophet (peace be upon him) to let him participate in the fight, and who had stood on his toe in order to appear taller than he was.

- e. There was the case of Sawad ibn Ghaziyah of the Anṣar, who received a light pinch from the Prophet's arrow in his belly, because he was standing outside the line. Sawad protested that he had been hurt and wanted to have retaliation from the person of the Prophet (peace be upon him). The Prophet (peace be upon him) immediately agreed and uncovered his gracious body so that Sawad could give him a prick, tit for tat. However, Sawad had something totally different in mind; for his real motive was to have a chance to kiss the body of the Prophet, lest he might fall a martyr. We also take note of the Prophet's keen sense of justice, his humility, his compassion for his Companions and his disregard for his personal rights and privileges, his complete disinterestedness and absolute altruism.
- There was the story of 'Umayr ibn al-Humām, of Banū Salamah, who was eating some dates out of his hand when he heard the Prophet (peace be upon him) saying: 'No man shall fight them today with forbearance and for God's sake, going forward against them and get killed, save that he will be taken to Paradise." 'Umayr, hearing that, said: 'Bakhin! Bakhin! Is it not the case that nothing stands between me and Paradise except those people killing me?' Then he threw away those dates and fought until he
- g. Another Muslim, by the name of 'Awf ibn al-Ḥārith asked the Prophet (peace be upon him): 'What is it that makes God quite pleased with his servant?' (Literally: What makes God laugh out of pleasure with his servant). 'For him to fight bare-bodied out of pleasure when some out of pleasure wh against the unotine (cts) of his armour and fought the enemy. bare-bodied until he was killed.

h. There was also the example of Abū Bakr, the most tender hearted of the Companions of the Prophet (peace be upon him) He fought his own son 'Abd al-Raḥmān who chose to side with the Ouraysh: What happened to my money (in Makkah) evil-hearted man, 'It has all gone! O old man,' replied 'Abd al-Rahman. Later 'Abd al-Rahman became a Muslim and once mentioned the battle of Badr. 'You know, father, I could have killed you at Badr. because I had more than one chance of doing that but I spared you,' Said 'Abd al-Rahman. 'By Him in whose hands is my soul had I found one chance of killing you, I wouldn't have spared you,' reported Abū Bakr.

5. WHY WERE THE QURAYSH DEFEATED?

Despite their superior military strength, the Quraysh were defeated for the following reasons:

- a. First of all, they had no just cause. If the Prophet (peace be upon him) took the offensive against them at Badr, attacking their commercial caravan, they had before that committed many acts of aggression against the interests of the Muslims, not least among these was the appropriation of the Muslim's wealth and property at Makkah during the Hijrah.
- b. The Quraysh lacked a unified command, and they had no unity of purpose. Actually they were divided on the issue of resorting to fighting, when their caravan reached Makkah safely. There were 'hawks' and 'doves' among them.
- c. God was against them, and so were the hosts of God and the angels. How could they win a war against God?

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam d. The Muslims were united, determined to uphold the banner of

Ine Musinis were united, determined to apply the later was the later, and settle scores with their foes. Moreover, there was the prospect of entering Paradise if they achieved martyrdom. They prospect or entering rations and a divine call, and they were eager to see the word of God rule supreme. The Quraysh had no such goals or

6. WHAT WERE THE MAIN RESULTS OF BADR? Badr represented the sweetest of the Muslims' victories. It represented a turning point in the history of Islam, when the hard times experienced by the Muslims began to change for the better. It was a battle with the most far-reaching consequences.1

- a. Quraysh military might was largely destroyed!
- b. Their image in Arabia, especially among the power-conscious Bedouins, was considerably tarnished.
- c. The Muslims of Madinah gained tremendously in recognition and prestige, and were put in a much stronger position to pursue further the task of building a community and Ummah dedicated to the worship of God alone, as well as the realization of the ideals of brotherhood, justice and equality.
- d. Although Badr did not mark the end of the military power of the Quraysh, nor even the end of their capacity to start fresh military hostilities, yet it considerably weakened their resolve and morale. The weakening of their general military strength would become apparent in their coming offensives against the Muslims.
- e. The loss of such prominent Quraysh leaders such as Abū Jahl and 'Utbah would be keenly felt, when the Quraysh planned the next expedition against the Muslims. Abū Jahl represented the motive force for the Quraysh whereas 'Utbah represented their

@ 50 D

- f. Moreover, the life-line of Quraysh trade was cut by the battle of Moreover, the life in Markey Moreover, the hard after Badr, venture outside of Makkah Badr. No caravan Could have and the Mediterranean ports constituted Yet the trade and trade, an eventuality which also meant the bulk of the Quraysh trade, an eventuality which also meant that their economic power was considerably weakened in the wake of Badr.
- g. One of the important lessons of Badr is that the sheer number of troops is not the decisive factor in achieving victory. The Quraysh troops were three times as many as the Muslim troops. They were by far the better equipped and the better trained in the arts of
- h. Although supernatural phenomena attended Badr, and God and His hosts and His angels were clearly on the Muslims' side, yet that divine help and succour was not arbitrarily given. It was, in some sense, a consequence of the total dedication and steadfastness of the Muslims. It was a contingent of their faith, trust and total dependence upon their Lord. Their offerings, obedience and the love of God and His Messengers were important reasons why God's help and victory, promised in the Qur'an, were quite at hand, once the Muslims managed to come forward to the battleground of jihād.
- i. Last but not least, Badr provides an example of a situation when war, ugly as it is, becomes absolutely justifiable. It becomes the ultimate measure and ultimate escape for the oppressed and the downtrodden. It provides them with their last chance to emancipate themselves, and get rid of their enemies and oppressors. A justifiable war is both a natural<sup>2</sup> and decisive way to resolve a long drawn out struggle, when that struggle has reached an impasse and resists every attempt to resolve it

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam

As the dust of the Battle of Badr settled, the astounding victory of the Muslims became clear, and the terrible defeat of the Quraysh was a material reality. The Muslims rejoiced, while the Quraysh wept profoundly over the demise of their best fighting force and the death of some of their most cherished leaders:

- 'Amr ibn Hishām, leader of Banū Makhzūm. . 'Utbah ibn Rabī'ah, leader of Banū 'Abd al-Dār, the father of
- Hind and father-in-law of Abū Sufyān.
- · Al-Walid ibn 'Utbah, brother of Hind.
- Shaybah ibn Rabīʿah, brother of ʿUtbah.
- Umayyah ibn Khalaf, an outstanding leader and elder statesman of the Quraysh.
- · And many others.

The total number of those killed on the side of the Quraysh was seventy, according to Al-Wāqidī³ including the two men executed on the orders of the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself. Others fell captive to the Muslims, because they had committed the heinous crime of cursing the Messenger of God. The executed men were 'Utbah ibn Abi Mu'adh and al-Naḍr ibn al-Ḥārith.

'Utbah ibn Abi Mu'adh was the immediate neighbour of the Prophet (peace be upon him) at Makkah, before the Hijrah. He was the source of constant harassment to the Prophet(peace be upon him), and his Muslim Companions. He even forced his sons to divorce the daughters of the Prophet. He used to put dirt on the threshold of the Prophet, and one day, finding the Prophet (peace be upon him) prostrating in prayer, he put the afterbirth from a sheep on his head. He was generally active in the campaign to persecute and oppress the Muslims at Makkah. Likewise, al-Naḍr ibn al-Ḥārith did a lot to hurt the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his Companions at Makkah. the Prophet (peace be upon like) the Prophet (peace be upon like) before the Hijfan, He will be rophet (peace be upon him) and his Companions.

7.1 The Captives Well-Treated

Apart from these two cases, the Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered the Muslims to treat the captives well, especially his uncle al- 'Abbās. Al-'Abbās, a long time friend of the Muslims and chief of Bann Hāshim, the traditional protectors of the Muslims at Makkah, had heen forced to join the army of the Quraysh, marching to Badr. 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb asked the Prophet's permission to break the front teeth of Suhaylibn 'Amr, another vicious propagandist, who had given the Muslims a very hard time at Makkah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) refused to give such permission, saying: 'I shall not mutilate anyone under any circumstances, lest God should mutilate me, even though I am His Prophet.'

7.2 Controversy Over the Captives of Badr

What to do about the captives of Badr, numbering about seventy, developed in an open controversy. On the one hand, the Prophet (peace be upon him) and Abū Bakr al-Siddīq favoured the view that the captives should be spared and ransom money accepted for their release. On the other hand, 'Umar advocated that they should be killed. They were combatants of considerable strength, and if they were set free, what was the guarantee that they would not take the field against the Muslims once more, argued 'Umar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb. But the tender-hearted Prophet (peace be upon him), and his principal minister and friend Abū Bakr, being of a very similar disposition himself, both abhorred the possibility of bloodshed. Further, many of the captives were related to the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his larger family Banu Hāshim. There were al-'Abbās, his uncle, and Abū al-Āṣ ibn al-Rabi' his own son in-law, the husband of his beloved Zaynab. The Prophet's compassion towards the Hashimites was not

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam primarily a matter of nepotism or favouritism, it was prompted and had protected and sided with them during their difficult and The Prophet (peace be upon him) knew very well and appreciated

The favour which the Muslims owed to Hashimites who dictated by such factual considerations as:

- the potential of the Quraysh, both as a military and as a diplomatic force in Arabia. He hoped and prayed that one day he would be able to use that potential in the battlefield to pacify Arabia and defend it once it swung under the control of Islam. The Prophet (peace be upon him) prophesied that the emergence of the political power of Islam in Arabia would provoke the enmity and opposition of the two superpowers of the day, 'The Romans and the Persians.' When that happened, as it was destined to happen, he would be in need of the power and the human resources of the Arab elite of the Ouravsh.
- c. Moreover, the money that they would get as a ransom was much needed and could be put to some very useful purposes.
- d. Kind treatment and sparing the captives of the Quraysh was more conducive to the pacification of the Quraysh than their
- e. Having decided to spare the captives, the Prophet (peace be upon him) put them to the useful purpose of teaching the Muslims how to read and write. He accepted money as ransom from some of them, but asked the Muslims' permission to set his son-in-law free without ransom, because he had nothing to offer except a necklace, which his wife, Zaynab, managed to produce, but which originally belonged to Khadijah, the Prophet's much beloved

The whole affair of the captives was settled in accordance with the Prophet's opinion, and they were all set free, eventually. But the matter was not let to rest, at that level. Qur'anic verses were revealed matter was not let to test, at the later (see below) which, in effect, approved of 'Umar's position that all later (see below) which, he captives be killed, with the exception of the the combatants among the captives be killed, with the exception of the the combatants among the rophet (peace be upon him), especially Hashimites relatives of the Prophet (peace be upon him), especially al-Abbās, because of their earlier service to Muslims.

7,3 The Qur'an Comments on the Issue of War Captives The Qur'anic comment on the captives' question is as follows:

It does not behave a Prophet to hold war captives, until he makes wide slaughter in the land; you desire the passing goods of this world and Allah desires (for you) the Hereafter, and Allah is All-Might All-wise, [al-Anfal 8:67]

This verse must have been severe for the Muslims, because it had in clear and unambiguous language exposed a typical human weakness in some of the Badr fighters, namely the love of the passing goods of this world. That some of the Badr referees suffered from this typical human weakness, was amply demonstrated in two occasions during the march to Badr.

- a. Firstly, some of them strongly disliked the possibility of having to clash with the Quraysh in the battlefield, as if they are being driven to death, their eyes wide open.
- b. Secondly, there was the wrangling over the question of how war spoils were to be distributed, a matter which gave a noble sūrah of the Qur'an its name: namely Surah al-Anfal, whose opening verses dealt with this verse.
- c. The opening verse of Sūrah al-Anfāl should be noted for its frankness, not only criticising the Prophet (peace be upon him) and rebuking the Muslims' wrangling over the war spoils, but also for its stern threat that such wrangling over material things of this world did not behove them, and might even lead to God's severe chastisement against them!

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam

d. The verse strongly hints to the Muslims that they should not, as The verse strongly mins to the reason of their Lord God. God indeed did the Jews, assume the favour of their Lord God. does not favour the Muslims out of mere prejudice for them. They must ensure that their behaviour is righteous, and their dealings fair and straightforward, true to the ideals and norms

The severe attitude of the Qur'anic verse on the captives issue holds several important lessons:

- a. Firstly, it opposes the opinion of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and Abū Bakr, and is more in line with 'Umar's. The fact that it does so, together with the familiar Qur'anic tendency to criticize, blame, rebuke or even threaten the Prophet (peace be upon him) at times, is a proof that Muhammad could not have been the author of the Our'an.
- b. Secondly, the concern over the material welfare of the Muslims as a community is not the overriding Qur'anic concern. More important is the issue of the supremacy of God's word and the salvation of the Muslims in the Hereafter.
- c. The militant tone of this verse is justifiable by the need to vanquish and punish the mischief and aggression of the Quraysh, by destroying their manpower. The Quraysh not only disbelieved the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and opposed God Himself, they forced the Muslims out of their homes.
- d. However, this verse and the one that immediately came after it, display that characteristic pragmatism and tolerance of the Quran: The Muslims, as ordinary human beings were expected at times to display aspects of the weakness and frailties of human nature. In other words, to love the world and its beautiful ornaments is a characteristic human weakness that cannot be totally eradicated. Yet the Muslims were exhorted to resist it to their utmost power. At the same time, the above Qur'anic verse assured the Muslims of God's forgiveness. It even called upon assured the intuition achieved at Badr. The threatening tone them to enjoy the victory achieved at Badr. The threatening tone them to enjoy the more cheerful one of enjoy what you have won: Says God, in the Qur'an:

( 56 D)

Had it not been a prior ordinance of God, an awful doom could have come upon you, on account of what you have taken. Now eat of what you have earned as booty is lawful and good and fear Allah, for surely Allah is All-Forgiving, All-Compassionate [al-Anfal 8:68-69]

8. EPILOGUE ON BADR - A CONCLUDING NOTE: COLOURS AND SOUNDS

8.1 The Banners of Badr

The Muslims' army carried three banners. The one carried by Mus'ab ibn 'Umayr, the renowned Dā'iyah and first Muslim ambassador to Yathrib, was white in colour. The other two banners were black, and they were carried right in front of the Prophet (peace be upon him). One called 'al-'Uqāb' carried by 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib, the Prophet's cousin and son-in-law and the second by one of the Anṣārs.

The war cry of the Muslims was Ahad, Ahad; One, One, God is One, and Ya Mansur amit; Allahu Akbar, God Almighty is the

8.2 The Colours of Angels

Angels appeared at Badr in white costumes, wearing white turbans, which extended behind their back, with Gabriel wearing a yellow turban. They were all on horseback. Gabriel was seen by some descending through the clouds, on that rainy day leading his horse, known as Hayzum. Just before the two armies clashed, the Prophet (peace be upon him) filled his hand with pebbles and threw them at the enemy the enemy, saying:

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam 'Defamed are those faces.' To this act of the Prophet (peace be Detamed are those faces. To this account throw, when you threw, but The descent of the angels from heaven was accompanied by a it was Allah who threw. [al-Anfal 8: 17] tremendous sound. One of the unbelievers heard a voice in the clouds saying: 'Go forward, Ḥayzūm!'

8.3 Quraysh in Dispute

alexander with the said that

The Quraysh disputed hotly among themselves, just before the start of the war. There were two camps: The 'doves' represented by Ḥakīm ibn Hishām, and 'Utbah ibn Rabī 'ah. These wanted the Quraysh to return home and not engage the Muslims in battle. Their caravan had arrived safely in Makkah and, after all, Muḥammad (peace be upon him) and the Muslims, especially the Muhājirīn, were their own kith and kin. Should they engage them in war, the result would be the unpleasant one of killing each other, and the Quraysh side would become bitter and divided, as some of them would have killed their fathers and brothers. If Muhammad (peace be upon him) became victorious, then his glory is the glory of the Quraysh and if the other Arabs prevailed over him, that was what they wanted. But the 'hawks', represented by 'Amribn Hishām (Abū Jahl), accused 'Utbah and Ḥakīm ibn Hishām of cowardice and vowed not to go back to Makkah until Muḥammad and the Muslims had been routed.

8.4 Bilāl Versus Umayyah ibn Khalaf

Bilāl, seeing his former master and oppressor Umayyah ibn Khalaf, shouted as they charged against him: 'Umayyah ibn Khalaf the head of disbelief, I may not live if he lives!' Bilal dealt a fatal blow to Umayyah who, together with his son, was captured by 'Abd al-Raḥmān ibn Awf. But Bilal would not allow his old enemy to escape alive that day,

8.5 'Ukāshah going forward to Paradise

Ukāshah ibn Miḥsan lost his sword on the day of Badr, because it was broken into two halves during the fighting. He called to the Propher broken into two hards of the Prophet (peace be upon him): 'I have lost my sword!' The Prophet (peace be (peace be upon him) gave him a long piece of wood. When 'Ukāshah shook it upon min) gardinar snook it in his hand, it became a real sword of steel, yet another miracle of the Prophet (peace be upon him) on that fateful day.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: 'Some men of my Ummah fifty thousand of them, will enter paradise, their faces shining like the full moon, 'Ukāshah said: 'O Prophet of God, pray that I am one of them.'You are one of them, O'Ukāshah.' Another man came forward and asked: 'May I be of them?' 'No, 'Ukāshah has preceded you in that' said the Prophet (peace be upon him).

8.6 O People of the Grave!

In the evening of the day of Badr, when the corpses of the unbelievers had been buried, the Prophet (peace be upon him) stood over the ditch, where they were collectively buried, and called out to them; 'O people of the ditch, have you found what God has promised you to be true? For I have found what God has promised me to be true!' The Muslims protested: 'O Messenger of God, how do you address dead people?' You do not hear better than they! Only they can not reply!' said the Prophet(peace be upon him).

8.7 'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd versus Abū Jahl

The killing of Umayyah ibn Khalaf by the former Abyssinian slave, Sayyidunā Bilāl signalled a major shift in the balance of power in Arabia. The Quraysh were no longer the dominant power. The Muslims had just come into that position. Umayyah ibn Khalaf represented the old, now vanquished power, of the aristocracy of the Quraysh, its prestige, arrogance, vanity and military and commercial strength. Now it was people like Bilal and 'Abdullah ibn Mas'ūd, who was an ordinary As-1 ordinary Arab employed as a shepherd by Abū Jahl, who emerged as

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam the new elite. On the day of Badr, ibn Mus ud killed Abu Jahl. Later, the new enter. On the day of bases, and was a renowned he distinguished himself as a governor of Başrah, and was a renowned scholar of Qur'anic exegesis, and renowned also for his melodious recitation of the Qur'an. The Prophet (peace be upon him) used to comment on Ibn Mas 'ūd's manner of the recitation of the Qur'an: Whoever desires to hear the Qur'an as it has been revealed to me, let him listen to the recitation of ibn 'Abd,' (meaning 'Abdullāh ibn

Abdullah ibn Mas td was the foremost among the Muslim activists in Makkah. Of a small, slight frame, he was to be seen everywhere in Makkah, during those early days. For this reason, he had borne a great deal of the wrath of the Quraysh, and their persecution. His employer, Abū Jahl, had been particularly severe upon him. On the day of Badr, the scores were set even. Having managed to kill Abū Jahl, who was of a great physical stature, and also had great marshal courage, ibn Mas 'ūd climbed on the top of the towering figure of his enemy. Abū Jahl, who was dying, opened his eyes and recognized ibn Mas'ūd, sitting on his chest. He said: 'Ibn Mas'ūd, the little shepherd of our sheep, you have indeed climbed a difficult climb!' Then he closed his eyes and died.

When the Prophet (peace be upon him) entered Madinah, the next day, people met him at the outskirts to salute and congratulate him. One Muslim soldier boasted: 'On what do you congratulate us! We met a group of old, hairless persons, and we easily cut them.' 'Wait a minute, son of my brother,' protested the Prophet (peace be upon him), "those were the Mala". Those were the Mala', meaning that the People defeated at Badr were the notables and chiefs of Arabia, people of honour, prestige and wealth. That Muslim soldier who made the naïve comment about the power of the Quraysh, whom the Muslims had just vanquished, had clearly failed to see the significance of the events of that day. That is why the Prophet (peace be upon him)

8.8 The Full Significance of Badr

We have already said that Badr was not an isolated event in the We have already said the history of Islam. Rather, it was the culmination of unusual events history of Island. that the third were taking shape in Arabia, in rapid succession, and constituting that were taking simply a major process in which history was made and remade. Badr was the a major process in logical outcome of the struggle initiated by the Prophet's call to pure monotheism. Moreover, Badr had its monumental consequences in the history of Islam, launching the new power of the Muslim state of al-Madinah, and terminating the hegemony of the Quraysh.

But it is the significance of Badr as a permanent feature of the methodology of Islamic da'wah that must be highlighted here. For Badr is a major sign-post in the way of bringing about an Islamic transformation, and the re-ordering of a particular setting of human reality, whereby this reality will submit and conform to the pattern ordained by God, to which the Qur'an refers. No Islamic transformation can be effected without a Badr stage; because it is, in the very nature of things, that evil powers would attempt to obstruct the Islamic project. God has told us, in the Qur'an, that the strife and struggle between belief and unbelief is inevitable. It is a matter divinely ordained to test the Muslims' will, on the one hand, and to vanquish and destroy evil, on the other hand. Thus every successful Islamic movement, every true Muslim community, must find its Badr and win it. Thus Badr is part of God's grand design for Muslims and any Islamic movement. The Qur'an comments on the inevitability of Badr in the following way: Succour comes only from Allah, the All-Mighty, All-Wise and that He may cut off a part of those who disbelieve or overwhelm them, that they turn in their tracks unsuccessful. [Āl 'Imrān 3:126-127]

Moreover, verses 38-41 of Sūrah al-Ḥajj, make it very clear that the permission which God gave to the Muslims, to fight back in selfdefence, was given with an eye to Badr in particular. If this reading is correct, then Badr must be seen as an idea, a device and a strategy which was a strategy with the strategy which was a strategy with the strategy with the strategy which was a strategy with the strategy with the strategy was a strategy with the strategy with the strategy with the strategy with the strategy was a strategy with the strategy with the strategy with the strategy was a strategy with the strategy with which was God-ordained to achieve the objectives mentioned in those yerses namely. verses, namely to redress the injustices suffered, to destroy the enemies of Islam, to confident the maker of Islam, to confident th of Islam, to confirm the Muslims in their homes and land and to make

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam them feel contented, peaceful, secure and well established in the land. That waging war (i.e. just war) was not merely seen as an exercise in Nat wagung was read to a substantially, it was seen as an effective tool and device by means of which the enemy was led to its destruction, so that it would no longer obstruct the road to supremacy of God's word and grand design for humanity. But so long as there is good and evil, the conflict between them is inevitable, and the side of goodness must not shy away from doing whatever it takes to defeat evil and establish goodness and godliness on earth!

An Islamic movement which is presented with the opportunity to find its Badr, but hesitates and loses that chance, will not be successful in its endeavour. It will stagnate or be destroyed by its enemies, having missed its Badr. This type of Islamic movement would be a spent force which, having missed its Badr would not be able to transform from the Badr to post-Badr, stage. At most, its existence will be a kind of arrested growth, fossilized and senile. On the other hand, an Islamic movement which rushes its pre-Badr stage, and moves to a stage of confrontation too early, without fulfilling its prerequisites and before allowing conditions for a successful confrontation, will be destroyed, and its growth will be aborted, thus suffering defeat or annihilation prematurely. A third type of Islamic movement may fail to reach the Badr stage because its growth has been arrested or prevented, or because its membership do not possess the necessary energy or the know-how which would enable them to develop and progress. In so far as the Islamic process of social change, leading to a total Islamic transformation, is a dynamic process, a genuine Islamic movement that follows the true Prophetic model of da'wah and jihād, in the wide sense of adopting the right resources and right methodology, will, by its very nature, move forward to its destined Badr stage in a teasonable time, most probably during the lifetime of its authentic leader, and its true and dedicated rank and file.

One sure indicator that an Islamic movement has matured, and reached its Badr stage, will be the readiness of its leader, as well as its rank and file, to take the calculated risk of challenging their adversaries on the battlefield, when they have become reasonably sure adversaries on the battlefield, when they have become reasonably sure that they enjoy a clear advantage over them. The Qur'ān<sup>5</sup> describes the Companions of the Prophet at Badr as possessing tremendous wilpower, and physical as well as moral courage, to fight the enemy wilpower, and physical as well as moral courage, to fight the combined The strength of one believer was the equal to that of the combined strength of ten unbelievers. When later, the Muslims became weakened by their desire for worldly things, their valour was reduced to just double that of the unbelievers. The Qur'ān also described the Muslims as God-fearing, patient and dedicated to the cause of upholding God's word, and of loving God, and His Messenger more than they loved themselves. It was these characteristics which made them merit and deserve God's help and succour, rendered to them by the sending of His angels to fight along their side. These characteristics were summed up in the opening verses of Sūrah al-Anfāl in which the story of the Battle of Badr is given in considerable detail:

Those only are the true believers who when God is mentioned, their hearts quake, and when His verses are recited to them, they increase them in faith, and in their Lord they put their trust, those who perform the prayer (Ṣalāt) expend of what we have provided of them. These are the true believers. They have high degrees with their Lord and forgiveness and generous provision. [al-Anfāl 8:2-4]

9. EPILOGUE

Our conclusion deals with the issue of religious persecution. The Qur'an does not accept any excuse or justification from a Muslim for willingly allowing himself to suffer religious oppression. If a Muslim is not literally imprisoned or materially held down, then he is not to be reprieved or excused if he passively submits and bows down to oppression. This issue was high in the agenda, featuring in the discussions among Muslims, in the wake of Badr, when some of those killed fighting with the Quraysh were in fact Muslims who had failed to make the hijrah to Madīnah and were caught up in the hostilities between the Muslims and the Quraysh. This was the case of some

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam

The Great Epic of Badr: An Astounding Victory of Islam

Muslim members of Banū Hāshim, who had been forced to join the with the August Marine Was revealed to the army of the Quraysh. A decisive Qur'anic verse was revealed, that one army of the Quraysh. A decisive Qur'anic verse was sealed, that one Prophet (peace be upon him), and the matter was sealed, that of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the With Galls to rise up against religious oppression does so at the risk of the risk oppression does so at the risk of the risk oppression does of the risk op who taus to receive the feeble among men, and the women, and the children, who are unable to devise a plan, and are not shown a way out. [al-Nisā' 4:97-98]

Thus the Qur'an' consoled the Muslims that they were not responsible for the death of those Muslims, who, through their failure to act in earnest, to make the hijrah to Madīnah, found themselves compelled by their situation to fight alongside the unbelievers at Badr. The Muslims were not to blame for the sad and tragic fate of those negligent Muslims. The issues relating to the wider question of the Pax Islamica have been discussed in a preceding book. They are part and parcel of the wider issue of Muwālāt (allegiance to Muslims) which is a necessary condition for extending the Pax Islamica to Muslims, in a land which is not under Islamic rule, nor a land of Amān, i.e. a risking both his life and quality of his faith.

The Battle of Uhud: A Temporary Setback

1. PROLOGUE

It is said that every war has its seeds in some preceding war or conflict. This maxim could not have been more true than it was in the Battle of Uhud. Thus Uhud was, in effect, a direct consequence of the Battle of Badr.

The first reaction of the Quraysh to the news coming from Badr was one of disbelief, as they were so shocked by their defeat at the hands of the by far inferior force of the Muslims. Indeed it is very hard now, as it was then, to offer a materialistic or purely empirical explanation of superior performance of the Muslim army at Badr. This is a further proof of the Qur'anic explanation that the Muslims were aided by supernatural powers. As a matter of fact, both Muslims and the Quraysh agreed that the battle of Badr was decided rather swiftly, and that mysterious figures, dressed in white costumes and piebald horses, participated in the fighting.

2. QURAYSH MOURN THEIR DEAD

At first, Quraysh vowed not to mourn their dead, lest the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims should delight over their grief. But they could not maintain this posture, as the tide of their grief and anger rose day by day. As the terrible scale of their defeat became more

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback manifest, they started to mourn with the most profound sorrow and manurest, une and the Quraysh, none grieved so much as Hind bint Utbah ibn Rabi ah, wife of Abū Sufyān ibn Ḥarb, the head of the Quraysh opposition. Hind lost her father, her brother, and her uncle in the Battle of Badr. As the days passed, her grief grew into hatred and enmity, and the determination for revenge. Revenge-seeking, typical of the pre-Islamic Arabian personality, became a consummate obsession for Hind. Hind vowed not to touch ointment or perfumes, not allow her husband to approach her until she had avenged her dead at Badr, and until such time as she witnessed Muḥammad defeated in the battleground. Her husband, Abū Sufyān ibn Ḥarb, vowed not to cleanse himself until he made the scores even with Muhammad on the battleground.

3. THE JEWS OF BANŪ QAYNUQĀ ' BREAK COVENANT

The situation was further complicated by a grave development that poisoned the relationship between the Muslims and the Jews, which had generally been pacific up to that event, because of the covenant of peace that existed between them and the Muslims. 2 A Muslim woman went to a jeweller who happened to be a Jew, in the market of the city of Madinah, situated in the Jewish quarters of Banū Qaynuqā'. The Madinan Jews enjoyed substantial monopoly of the trade and commerce there. The Muslim woman was covered up, in her Muslim hijāb. The Jewish jeweller tried to seduce her and asked her to uncover her face, When she refused, he resorted to an indecent trick. He tipped off his assistant to pin the lower part of her dress to her back so that when she rose to get out, she was exposed. She shouted in horror and shame as the two Jews laughed. A Muslim passer-by heard and Saw what happened. He leapt at the Jews, killing one of them. The Jews of the market-place crowded around the Muslim and managed to kill him. The Muslims of Madinah heard of the incident and the Muslims and Jews were, for the first time, on the verge of armed conflict. The Prophet (peace be upon him) tried to solve the situation peacefully. He rebuked the Jews of Banū Qaynuqā' for having broken peacefully. He recording broken their covenant with him, and asked them to pay ransom for the killed their covenant with him, and asked them to pay ransom for the killed their covenant with the killed their covenant with the killed Muslim. But the Jews were defiant: O Muḥammad! Do not fall under with the people whom we invincible. The people whom we will be the people who we will be the people who we will be the people who will be the people who we will be the people who we will be the people who will be the people whom we will be the people who will be the people whom we will be the people whom the people who will be the people who will be the people who will be the people whom the people who will be the people who will be the people who will be the people whom the people whom the people who will be the people whom the people whom the people who will be the people whom the people whom the people whom the people who will be the people whom the Muslim, but the kell under the illusion that you are invincible. The people whom you met at Badr the illusion that you are invincible. the illusion unaryout at Badr had no knowledge of warfare. By God, if you were to wage war upon us, you would find us a formidable enemy.'3

Failing to sway them to peace, the Prophet (peace be upon him) resorted to a more drastic measure. He quickly mobilized the Muslims, and the Banū Qaynuqā' found themselves blocked in their quarter. The blockade lasted for fifteen days, at the end of which they surrendered. The Prophet (peace be upon him) ruled that they were to vacate the city of Madinah. They were not to take their armaments or their machinery, but only such light personal effects as they could carry. They moved north and settled in Adhri at, near southern boundaries of Palestine.

Of course, the incident of the Muslim woman, who was maltreated by the Jewish jeweller and his assistant, was not an isolated one. For the Jewish reaction to the victory of the Muslims at Badr, was one of open resentment and anger, mixed with increasing sense of insecurity, and anxiety for their status in Madinah. But above all, they were angry to see Muhammad (peace be upon him) growing in power and prestige. Their community was rife with resentment, and they talked ill of Muhammad and the Muslims. Due to their nearness to the Muslims, since they lived in the city centre, and because they mixed freely with the Muslims in the market place, some of their ill-talk reached the Muslims. Moreover, the Qur'an had informed the Prophet (peace be upon him) of their state of mind and warned him against them, and their scheming. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was strongly urged, in the Qur'an, not to hesitate to sever his covenant with them:

Say (O Muhammad) unto those who disbelieve: you shall be defeated, and gathered unto Hell, an evil cradling. There has already been a sign for you in the two parties that encountered: one party fighting in the way of God, and another unbelieving, they saw them twice their (-1) their (real) number, clearly with their own eyes. Thus God supports

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback with His Help whom He wills. Surely in that is a lesson for those with Selling and the

Obviously, this Qur'anic verse must have been revealed in the interim period between the meeting in the market place, inside the quarters of Banú Qaynuqa and the time of the blockade. Other Qur'anic verses, revealed to the Prophet (peace be upon him) at about this time, with obvious allusions to the affair of Banū Qaynuqā', sought to inform the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims of the real motives, and the real mood of the Madinan Jews in general, and Banū Qaynuqāʻ in particular, so as to educate those who, among the Muslims, still harboured illusions about the possibility of continued friendship and alliance with the Jews. These who still wanted to maintain cordial relations with the Jews included their agelong allies: Sa'd ibn 'Ubādah, Chief of the Khazraj, and Sa'd ibn  $_{\mbox{\scriptsize Mu}}$  adh, chief of the Aws, not to speak of their staunch supporter and their friend, 'Abdullāh ibn Ubayy ibn Salūl. God revealed, concerning the Madinan Jews and the hypocrites the following verses, in the wake of Badr:

O you who believe, take not for your intimates others outside yourselves such men who spare nothing to ruin you: they yearn that you suffer; hatred has already shown itself in the (utterances) of their mouths, but that which they already hide in their breasts even greater. Now, we have made clear to you the revealed verse, if you understand. Ha, there you are, you love them, and they love you not, and you believe in all the Scripture, and when they meet you, they say 'we believe', but when they go apart, they bit their fingers tips at you in rage. Say (O Muhammad), 'Die in your rage! Surely God is aware of what is hidden in (your) breast. If you are visited by good fortune, it vexes them, but if you are smitten by evil, they rejoice at it. Yet if you are patient and God-fearing, then their guile will hurt you nothing. Surely God encompassed all the things they do.

Al-Țabari, in his voluminous commentary on the Qur'an, says on the authority of Qatādah, that the above verses refer not to the hypocrites, but to the People of the Book living in Madinah, not far hypocrites, but to the Very from the Muslims, because the hypocrites did not show open hatred from the Muslims, because of those People of the from the Muslims. But that some of those People of the Book used to the Muslims. But that some of those People of the Book used to to the Muslims. Job them. Sayyid Qutb, in his Fi-Zilāl al-Qur'ān, also openly speak in or the confirms the view that the reference in these verses is to the People confirms the view that the reference in these verses is to the People of the Book in Madinah at that time. Yet, in Qutb's view, the import of these verses is perfectly general.

Thus, these verses must have also been revealed at a time when Muslim-Jewish relations in Madinah were taking a sharp turn for the worse. It is interesting that even so, the Muslim camp still harboured some love and sympathy for their Jewish compatriots, uninformed of the latter's guiles and scheming against them, and completely unaware of the Madinah Jews' increasing violations of the Madinah peace covenant. Especially vocal in his criticism and vilification of the Muslims, was Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, and two other poets among the Jews of Madinah. Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf of the Jews of Banu al-Nadir. could not contain his anger, when he learned about the defeat of the Quraysh at Badr, and openly remarked: 'Those were the nobles of Arabia, and kings of mankind. By God, if Muhammad has slain these men, then the interior of the earth is a better dwelling place for us than the top of it.'8

Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf was so incensed by the news of the victory of the Muslims at Badr, that he even left Madinah before the Prophet's return therein from Badr. Arriving at Makkah, he composed poetry in memory of those killed, and he offered his condolences to their families. However, the main purpose of his trip was to urge the Makkans to seek revenge against Muḥammad (peace be upon him) and the Muslims, and he promised Jewish help to that end. Moreover, he vilified the Prophet (peace be upon him), insulted and cursed him in very foul language, and incensed and provoked the Muslims by composing indecent poetry about their women.

Two men, executed on the order of the Prophet (peace be upon him), Abū Afk of Banū 'Āmir and Asmā' bint Marwān, had both composed poetry insulting and cursing the Prophet and the (peace be The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback upon him) Muslims. These killings had led to further deterioration upon num; prusums. These runnings mad new to the difference deterior action war in Muslim-lewish relations. From that time on, it was plain war in Musulli Jewson to the Affair between the two groups. It must be about this time that the Affair of Banu Qaynuqa' took place, and it is against the background of these grave and sinister developments that we must seek to understand the conflict between the two groups. These developments were no doubt compounded by the new atmosphere of competition, which was fast developing into an all-out war of survival between them. At the bottom of the conflict was no doubt a profound and total clash between two cultural identities; the Muslims seeing themselves in the light of Qur'anic directives, as the vicegerents of God Almighty, while the lews of Madinah were priding themselves on the legacy of Judah, and that they were of the pure lineage of Abraham. They were of the seed of Jacob, son of Isaac, son of Abraham whereas the Arabs and the Muslims were Hagarites. In the words of the leaders of  $Ban\bar{u}$ Qaynuqā', in the heat of the conflict between them and the Prophet (peace be upon him), the Madinan Jews saw themselves as 'nahnu al-Nāṣ" i.e. 'We are the men, the people that really counted.' They were God's Chosen People! It was during this time that Qur'anic verses must have been revealed which cautioned the Muslims against the scheming of the Jews, and which forbade them to take the Jews in confidence.

4. THE PACIFICATION OF BEDOUINS AROUND MADINAH

The incident of Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, and the slaying of the leaders of the Quraysh at Badr created unrest among the Bedouins of Madīnah. These consisted of a vast network of tribes, extending westward to the coast of the Red Sea, eastward to Iraq and southwards to the vicinity of Makkah. They were greatly alarmed by the events of Badr, and the uncertainty that preceded and followed it. Before Badr, it was the Prophet (peace be upon him) who seized the initiative by contacting them, and securing the alliance of the powerful Banū Khuzā 'ah, in his efforts to strike at the commercial interest of the Quraysh. But after Badt, it was the Quraysh and their Jewish allies who took the first step, capitalizing, no doubt, on the economic plight of the Bedouins, step, capitalizing, no brought by the collapse of the Quraysh commerce and economy, in brought by the compared and middlemen. They used to extend their which they were partners and to receive feet in a condition to the condition that the condition that the condition to the condit which they were really and to receive fees in return. They also protection to the company of the com Now that no caravans were coming by, due to the Muslim blockade, the Bedouins were understandably restless. Some of them were already part of the new order, and they stood to benefit from it in various ways. Their economic needs were obviously taken care of; maybe from their share of the booty, as they fought alongside the Muslims, or even from Zakāt being of the category of 'those whose hearts are to be won.' This inference is inescapable, in view of the fact that the Banū Khuzā'ah managed to maintain their alliance with the Muslims through the difficult phase of the blockade against the Quraysh, during which they had undoubtedly incurred great financial losses. Unless there was some system of reparation and compensation, it would indeed be difficult to explain how they had managed to stick to their alliance with Muhammad (peace be upon him), when that alliance was in direct conflict with their vital interest. An explanation that hinges on questions of religion or morality alone was not tenable, as they, the Khuza ites, were not then Muslims, but only allies of the Muslims. No doubt their long standing rivalry with the Banū Bakr, who were traditional allies of the Quraysh, helped a little to sway them to the side of the Muslims. Whether this sheer rivalry that was the main stay of their alliance with the Muslims must be discounted, because sheer emotion, no matter how strong it is, cannot provide solutions to the mundane demands of everyday living. Thus the stirring of the Bedouins around Madinah was concentrated away from the land of Khuza ah, which remained pacific, that is in the lands to the east and south-east of Madinah.

4.1 The Pacification of the Banū Sulaym

Banu Sulaym and their traditional allies of Banu Ghaṭafān were the chief Bedouin tribes around Madinah to cause concern and insecurity The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback to the Muslims. They were formidable fighters, and of cruel-hearted o the Musium. They were refined in unbelief and hypocrisy. The Qur'anic dispositions and denunciation of the Bedouins cannot be interpreted as universally applicable to all of them, because the Qur'an also speaks kindly applicante to all of those Bedouins who expended in the way of God.8 Thus the of them. Among these, the Bedouins of Banū Sulaym and Ghaṭafān were a prime example. They caused the Muslims of Madinah considerable worries, and were the privy to their defeat in the battle of Ḥunayn.9

It is of Bedouins of this brand and breed that the Qur'an spoke

Being most confirmed in unbelief and hypocrisy and they deserved of as: not to learn of the hudud (limits) of what God has revealed unto His Messenger. [al-Tawbah 9:97]10

News reached the Prophet (peace be upon him), through his informants among the Bedouins, of the stirrings of the formidable Ghatafan and Sulaym. As was his work to do, he took this news very seriously, and acted upon it, decisively and swiftly. Before those Bedouins could march against Madinah, the Prophet (peace be upon him), once more, put his superior war strategy of general mobilization and permanent combat-readiness into action. In a few days of marching, hiding by day, marching by night, the Muslims' army, commanded by the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself, reached the heartland of Ghatafan and Sulaym. When they camped at a place known as Qarqarat al-Kudr, the Prophet (peace be upon him) learned that Sulaym and Ghaṭafān had fled, in every direction to the furthest extremity of their valley, and into the wide open desert. They were in such disarray, because the speed and strength of the Musim response had taken them completely by surprise. Evidence of their disarray was indicated by the fact that they left behind almost all of their animal wealth, amounting to 500 camels. Anyone familiar with the great love which the Bedouins harbour for their camel herds, will easily infer that those Bedouins were struck by terrible fear of the

Muslims' reprisal against their aggressive scheming, which had been wholly unprovoked.

olly unprovoked.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims, likewise, The Propose (Post against Banū Tha labah and Banū Muḥārib at Dhu Amr. Those again, like Banu Sulaym and Ghatafan, ran away at Dhu Aini. Italy and the Prophet (peace be upon him) to remote mountains in Najd, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) to remote mountain to memore and his force returned safely to Madinah, with the booty they had and nis force their encounter with Sulaym and Ghatafan. No booty, however, was captured from Tha 'labah, and Muḥārib.

5. THE MUSLIM BLOCKADE OF THE WESTERN CARAVAN ROUTE

The Ouraysh did not only suffer the terrible humiliation and defeat at Badr, but they also suffered no less affliction due to the Muslim blockade of their vital commerce routes to the north and south. They deliberated about ways and means of dodging the blockade at great length. Eventually, they thought that they could revive the eastern route that passed through Iraq, long abandoned because of its harshness, its remoteness, and the scarcity of water wells on the route. But they had no choice but to try the eastern route. One Ṣafwān ibn Umayyah volunteered to command a trial trip to Syria, through the eastern route traversing Iraq. The caravan would carefully make its way through the friendly territory of Bakr ibn Wā'il, traditional allies of the Quraysh. The scarcity of water could be dealt with as, it being winter time, demand for water would be minimal. However, the Prophet (peace be upon him) was informe that a caravan was ambushed by the Muslims at a place called al-Qaradah. The Muslim commander, the celebrated Zayd ibn Hārithah (formerly Zayd ibn Muhammad), returned with the caravan, worth one hundred thousand Dirhams completely intact. Thus the agony and indignation of the Quraysh and their resolve to wage their war of vengeance reached a climax. War was inevitable, as the Muslim challenge would neither pass away, nor could be evaded. The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback

6. THE MAKKAH MARCH TO UḤUD The stage was set for a new and bloody confrontation at the battlefield. The Quraysh mobilized every possible means and every possible The Qurayan mountained and this decisive battle, in which they resource they could muster for this decisive battle, in which they resource uner sought to avenge their dead and other losses at Badr. A huge army was drawn together, numbering about three thousand soldiers, of whom seven hundred were in full armour, and two hundred on horseback. They were accompanied by three thousand camels for riding, not counting other camels used for transport. At the insistence of Hind, the women of the Quraysh joined the expedition in great colours and musical companies, singing and dancing. Some of the Abyssinians of the Quraysh joined in the expedition, thus greatly adding to its colours and might. Al-'Abbās, uncle of the Prophet, was fearful for the fate of his nephew and the Muslims. It was al- 'Abbās who hired a man from Makkah to warn the Prophet (peace be upon him) of the

6.1 News of Quraysh's March reaches the Prophet

As the grim news reached the Prophet (peace be upon him) of the new Quraysh offensive – news which can hardly have been a surprise, in view of the effective economic blockade which the Muslims enforced against the Quraysh, he quickly called a public meeting, to which all Muslims were invited. The hypocrites were not excluded. The meeting debated the best way to meet the advancing army. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was of the view that it was best to let the encounter take place in the city itself. The Muslims would be entrenched in the houses of Madinah, as the fighting would be in the streets and from house to house. This way, the Quraysh force would be deprived of two major advantages - its relatively large cavalry contingent, and its superiority in numbers -since the whole force would have to act in small units, to engage in hand-to-hand street fighting. 'Abdullāh ibn Abī Salūl, chief of the hypocrites, was of the same opinion as the Prophet (peace be upon him). He argued that this was the way in which Madinah had traditionally and successfully defended itself in the past.

6.2 The Prophet Holds a Shūrā Council

The younger Muslims, however, were of a different opinion. They The younger Musilian, They wanted to march out to meet the enemy, fearful that fighting inside wanted to march out to march out to do the city would be interpreted as cowardice, and moreover would the city would be interpreted as cowardice, and moreover would the city would be allowed they were seeking to defend. These younger entail destruction of whom had missed the opportunity to participate Muslims, many or participate in Badr, and were keen to make up for it, were the more vocal party. In Badt, and the Hotal party.

The ultimate resolution was that the Muslim army would march out to meet the advancing enemy, outside Madinah.

It is significant to note here the consistency of the Prophet's use of the shūrā institution. Particularly noteworthy here is his ready willingness to abide by the outcome of the consultation, even though it was contrary to his own considered opinion. The Prophet (peace be upon him), as was typical of his style of leadership, moved quickly to put the agreed resolution into practice. Having performed 'Asr prayer, he went into his house, and aided by Abū Bakr and 'Umar, his two principal aides, put on his war armour. Meanwhile, those young Muslims became apprehensive, lest they had persuaded the gracious Prophet (peace be upon him) against his better judgment. To them, it was clear enough that the Prophet's opinion was not a matter of divine revelation, otherwise they would not have challenged it, still they felt guilty that they had challenged the Prophet (peace be upon him). So, they approached Him and expressed some apology for challenging him. However, the Prophet (peace be upon him) firmly refused to reconsider a decision that had been agreed upon by a vast majority of the Shūrā Council, only a short while before. He said: It would not behove a Prophet, when he puts his armour on, to take it off, until God had decided between him and his enemy."

6.3 The Muslim Army Marches to Uhud

The Prophet (peace be upon him) then set out in the direction of Uhud. It was a Friday, late afternoon. The Prophet's refusal to reconsider the Shira Council's decision to go out to meet the enemy had angered lbn Salūl. Among the other senior Muslims, also of the opinion that the

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback encounter be inside Madinah, were Sa'd ibn Mu'adh leader of Aws, encounter De Institut Maranian, were da a definition of the Burney and Sa'd ibn 'Ubādah, leader of Khazraj. But being devout Muslims, and sad the vaccepted the decision with good heart and spirit, in contrast to they accepted the decision and the decision and the decision of the decision o Muslim army moved in the direction of Uhud. It was approximately Musum army more and an army more and an army more thousand men strong. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was on horeback and in full armour. The two gallant Sa'ds of the Aws and Kharraj were in the vanguard ahead of him. The army camped at al-Shaykhān, just outside the city in the direction of Uḥud, whereas the Quraysh army was known to have camped at the middle of the valley of Uhud. The Prophet (peace be upon him) knew very well that the Quraysh on that day enjoyed two major strategic advantages:

- a. Their number was at least three times that of the Muslims.
- b. They had a sizeable cavalry.

It was these two advantages which he had thought to offset by fighting within the city.

He now had to come up with a different strategy. This was to move quickly and quietly under the cover of darkness, in the small hours of Saturday, to a position just at the foot of the mountain of  $U_{hud,\,and\,station\,\,his\,\,troops}$  between the enemy to the south and the mountain of Uhud to the north. In this way, his army would have its back to the mount of Uhud, and the enemy would lie exposed in front of him. This strategy was carried out, with the help of some Madinan Bedouins, who knew the terrain of Madinah very well.

6.4 Developments at al-Shaykhān

Al-Waqidi<sup>11</sup> states that the Prophet encamped at a place called al-Shaykhan, near Ḥarrah, on the eastern side of Madīnah, on the road lo Uhud. Ibn Hishām, however, says that the Prophet's encampment Was at a place called al-Shawt. Maybe, these were different names for the same place. There the Prophet (peace be upon him) inspected his atny, prayed the Maghrib and 'Ishā' prayers and decided on a number of important issues. Al-Wāqidī states that a small contingent of Jews of important issues of the Saful, turned up at al-Shaykhān, and wanted to join the allies of Ibn Satus, tarted to Join the Muslim army. But the Prophet (peace be upon him) turned them Muslim army. Data defair, However, Iba List and a defair how a defair ho back, no doubt Beau Qaynuqā 'affair. However, Ibn Hishām's version, the wake of the version, merely mentions that Ibn Salūl sought the Prophet's permission to hring forward his Jewish allies, a request which the Prophet (peace he upon him) sharply declined, much to the exasperation of Ibn Saliil who was still simmering over the rejection, by the Shūrā Council, of his strategy of meeting the enemy inside the city. It must have been this development which prompted him to return to Madinah with almost one third of the army, followed no doubt by the hypocrites and those whose feeble hearts had faltered. The dissension of Ihn Salūl, and the split he had caused in the Muslim ranks at that critical moment, when they were getting ready to meet their enemy, should have been depressing and demoralizing. However, it did not seem to affect the Muslims' spirits, which remained very high indeed. Two incidents give a sure indication of the steadfastness and morale of the Muslims:

A group of Muslim youth of very tender age stealthily joined the army, apparently without seeking the Prophet's permission. They were eleven in number altogether. Two of them, namely Rāfi' ibn Khadīj and Samurah ibn Jundub were fifteen years old and the rest were all thirteen years old. At first, the Prophet (pbuh) permitted Rāfi' to join the expedition, on the account of his reputation as a marksman. Then Samurah and his guardian protested that if Rāfi' was a good marksman, Samurah could overcome him in wrestling. A measure of the light heartedness of the gracious Prophet (peace be upon him), and his good cheer at a time of crisis was provided when he joyfully replied to the protestation of Samurah: 'You say you can win a wrestling contest with Rafi' then let us have one.

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback Indeed, Samurah easily put Rāfi' down in wrestling, while the Muslims cheered. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was pleased by the gallantry of the two boys and their high-mindedness, and felt assured that such a company of men could not easily be defeated in battle. In his Friday sermon at the mosque that day, the Prophet (peace be upon him) told the Muslims that victory, in the impending battle of Uhud, would be theirs, on the condition that they were patient, and forbearing and obeyed his orders. The insistence of these two boys on joining the expedition at the young age of fifteen was indeed a good omen, and a heartening event. Still more heartening, was the insistence of nine other boys, who were only thirteen years old. These the Prophet (peace be upon him) did turn down, and insisted that they should return to the city. However, he did allow them to join the next battle of al-Khandaq, when they were fifteen years old.

The names of those gallant boys, as given by al-Wāqidī<sup>12</sup> were:

- 1. 'Abdullāh ibn 'Umar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb: Muhājir
- 2. Usāmah ibn Zayd ibn al-Hārith: Muhājir
- 3. Zayd ibn al-Arqam ibn abī al-Arqam: Muhājir
- 4. Zayd ibn Thābit: Ansār.
- 5. Al-Nu mān ibn Bashīr: Anṣār
- 6. Al-Barā' ibn 'Āzib: Anṣār
- 7. Usayd ibn Zuhayr: Anşār
- 8. Urbah ibn Aws: Ansār
- 9. Abū Saʻīd al-Khudrī: Anṣār

b. The second incident, which indicates the high morale and high spirits of the Muslim army, is provided by Zakwān ibn 'Abd Qays: 13 The Prophet (peace be upon him) wanted a bodyguard. He said:

'I will, O Messenger of God!' 'But who are you?'

Zakwān ibn 'Abd Qays.

'Sit down,' said the Prophet (peace be upon him), and repeated his request for a bodyguard:

'I will O Messenger of God!'

But who are you?' Enquired the Prophet (peace be upon him).

'I am Ibn 'Abd Qays.'

The Prophet (peace be upon him), then repeated his request for the third time. Again it was the same man who answered with a different name!

The Prophet was silent for a while, then he said: 'All right. the three of you shall be my bodyguards.'

At that point Zakwan came forward:

'But where are your two companions?'

'There are none, it was only me who answered you in three times, O Messenger of God,' said Zakwan.

All right, said the Prophet (peace be upon him), then you shall be my bodyguard,

May God preserve you.

Then the general night guard for the whole army was selected. It consisted of fifty men, commanded by Muhammad ibn Maslamah, who succeeded in keeping the Quraysh Cavalry at bay for the whole night, though they came quite near to the Muslim encampment at Harrah.

In the early morning, while still dark, the Prophet (peace be upon him) made his way to the foot of Uhud, as we described above, while Ubayy ibn Salūl, and presumably his Jewish allies, made it back to Madinah. If the presence of this Jewish contingent, mentioned by al-Waqidi, and ignored by Ibn Hisham, was authentic, then it meant that they were not representative of the generality of the Jews, who by then were quite opposed to the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his Muslim state. The return of Ibn Salūl was from al-Shawt (al-Shaykhān) according to Ibn Hishām, 14 but al-Wāqidī<sup>15</sup> states that Ibn Salūl went all the way with the Prophet (peace be upon him) to Uhud, before returning to Madinah. In the very nature of things, Ibn Hishām's

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback account seems more credible, because a hesitant fighter would not go all the way to the battlefield, and when the enemy was in sight, go all the way to the backet, and the return back. It is more credible allow numbers, or would be a state midway point of al-Shaykhān, and probably

7. THE BATTLE OF UḤUD, EVENTS OF A FEARFUL DAY After the dawn prayer, the Prophet (peace be upon him) set his army and organized it in rows, just as he did when praying, with Uhud at their back, and the Quraysh between them and Makkah. He placed the archers on top of Uhud to his left, and appointed their commander as 'Abdullāh ibn Jubayr of Banū 'Āmir ibn 'Awf. He told them emphatically:

Keep the cavalry of Quraysh back, make sure they do not overrun us from behind! Do not, under any circumistances, leave your position at the top of the hill, be we victorious or be we defeated. Stay put in your places in all circumstances. Make sure that they do not overrun as from your direction, 16 said the Prophet (peace be upon him) most emphatically.

Then the Prophet (peace be upon him) passed the Banner, as at  $^{\text{Bad}}_{\text{r, to Mus'ab ibn 'Umayr, no doubt because he was of Makhzum}$ ibn 'Abd al-Dār, the traditional Banner-bearers of the Quraysh, since the days of Jāhiliyyah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) then strictly ordered the Muslims not to start shooting until he gave his orders.

The battle cry of Uḥud was 'Amit...Amit,' Kill! Kill! Kill! Kill the enemy! Then the events of that day poured forth like a torrent or hurricane. It was by far the longest and the most trying day in the history of Islam, a day of sorrow, grief and suffering, the like of which had never happened before. The noble, gracious Muhammad (peace be upon him), through no mistake of his, witnessed and suffered untold gief and hardship; he witnessed his army move from certain victory to defeat, through the negligence and disobedience of the archers, on the top of the mountain. He saw his Companions cut into pieces and the top of the mountain pieces and pieces and slain. Worst of all, his best friend, his beloved uncle, the most gallant slain. Worst of all, in the state of men, Hamzah, was killed by an Abyssinian slave, by the name of men, Hamzah, was killed by an Abyssinian slave, by the name of of men, Hamzan, the Prophet (peace be upon him) stood over the Wahshi, Later on, horribly mutilated by the then callous, unbeliever, body of Hamzan, wife of Abū Sufyān. Tears gushed from his beautiful, radiant face, marred by the wounds and cuts, he had suffered that day, Never have I been more angry in my whole life! If God would give me victory over the Quraysh, I vow by Him I will mutilate thirty of their dead," the Prophet (peace be upon him) cried out.

Yet God revealed to him that this vow is not a sound one. and he was duly educated with the best guidance on this issue, indeed a manifest Qur'anic miracle. Thus Muhammad (peace be upon him) couldn't be the author of the Qur'an, since no one would rebuke himself and reverse his position in such circumstances. The Qur'anic

If you inflict punishment, then inflict only so much as you have suffered; but should you endure patiently, that is even better for the patient. [The Bees: 16:126]

When the gracious Prophet (peace be upon him) received this Qur'anic revelation, he repented and vowed that he would never have any of the dead mutilated

Yet the grief of the Prophet (peace be upon him) over the martyrdom of his most beloved uncle, who was also his long-time companion, actually never abated. Such was the profundity of his sense of bereavement at the loss of the gallant Hamzah that, when he returned to Madinah that day and found the women of the Ansar weeping over their martyred husbands and fathers, he could not contain himself, but loudly lamented: 'What about Hamzah! What about Hamzah! No one seems to be weeping over his death today, the Prophet's gracious eyes were again filled with copious tears.

Years later, when the Prophet (peace be upon him) first set his eyes on Wahshi, the slayer of Ḥamzah, who then declared his Islam, and The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback thus escaping the death penalty passed upon him, he was overcome hus escaping une usaur persons; Pause upon the with grief and sat down to ask him in a trembling, sobbing voice: Will withgree and sacroom to assert the account of the sacroom of the s had told his story, the Prophet (peace be upon him) turned his face from him, as was his habit when angry or greatly upset, Vanish from my sight! He said, or 'I do not ever want to see you again.'

Thereafter Wahshi would hide when the Prophet (peace be upon him) passed by, lest the sight of him should cause the Prophet (peace beupon him) hurt. He became a good Muslim and joined the Muslim army against the apostates. It is said that it was Waḥshī who actually killed Musaylimah the Liar, head of the apostates of Najd.

8. THE PROPHET SUFFERED SERIOUS WOUNDS

The defeat of the Muslims, and the deaths of Hamzah, and the beloved Mus'ab ibn 'Umayr were not the only calamities which the Prophet (peace be upon him) suffered that day at Uhud. His own person for the first time suffered serious injuries. A certain 'Utbah ibn Abī Waqqāş (brother of Saʿd ibn Abī Waqqāş) hit him very hard with a stone, which cut a deep wound in his gracious face and cut his lower lip, broke his front teeth, and threw him to the ground. The Prophet (peace be upon him) rose, his face covered with blood. But he fell again, this time into a hole, dug by one of the polytheists, by the name of Abu 'Amr, as a trap. Last but not least, a certain 'Abdulllāh bn Shihāb inflicted a second wound on his forehead, and a certain ibn Qami'ah, who vowed to kill the Prophet (peace be upon him), dealt a blow at the Prophet's head, which was diverted a little bit by one of the Muslims, yet resulted in wounding his two cheeks, pushing his helmet deep into them. More blood was then gushing from the Prophet's face, yet the Prophet (peace be upon him) was in good cheer, indeed shouting to the small band of men, who gathered around him, to fight hard, saying that his own injuries were just minor wounds, in a brave

9. THE MUSLIMS DEFEND THE PROPHET

The extent of the Muslim's losses at Uhud were devastating. About The extent of the lay dead, including Hamzah, and Muş'ab ibn 'Umayı, seventy of them lay dead, including Hamzah, and Muş'ab ibn 'Umayı, seventy of uterray in random, unprecedented flight in the face of their the Muslims were in random, unprecedented flight in the face of their the Musillia Motern was the magnitude of their defeat, after their initial victory, that some prominent Companions of the Prophet ran for their lives, leaving the Prophet (peace be upon him) alone on the battlefield. 'Umar ibn al-khaṭṭāb, and Ṭalḥah ibn 'Ubaydullāh did not run away. However, on hearing the cry that Muhammad was killed they lost heart completely, and threw down their weapons and sat down on the ground, disconsolate. Anas ibn al-Nadr found them in that pitiful state. 'Why are you sitting like this?' asked Anas. They said 'Alas! The Prophet has been killed.' 'Then die as he has died for the sake of Islam,' shouted Anas, vividly annoyed.

By saying this, Anas ibn al-Nadr apparently brought these great Muslims to their senses. As for himself, he plunged deep into the fray. fighting gallantly until he fell with more than seventy cuts on his body. Indeed, his body was so defamed by wounds, that only his sister could recognize him by a dye on his fingertips (henna).

10. ANAS IBN AL-NADR

The brave showing of Anas ibn an-Nadr, a relative of Anas ibn Mālik, personal attendant of the Prophet (peace be upon him), was not an isolated case that day. It was, in fact, because of the bravery and heroism of a small band of Muslims, who defended the Prophet (peace be upon him) with their lives, that the unbelievers were not able to kill him. Again and again they tried to kill him, and every time they were driven back. Of these men, the most prominent were:

- 1. Abū Dujānah, the red-banded knight.
- 2. 'Alī ibn Abī Tālib.
- 3. 'Umar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb.

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback

5. Sa d ibn Abi Waqqāş (muhājir), who shielded the Prophet (peace

6. Nusaybah bint Ka'b - Umm 'Umārah (the famous woman-

7. Muş'ab ibn 'Umayr, the holder of the main white banner, (who was later killed) and became a martyr.

8. Hamzah ibn 'Abd al-Muṭṭalib (martyred).

9. Usayd ibn Ḥuḍayr, the holder of the Aws banner. 10. Sa'd ibn 'Ubādah, the holder of the Khazraj banner.

11. Sa'd ibn Mu'ādh, Anṣār, the head of Aws tribe.

12. Muhammad ibn Maslamah, Ansar.

13. Talḥah ibn 'Ubaydullāh, Muhājir.

14. Al-Hubāb ibn al-Mundhir, Ansār.

15. Abū 'Ubaydah ibn al-Jarrāḥ, Muhājir.

16. Al-Zubayr ibn al- 'Awwam, Muhājir.

17. 'Aşim ibn Thābit, Anşār.

18. Al-Ḥārith ibn al-Simmah, Anṣār.

19. Sahl ibn Ḥunayf, Anṣār.

20. Umm Ayman, Barakah, the Abyssinian governess of the Prophet

21. 'Umārah ibn Ziyād ibn as-Sakan, Anṣār, who died on the Prophet's lap having defended him heroically, sustaining more

Qatādah ibn al-Nu mān, Anṣār, who lost one eye defending the Prophet, and it was he who had kept the Prophet's broken bow

( 84 D)

@ 85 D

The youthful Qatadah ibn al-Nu man, narrates al-Waqidi, came to the Prophet (peace be upon him): Messenger of God and said;

You see I lost my eye, and I have a young and beautiful wife, whom You see Host in 1975. I love so much, and she likewise loves me. But I am fearful, that now she would be put off by my blind eye.'

Qatādah said that the Prophet (peace be upon him) took the ball of his eye, which Qatadah was still carrying in his hand, and put it back in its place, and blessing it with his gracious hand, it became as if it had never been hurt. That eye never gave Qatādah any more trouble. and was the better of his two eyes in old age, told Qatadah.

The above list of men and women, who stood their ground in Uhud, and did not run away, is not exhaustive. Though he gives only fourteen names, al-Waqidi himself implicitly concedes that his list is not exhaustive, because he immediately afterwards mentions, on the authority of Ya'qūb ibn 'Amr ibn Qatādah, that the men who stood their ground, when the Muslims were defeated and took to fight in Uhud, were thirty in number. They all said: 'O Messenger of God, our faces will defend your face, and our bodies, your body. May peace be with you, not bidding you goodbye, Inshā' Allāh. It is astonishing that al-Waqidi's list of fourteen, did not include 'Umar ibn Al-Khaṭṭāb or indeed such men as 'Umārah ibn al-Sakan, Qatādah ibn al-Nu mān or Mus ab ibn 'Umayr, who might have been martyred early in the day. Al-Waqidi's list also failed to mention the two Muslim women who also stood their ground around the Prophet (peace be upon him), and defended him, although he mentioned them elsewhere.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) himself fought gallantly, and ferociously until his bow was broken and never moved backward an inch, nor at any point lost his heart or high spirit. In the darkest moment, when all the fighting was just around him, and he was the prime target of the Quraysh, and though his own Companions were in flight, despite his repeated shouts to them, he sat down and put the head and a sat down and put the head and a sat down a did not the head of the dying 'Umarah ibn al-Sakan on his lap, and did not get up until 'Umārah had passed away peacefully.18

The Battle of Uhud: A Temporary Setback Then the Prophet (peace be upon him) gave his order to retreat Then the Tropher Present of al-Mihras, a well at the edge of Uhud. Retreating with him, were most of the men we gave in the Upon retreating to these, we must now add some men who were returning to the Prophet, as he made it towards the hill, with the Quraysh in hot pursuit shouting 'O al-'Uzzā, O Hubal!' The names

23. Abū Talḥah, who shielded the Prophet (peace be upon him) with his body, just as did Sa'd ibn Abī Waqqāş and Abū Dujānah.

24. Zayd ibn Ḥārithah (not mentioned in al-Wāqidī's original list, which is surprising, due to the intimacy of Zayd to the Prophet).

25. Al-Miqdad ibn 'Amr.

26. Al-Sā'ib ibn Uthmān ibn Maz 'ūn.

27. Hātib ibn Abī Balta'ah, the man who sent a warning to the Quraysh before the fath of Makkah.

28. 'Utbah ibn Ghazwan (who confessed that he was just fighting in defence of his homeland, Yathrib).

29. Khirāsh ibn al-Simmah.

30. Qurbah ibn 'Amr.

31. Bishr ibn al-Barā' ibn Ma'rūr.

32. Abū Nā'ilah, Silkān ibn Salamah.

33. Abū Ruḥm al-Ghifārī.

Thus the number of men and women who stood their ground in the wake of defeat at Uhud was even greater than thirty, exceeding the number given in the version of Ya qub ibn 'Amr ibn Qatadah. This is not unreasonable, since they managed to repulse the attacks of the Quraysh, again and again. In the confusion and chaos of the day, it would have been difficult for anyone to keep an exact record day, it would have been him. It is not unreasonable to of just how many state of just how many state of just how many state of just how many many works that the prophet (peace be upon him). It is not unreasonable to suppose that Prophet (peace of appropriate that there were, in fact, more than thirty men and women. To the above lists, we may now add the name of:

34. Mālik ibn Anas, Anṣār, mentioned by Ibn Hishām<sup>19</sup> to have sucked the blood from the face of the Prophet, in an effort to stop the bleeding.

However, the Prophet (peace be upon him) managed to complete. his retreat safely to the foot of Uhud, shielded by such men as Abii Dujānah, until he was killed, 'Umārah ibn al-Sakan, also killed Sa'd ibn Abī Waqqās, Abū Bakr, 'Umar, Zayd ibn Ḥārith, Nusaybah bint Ka'b, 'Alī ibn Abī Tālib, al-Zubayr ibn Al-'Awwām, Talhah ibn 'Ubaydullāh, al-Hārith ibn Abī al-Simmah, etc. As the Prophet (peace be upon him) reached the foot of the mountain, Ubayy ibn Khalaf, long time enemy of the Prophet (peace be upon him) since Makkah days, who used to threaten him before Hijrah, got word that Muḥammad (peace be upon him) was still alive. He then came charging up to kill him: 'O Muhammad,' he shouted, 'may I not live, if you live today.' The Muslim force defending the Prophet got ready to intercept him, when the Prophet (peace be upon him) pushed them aside, and jumped forward with such force and determination that some of them fell to the ground.20 He (peace be upon him) shouted, 'let him come, let him come!'

Then the Prophet (peace be upon him) snatched a spear from the hands of al-Hārith ibn al-Simmah, took a step forward and threw it with terrific force against the attacker. The spear struck him in the neck; he turned his horse and ran away. He died on the way to Makkah.

The story of Ubayy ibn Khalaf is very significant. Here was a man with tremendous hatred towards the Prophet (peace be upon him) who continued to the prophet (peace be upon him) who continued to the prophet (peace be upon him) to the prophet (peace be upon who continually harassed him at Makkah, and used to threaten his

1030000 Company

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback life. He once said to the Prophet (peace be upon him): 'I have this life. He once sauce of the life will feed it plenty of Dhurrah, because one day I am going to kill you with it,' (meaning in war).21 The Prophet (peace be upon him) answered: 'It is I who is going Inerrophic (Practice and Practice) Indiana, one day, O Ubayy ibn Khalaf. So just as Ubayy made good his promise of attempting to kill the Prophet (peace be upon him), NNS PROPRIES CO. So, the Prophet made good this promise. This explains his curious insistence, that he be let alone to deal with Ubayy, unaided by anyone. INDICATES AND A COLUMN IN INDICATE IN INDI set his mind to do something, a strange singleness of purpose and resolve set on his demeanour, and his face would glow like fire and glitter like solid pure steel (so that none would look like him, when hewasearnest). When Umayyah ibn Khalaf returned to the Quraysh wounded, his morale was crushed: 'Oh! I am going to die,' he would ssy. No, your wound is but a slight one,' the Quraysh would answer. 'But he has vowed, since the days of Makkah, that he would kill me. For, by God, if he so much as spat on me, he would kill me,' said Umayyah, frightened at the prospect of his imminent death. Indeed, the man died a few days later!

11. THE HEROES OF UHUD

1.1 The Prophet Himself<sup>23</sup>

foremost among the heroes of Uhud is the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself, who managed to withdraw in an orderly manner, and

a. He managed to come out alive, and to save his army from complete destruction, which was a distinct possibility, but for God's mercy and His favour for the Muslims. The total number of Muslims killed at Uhud was four or five from the Muhājirīn, and seventy from the Ansar. Thus the bulk of the Muslim army teturned safely to Madinah. The Prophet's inventive and energetic thinking contributed, in no smaller measure, to the final outcome of the battle. The army of the Quraysh was still in the vicinity of of the battle. The day of the page be upon him), though utterly Madinah. So the Prophet (peace be upon him), though utterly Madinah. So the responsibility and seated, quickly exhausted so that he led the noon prayer that day seated, quickly regrouped and reorganized his army, and ordered a hot pursuit of the Quraysh. The Prophet (peace be upon him) himself took personal command of the army, and the Muslims joined in good cheer, and with a great deal of enthusiasm. The Muslim army marched on Sunday; the battle of Uhud was on Saturday. Abu Sufyan and the Quraysh were pondering a fresh attack against the Muslims, to eradicate them. When they heard of the Prophet's renewed march, they hastily made their way back in the direction of Makkah. The casualties from the Quraysh were relatively light. twenty-two of them were killed.

b. Other heroes of Uhud included:

- Hamzah
- Mus ab ibn 'Umayr
- Abū Dujānah
- 'Umārah ibn al-Sakan
- Anas ibn Abī Tālib
- 'Alī ibn Abī Waqqāş
- Talhah ibn 'Ubaydullah
- Nusaybah bint Ka'b
- 'Abdullah ibn Jahsh [cousin of the Prophet (peace be upon him)] And many others.

Yet the list of the Uhud heroes will not be complete without giving the extraordinary story of Hanzalah, Ghasilu al-Malā'ikah (i.e. he whom the angels had washed), and that of Abū Dujānah (the redbanded hero).

The Battle of Uhud: A Temporary Setback

Uasa Calendar Schille

11.2 The Story of Ḥanzalah (the Martyr washed by the angels) Hangalah was a young, energetic Ansari, who was supposed to get Hanzalan was a young, sheeper to get married that Friday to a beautiful Ansarī girl, whom he loved very much, and to whom he had been betrothed for a long time. But that was the very Friday on which the Muslims were to march out to meet their enemy at Uhud. Hanzalah's predicament was acute. He experienced a great conflict in his heart, between his love and Ommitment to the cause of Islam and his chivalrous Arabic sense of Muru'ah on the one hand, and on the other hand the desire of his heart to get married to the girl he loved so dearly; an event he had avaited and looked forward to for so long. He went to see the Prophet (peace be upon him) and said:

O Messenger of God, I am getting married today, and I don't like to be left behind by you.'

It is all right. Get married today, spend the night with your bride, and join us tomorrow morning at Uhud,' said the Prophet (peace be upon him).24

Hanzalah ibn Abī ʿĀmir, was on that day wedded to Jamīlah bint 'Abdullāh ibn Ubayy ibn Salūl, head of the hypocrites of Madīnah, a Madinan of considerable wealth and prominence, before the inception of Islam. He spent the night with her, washed himself from janābah, and was ready to set out for the battleground when his bride clung to him fearing that he would be martyred, as she had seen in her dreams, Hanzalah again slept with her. But this time he hurried forth to the battlefield, without washing from janābah. There was simply no time for that, else he would miss the battle and be of the Khawālif (those left behind), a status which amounted to the terrible crime of deserting not only the honour of defending the homeland, but that of deserting the faith of Islam, and of letting down the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims. So Hanzalah rushed forth to the battlefield. He atrived in time to take part in the battle. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) was exposed, he fought gallantly, recklessly risking his life. He was killed after having a duel with Abū Sufyān, the commander-in-chief of the Makkan army at Uḥud. He came very close to killing in-chief of the Markan soldier overpowered Line Markan soldier overpowered Line and sat Abu Sufyan, but the latter overpowered Hanzalah and on top of him, but a Makkan soldier overpowered Hanzalah and managed to kill him.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) later said: 'Ḥanzalah is being washed by the angels! Ask his wife what was the matter with him? washed by the angels.

They later asked her, and she said that when Hanzalah heard the battle. They later asked in the battle cries, he went out junuban, i.e. without washing from janābah, which is a religious obligation for a Muslim after having sex with a woman

11.3 The Story of Abū Dujānah: (The red-banded hero)

A well-known knight of the Ansar, by the name of Simak ihn Kharashah, better known as Abū Dujānah. (The man with a red-head. band), was a formidable fighter feared by everyone. He converted to Islam, the Prophet (peace be upon him) appeared at the front of the Muslim army. He raised his sword high, and dished it saying:

'Who will take this sword of mine with its right?'

'Umar ibn al-Khattab rose and claimed the sword, but he was denied by the Prophet (peace be upon him). Then al-Zubayr ibn al-'Awwam rose to take it, but he, too, was rejected.

The two noble Companions were much mortified.

Then Abū Dujānah rose and asked:

'What is its right, O Messenger of God?'

'Its right is to smite the enemy with it until it breaks,' replied the Prophet (peace be upon him).

'I will take it by its right, O Messenger of God,' said Abū Dujanah.

Abū Dujānah and his red scarf have become a symbol of heroism and dedication to the cause of Islam, in contemporary times. Muslim freedom fighters everywhere, especially the young among them, can be seen wearing those red scarves around their heads, when marching to the front live to fight to the front lines of the battlefield, symbolizing their resolve to fight until victory or martyrdom. This phenomenon has been observed in Bosnia at a superior of the Sudan in Bosnia, Afghanistan and among the mujāhidūn of the Sudan

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback marching to meet invaders from Eriterea, Ethiopia and Uganda in marching to meet invaders from Enterea, Ethiopia and Uganda In meent times. Adul Dujanairs Causiffee, in fulfilment of God's promise, hecause or word, manufacture are not dead, but ever living. Think not of those killed in the cause of God as dead, Nay, they Impunor of their sustenance in the presence of their Lord. ['Al Imran 3:169]

12. EPILOGUE: THE LESSONS OF UHUD

12.1 Victory from Allah, Defeat from Satan

No battle in the history of Islam has received the kind of elaborate commentary that Uhud has received in the Qur'an. It is true that the Battle of Badr is referred to a number of times in the Qur'an. But in each case, the Qur'anic references to Badr indicate that the victory which the Muslims achieved was from God alone, who sent down His angels and His hosts to make it possible. The Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims contributed to the outcome of the Battle of Badr, their contribution alone could never have brought them the kind of victory they achieved at Badr. That recurring comment on Badi, by the Qur'an, was necessary, lest the Muslims succumb to human arrogance, and the illusion that it was they, their cleverness and courage, which won the day at Badr. By contrast, the Qur'anic comment on Uhud, is so elaborate and comprehensive in nature, that no small detail, no turn or twist of the battle was spared. Altogether, there are sixty verses of the Qur'anic comment on Badr and Uhud, from verse 121 to verse 180 of Sūrah Āl 'Īmrān. At the outset, the Quran draws a brief comparison between Badr and Uhud. Badr is a symbol of victory, but since everything about Badr was of God's makings the message is clear: that victory is exclusively from God assuredly all victory is from God). Since Uhud is a symbol of defeat, and since defeat at Uhud was caused by dissension and disagreement anong the Muslims, brought about by the Satan, the lesson is also clear: that defeat is from nafs (or ego) of the Muslims, as it is also clear: that defeat is itself also from Satan - an allusion to Satan's role in tempting the Muslims into from Satan – an antosolor rebellion, dissent and disagreement. The Qur'an tells the Muslims rebellion, dissent and disagreement promise of making the rebellion, dissent and dissert and promise of making them victorious in the initial phase. that God had running and so they were indeed victorious in the initial phase of the battle at Uhud.

12.2 The Real Cause of the Defeat

The Qur'an lays it out clearly, that the prime cause of defeat at Uhud was the disobedience and dissension of some Muslims, namely ar-Rumāt, i.e. the archers. God warned the Muslims many times that division and dissension are the prime causes of failure and defeat At Uhud, that lesson was practically demonstrated: the Muslims were initially victorious, then they disagreed among themselves (the archers) and they disobeyed the Messenger of God, and defeat became their lot. This is one of the prime lessons of the painful drama of Uhud:

God has made good His promise unto you when you routed them by His leave, until your courage failed you, and you quarrelled about the matter, and you were rebellious, after he had shown you that which you love. Some of you want (the good) of this life, and some of you want (the goods) of the Hereafter. Then He swayed you away from them, so as that He might try! Yet now He has pardoned you, and God is bounteous to the believers. [Al 'Imran 3:152]

The archers were given explicit and very strict orders, by the Prophet himself, not to move from their position, on the top of the hill, under any circumstances. But as soon as they saw the initial defeat of the Quraysh, and saw some of the Muslims collecting booty, they started to leave their position on the top of the mount, and joined in the collection in the collection of the spoils. Their own commander, 'Abdullah ibn Jubayr, tried very hard to dissuade them from violating the Prophet's orders, but they were unruly and rebellious. It was Satan that was

The Battle of Uhud: A Temporary Setback busy at work, exploiting their lust for worldly things and for wealth. busy at work, expronung then fusction wormers things and for weather.

Khalid ibn al-Walid, the commander of the cavalry of the Quraysh, khilld intra wants, and attacked the Muslims from therear, and easily made defeat to be their lot.

12.3 God's Design in Permitting the Defeat of Muslims The Qur'anic verses here at issue, state very clearly why God permitted

- the defeat of the Muslims at Uhud:  $_{\text{a. It}}$  was a trial for them to examine the extent and the strength of their faith in God and their love for Him.
- b. The defeat was essential to sort out (Tamhīs) the true believers, those capable of withstanding the trauma of defeat, of being killed and wounded and of seeing their loved ones killed and wounded. Those true believers would be set apart from the hypocrites and those who were feeble-hearted.
- c. That God bestows His highest honours of martyrdom to whom He wills from among those Muslims, whom He loves and
- d. That it would become very clear to them what God's universal laws are in connection with victory and defeat.
- $\epsilon$   $\,$  That the road to Paradise is fraught with trial and suffering, only the patient and the forbearing, will be able to endure the march
- ( lt was indeed very significant that the traumatic experience of Uhud did not spare the gracious person of the Prophet (peace be upon him), though he was not in the least responsible for the failure and disobedience of the archers. That he was destined to suffer, as his Companions did, that he sustained grave wounds as they had sustained... and that, in addition, he had witnessed, to his utter sorrow, and horror, the killing and mutilation of his best friend and uncle Hamzah, the killing and mutilation of his cousin 'Abdullāh ibn Jaḥsh, and the killing of his dear companion cousin Abdullari for , was meant to impress upon the Muslims Mus ab ibn 'Umayr... was meant to impress upon the Muslims Mus ab Ibil Charles that Muhammad (peace be upon him) is the Messenger at the that Munaminad (per at the end of a long chain of Messengers, who had gone before him. As end of a long chair.

( 94 D)

(C 95 2)

a Messenger, he was human, who could be wounded, who was a Messenger, in mortal and human; not of divine nature. So, would the Muslims forsake and abandon their faith should Muhammad (peace be upon him) die or be killed? This was indeed a strong rebuke to those sincere Muslims, who lost their heart when they heard the cry that Muhammad (peace be upon him) had died.

- Uhud was also a lesson to the Muslims, concerning the reality. of al-Qadā' wa'l-Qadar (divine decree and destiny). God had decreed that the Muslims would be defeated at Uhud, because of their rebellion and disobedience, and that destiny must be carried out. God does not favour the Muslims if they become rebellious or sinful. Thus the Muslims ought not to be deluded into the error that, no matter what they do, God will allow them to be victorious and prevail over their enemies.
- h. The Muslims, who ran for their lives, leaving the Prophet (peace be upon him) alone in the battlefield, were severely rebuked. It was declared that Satan had caused them to behave in that manner, because of their sins. How unbecoming of a true believer to flee in the face of the enemy, and how unbecoming of him, to abandon the Prophet (peace be upon him), when he was calling upon him not to do so.
- Yet God was quick to declare His pardon for those Muslims who fled the battle. God is Bounteous to His servants. Knowing that, though they were not lacking in their love of God and his Messenger (peace be upon him), yet they were no more than humans, who were liable to suffer from all intrinsically human weaknesses and frailties. God told the Prophet (peace be upon him) that the prophet (peace be upon him) the prophet (peace be upon him) that the prophet (peace be upon him) the prophet (peace be upon him) that the prophet (peace be upon him) him) that his heart had been rendered lenient and compassionale

The Battle of Uhud: A Temporary Setback unto the Muslims, that it was by God's mercy that he was so, and unforme musimis, unaccessed to pardon the fleeing Muslims, and to pray

Though the Muslims, especially the young ones, did not heed the Propher's considered opinion not to go out to meet the enemy, and though some Muslims might have attributed the defeat at Uhud to the shūrā practice which overruled the Prophet's opinion, yet there is nothing inherently wrong about shūrā practice. Far from this, the Prophet (peace be upon him) was most emphatically commanded to persist and to continue that shūrā practice among the generality of the Muslims. This is very significant, and it says a great deal about the importance of the shūrā, and that it is to be taken seriously at all times and circumstances. This is what the Prophet (peace be upon him) did at Uhud, accepting and acting upon the outcome of the Shūrā Council, even though it ran counter to his own considered opinion. Since the context in which the Shūrā Council was held at Uhud was strictly a war atmosphere, this made it all the more incumbent upon Muslim leaders and Amirs to hold Shūrā Councils in peace-time when things were more relaxed and normal. The outcome of the  $sh\bar{u}r\bar{a}$ , no matter what it turns out to be, must be binding upon the Prophet (peace be upon him) of God, to whom revelation was  $\mathsf{given}, \mathsf{he}\,\mathsf{who}\,\mathsf{was}\,\mathsf{the}\,\mathsf{most}\,\mathsf{learned}\,\mathsf{and}\,\mathsf{the}\,\mathsf{most}\,\mathsf{insightful}\,\mathsf{of}\,\mathsf{all}\,$ men, then a fortiori, it must be viewed as binding on the ordinary k The Qur'an reminded the Muslims that if they suffered a mishap, so did their adversaries. It is in the very nature of things, that each of the two parties to a war or a fighting will receive its apportioned share of hardships, losses and suffering. So the Muslims ought not to clamour too much about it. They should view the whole matter as a natural development, a logical consequence of their Own doing. This is one of the laws of God; that life has its ups

If a wound touches you, a like wound had touched the If a would be completed the confidence of the co to revolve among men, that God may know who are the true believers, so that He would take from amongst you Martyrs, and God does not love the unjust. [Āl 'Īmrān 3:140]

12.4 Martydom, the Highest Honour of the Day

The highest honour of the day of Uhud was the choice of the martyrs: God's greatest honour to the believers. To be a martyr is to be killed fighting in the way of God. So Uḥud was the greatest day where God elected and chose those he loved the most to be His martyrs, ever living. in His Paradise, ever present in His audience, enjoying the eternal bliss of the vision of His most beautiful Countenance; happy and rejoicing in the Bounty of their Lord. The following are the Martyrs who are ever living, ever present, never to die again:

- · Hamzah ibn 'Abd al-Muttalib.
- · The beautiful Mus ab ibn 'Umayr.
- · The handsome 'Abdullah ibn Jahsh, the Hashimi, cousin of the Prophet.
- · Hanzalah, the bridegroom who spent only one night with his bride: He whom the angels had washed.
- Abū Dujānah, the red-banded knight.
- Anas ibn al-Nadr al-Ansārī
- Shammās ibn 'Uthmān, whom the Prophet (peace be upon him) likened to the Jinn, because of his agility and speed, as well as the rest of the seventy martyrs of Uhud.

The total numbers of the Martyrs at Uhud were more than seventy. The above names are just some of the most prominent amongst them. They are in eternal bliss, a recompense for giving up their brief lives early, so that the torch of the Islamic faith, the The Battle of Uhud: A Temporary Setback universal faith of God, may shine forever and enlighten with divine Death is just the abrupt transition from the shadows and suffering Dealm Sylvation and the full light of eternity, where no injustice or cruelty can guidance, the whole of humanity. of this IIIE, we uncrown and the merciful be suffered by the righteous, but only compassion and the merciful bounty of God. There is the abode of rejoicing and happiness for the bounty or upon the doers of good deeds. Since nobody can escape the appointed day of his death, what a victory it is that, when that day comes, the believer is honoured with martyrdom. Instead of dying like camels – to quote a phrase from the gallant Khālid ibn al-Walid the - Qur'ān describes the state of the martyrs of Uhud with their Lord in the following way:

Count not those who were slain in the way of God, as dead. Nay, they are ever living with their Lord, (enjoying) being provided for, njoicing in the boundary that God has given them, quite happy for those who remain behind and have not joined them that on them is no fear, neither shall they sorrow, jubilant in the blessing and bounty from God, and that God does not waste the wage of the believers... [Al 'Imran 3:169-171]

The themes and lessons of Uhud are indeed too many to do them justice in this brief study. They actually represent a complete code of the most noble, God-inspired conduct for the Muslims; a code valid for all times. They give an indication of the Islamic, Qur'anic calculus of advantage and disadvantage, of succour and defeat, of success and falure. In the Qur'anic scale of values, even the Muslims' losses and adfirings are pluses in the balance with their Lord. Those who were skin will become martyrs with their Lord, thus enjoying the fruits of the greatest victory of being in Paradise. For this reason, the Prophet Peace be upon him) retained a good and lively memory of Uhud, despite the wounds he suffered therein. He would say, whenever he danced to pass by that mountain of Uhud: 'Uhud is a mountain

12.5 The Immediate Aftermath of Uhud

The aftermath of Uhud deserves a separate chapter. It was very eventful The aftermath of United each the Muslim community in the and very colourful. It depicts the state of the Muslim community in the and very colourius. Though the Muslims, like any human wake of disaster and calamity. Though the Muslims, like any human wake of disaster and the loss of their loved ones, and the Prophet (peace beings, grieved at the loss of their loved ones), and the Prophet (peace beings, grieved at the loss of their loved ones). beings, grieved at the toping of the upon him) himself grieved above all for his lost Companions, most be upon him) himself grieved above all for his lost Companions, most beupon him) introduced by the tempo of the community, and of all Hamzah and Mus ab, yet the tempo of the community, and of all Hamzari and the mood of the masses was not one of despair, or submission to the events, or dismay or apathy. Far from it, the mood of the community was one of anger and a burning desire to avenge their losses. They wanted to meet their enemy at the earliest possible opportunity, to raise the banner of their faith higher then that of the Quraysh, This defiant mood was symbolized by three occurrences in the aftermath

a. Exchange between 'Umar and Abū Sufvān:

When the battle cleared: there came Abū Sufyān, mounted arrogantly on his chestnut horse. He called out to the Muslims:

'Where is Abū Bakr, son of Abū Quḥāfah? Where is 'Umar, son of Al-Khattāb? This day in exchange for Badr. The days revolve. War is a revolving game: one day for you, another against you. Exalt thyself, O Hubal!'26

'Umar looked to the Prophet (peace be upon him) who dictated to him:

'God is more High and more superior in Majesty.'

'We are not equal,' said 'Umar, 'Our slain are in Paradise, your slain are in Hell.'

Abū Sufyān recognized the voice of 'Umar.

'O 'Umar, I adjure you by God, have we slain

'No, by God, he is here now listening to what you say.' Abū Sufyān was dismayed at the news that Muḥammad was alive. He turned back to go, but again shouted:

'Some of your dead have been mutilated. I want you to know that it was not at the orders of our senior command that they were so mutilated. But I do not regret it either!<sup>227</sup>

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback The Prophet (peace be upon him) accepted this, and told

Masqual Andrews

The propnet speake the upon min, accepted this, and told

The second incident, which vividly depicts the mood of the The second including, in the immediate afternoon of Uhud, is Muslims or infaumarian and the Market al-Najjār of Khazraj (maternal uncles of the Prophet). A messenger brought her this

Your husband, brother and father and two of your sons were all killed, fighting to defend the Prophet (peace be upon

She asked the messenger: What did the Messenger of God do? How did he fare?' She enquired in a matter-of-course way, very calm and composed. He is well, thanks are due to God, all right as you would no doubt like him to be!' answered the messenger, looking at her intently, no doubt amazed and impressed by her strength and forbearance.

'I want to look at him. Where is he? Just show me where he is. I want to see him,' she insisted.

'He is over there, look!' said the messenger.

The brave woman said:

'Every calamity is trivial now that I know that the Messenger of God is alive...' The Arabic word jalāl means trivial or small, it also means great.

She then had her great two martyred sons put on a camel, which she then quietly led herself in the direction of Madinah, for their burial. On the road to the city, she met 'A'ishah.

'What news?' asked 'A'ishah.

'As for the Messenger of God, he is alright. He did not die! But God had chosen shahids (Martyrs) from amongst the believers!' She then recited the Qur'anic verse:

'Assuredly God repulsed the disbelievers in their wrath; they gained no good, and God spared the believers of fighting.' 'Who are the dead men with you?' asked 'A'ishah

@ 100 D

@ 101 D

'They are my two sons,' replied al-Sumayra,' in her matter.

Hall Hall' said she, pulling the rein of her camel, and off she went towards Madinah, late in the afternoon of that Saturday of the battle of Uhud.

This is just one example of these thousands of unknown heroes and great personalities which Islam and the Prophet of Islam have produced for mankind.

The third incident, depicting the mood of the Muslims in the immediate aftermath of Uhud, is provided by the Prophet's call to the Muslims on the next day, to the battle, to mobilize in hot pursuit of the Quraysh. Almost all of those, who participated in the battle, responded with cheer and enthusiasm, even the wounded, some of them badly wounded, came along. The swiftness, the courage and the high morale of the Muslims were indeed phenomenal. The Muslims' army followed the tracks of the Quraysh, who had been pondering a renewed attack on the Muslims. When they heard of the advancing army of the Prophet (peace be upon him), they quickened their pace in the direction of Makkah, frightened at the prospect of renewed fighting. This incident tells a great deal about the Prophet's genius as a leader and a military commander. Something must be done to elevate the morale of defeated Muslims, and at the same time frighten the Jewish enemy within Madinah, and the unruly Bedouins, munāfiqīn (hypocrites) in the area around Madīnah. Also, the Arabs of Arabia at large, must know that the military power of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims had not been crushed by the defeat at Uhud. Far from it, it was largely intact, and the evidence for this was provided by their ability to mobilize quickly and go out in pursuit of their Quraysh enemies. The fact that the Quraysh did not encounter them afresh gave further credibility to their military power and valour after the battle of Uhud. All these factors helped to bring home to the Quraysh and

The Battle of Uḥud: A Temporary Setback the hypocritical Bedouins around Madinah and in the Arabian the hypocritical pedounts around aviauman and in the Arabian the hypocritical pedounts around a start of the Prophet (peace be upon peninsunautarges unactive point and the Muslims in Madinah was still very much intact

12.6 The Burial of Ḥamzah and Other Martyrs of Uḥud The Prophet lined up the bodies of the martyrs of Uhud, all seventy-The Propriet when and Hamzah was placed first at the head of them. Then he stood to pray for Hamzah, visibly shaken with grief. He gave seven takbirāt (reciting Allāhu Akbar). As he was standing, ready to startthe prayers for Ḥamzah, he caught a sight of his aunt, the valiant Safiyyah bint 'Abd al-Muṭṭalib, Hamzah's full sister, and mother of Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr. His grief intensified at the sight of her, and he quickly dispatched her son 'Abdullah to bar her, lest she should see the mutilated body of Hamzah and 'Abdullāh ibn Jahsh, son of Umaymah bint 'Abd al-Muṭṭalib, Ḥamzah being his maternal uncle. But Safiyyah was informed of the mutilation, and she was bearing the situation patiently. She insisted on witnessing the service and the Prophet (peace be upon him) allowed her to be present.

Then the Prophet (peace be upon him) prayed separately for each martyr, and it was reported that he prayed seventy-two prayers that morning. Some of the dead were buried in one grave, especially those who were known to be close friends. Some of the relatives of the deceased tried to move their dead to Madinah to bury them there, but the Prophet (peace be upon him) ruled that they must be buried where they fell in the fighting and he was obeyed.

12.7 Good Tiding for the Martyrs

After finishing the burial, the Prophet (peace be upon him) gave a snall speech. He said: 'I bear witness on behalf of the martyrs that whosoever is wounded fighting in the way of God, he will be raised on the Day of Resurrection, with his wound bleeding: the colour is the colour of blood, but the smell is the smell of musk.

Then the Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered the burial be so Then the Propriet of the four arranged that those who were known to be memorizers of the Qur'an were buried first, at the head of his friend or relatives.

As we said before, when the Prophet (peace be upon him) As we said veters, returned to Madinah, late that afternoon of Saturday, 15 Shawwai in the second year of Hijrah, he heard the women of Ansars weeping and lamenting the loss of their men. Tears again filled his eyes, and he said: 'But Ḥamzah, who would lament Ḥamzah today?'

and: Dut Hammen, The leaders of the Anṣār Saʿd ibn Muʿādh, and Usayd ibn Hudayr, overheard him. They hurriedly summoned and gathered some women of the Ansars, and sent them over to the Prophet's house to weep for Hamzah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was satisfied, and after a while gave them leave to go. He praised them and said: 'May God reward you, you have amply consoled us on (the death of) Ḥamzah with yourselves.' The Prophet (peace be upon him) then said: 'May God's mercy be upon the Anṣār. They were known for their ability to give comfort and condolence since antiquity.' Then he ordered the Ansar women to leave, and all weeping to stop.

CHAPTER 4

From Uḥud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow

1. THE LONG TERM AFTERMATH OF UHUD

Although the outcome of the Uhud Battle was not a complete defeat, it had all the symptoms of a crushing defeat:

- 2. More than seventy Muslims were killed, including the valiant Hamzah, and the veteran dā 'iyah and ambassador Muş 'ab ibn
- b. The Prophet himself was badly wounded.
- $\epsilon$  . The Muslims took to flight in battle, and were defeated, for the first time in the history of Islam.
- d The Quraysh was jubilant, and the bodies of the dead Muslims were mutilated by the unbelievers, including those of Ḥamzah
- The lews and the hypercritic opposition in Madinah were elated, and the Bedouins around the Prophet's city were beginning to think of seizing what they saw as the weakness of the Muslims' Power, and attack them for the purpose of plunder and material

The morale of the Muslims themselves sank very low, and they the described apprehensive lest the Quraysh and the unruly Bedouins dibedesert would attack them. The Prophet (peace be upon him) had to move fast to offset these traces of what was widely seen as a defeat to move fast to olise the to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at Uhud, and what it led to by way of compromising and lessening at the compromision at the compromi at Uhud, and what it to the Prophet's authority and prestige. The pursuit, which the Prophet the Prophet's authority and prestige. the Prophet's authority and prophet the Prophet (peace be upon him) carried out the next day to the battle, did have (peace be upon man) come of these negative consequences of the defeat but that was not enough. Some more measures had to be taken, to but that was not one taken, to safeguard the state and the Muslim society. In particular, the Prophet sateguard the state (peace be upon him) had to keep a close watch on the movements and the steering of the Arab Bedouins in the desert around. These Bedouins were known for their treachery and unruliness, and for their cruelty and love for material gain. They had no inhibition to kill and raid for the slightest reason. The only way to check them, was to show them force and power and to convince them that they could get no material gains. For this reason, the Prophet (peace be upon him) was wise enough and vigilant enough to keep a close watch over them. He sent 'eyes' amongst them, and those gave detailed information about the Bedouin movements.

2. THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST BANU ASAD

Through his agents 'eyes', the Prophet (peace be upon him) got word about the intentions of the tribe of Banu Asad to attack and plunder Madinah and kill the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself. Immediately, he dispatched an expeditionary force of a hundred and fifty fighters commanded by Abū Salamah ibn 'Abd al-Asad He ordered them to take the enemy by complete surprise. He advised them to take un-trodden roads, and to march by night and hide by day. They reached their destination, attacked the enemy before dawn and took them by complete surprise, as planned. The enemy fled, and dispersed in all directions, leaving their women and property. The Muslim force gathered plenty of booty and returned safely home. This campaign did a lot to restore the prestige and the authority of the Propher the Prophet (peace be upon him) and kept the enemy from within (Jews and hypocrites) well checked and well pacified.

@ 106 D

From Uhud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow 3. THE CAMPAIGN OF 'ABDULLAH IBN UNAYS 3. THE CAMPATON OF ADDUCEAR IDN UNAYS

Another incident had a positive effect: Abdullah ibn Unays was Another incident had a positive effect: Abdullan Ibn Unays was directed against the Arabs of Hudhayl, at Nakhlah, south of Makkah. directed against time Araby of Fridamays, at Franchian, South of Ivrakkan.

Abdullah went there, and found the head of the tribe of Hudhayl, Abdullāh one Khālid ibn Sufyān all by himself, amongst his women. Abdullāh one Khaira bur Sunyan and of the Prophet (peace be upon him), proteinded that the was an enterly the Hudhayl, and their Chief, against who was eager to John manes. Man Mohammad (peace be upon him). Khālid told him of his plans to Munanumar (Presset September 1988) And Abdullah showed his eagerness to hear more albux Maurinan, and album albu from the rest of the men of Hudhayl. At that moment, 'Abdullah jumped upon Khālid, and killed him by his sword. He returned safely to Madinah, and told the Prophet (peace be upon him) of the slaying of Khālid, head and Chief of Banū Hudhayl. As news spread about the demise of Khālid, Banū Lihyān of the tribe of Hudhayl were duly decked, and their plans to invade Madinah were frustrated, and eventually dropped. These two incidents, together with the Prophet's advance to Hamra' al-Asad, went a long way to restore the morale of the Muslims, and to keep the enemies of Islam, both from within and without, duly checked and pacified.

4. THE QUR'ĀNIC COMMENTARY ON THE EVENTS OF UḤUD

However, the greatest solace and comfort, came from Qur'anic verses revealed in the wake of Uhud. Almost sixty verses in  $Sar{u}rah$   $ar{A}l$ Imman gave elaborate commentary on the events of Uhud, and the significance of the defeat, which the Muslims suffered therein.

We are going to give an English translation of these verses of Sìngh Âl 'Imrān (from 121 to 179) as follows:

God said in the following very noble and educative verses, in the whole of the battle of Uhud calamity, starting from verse 121 through

When thou wentest forth at dawn from thy people to lodge the When thou well-believers in their pitches for the battle - God is All-Hearing, All-when two parties of you were about to lose heart, though God was their Protector - and in God let the believers put all their trust

heir Protector

And God most surely helped you at Badr, when you were utterly. abject. So fear God, and haply You will be thankful

When thou saidst to the believers, 'Is it not enough for you that your Lord should reinforce you with three thousand angels sent down

Yea: if you are patient and godfearing, and the foe come against you instantly, your Lord will reinforce you with five thousand swooping angles. God wrought this not, save as good tiding to you, and that your hearts might be at rest; help comes only from God

The All-Mighty, the All-Wise;

And that He might cut off a part of the unbelievers or frustrate them, so that they turned in their tracks, disappointed.

No part of the matter is thine, whether He turns towards them again, or chastises them; for they are evildoers.

To God belongs all that is in the heavens and earth; He forgives whom He will, and chastises whom He will God is All-Forgiving, All-Compassionate.

O Believers, devour not usury, doubled and redoubled, and fear you God; haply so you will prosper.

And fear the Fire prepared for the unbelievers, and obey God and the Messenger; haply so you will find mercy.

And vie with one another, hastening to forgiveness from your Lord, and to a garden whose breadth is as the heavens and earth, prepared for the Godfearing who expend in prosperity and adversity in almsgiving, and restrain their rage, and pardon the offences of their fellowmen; and God loves the good-doers;

Who, when they commit an indecency or wrong themselves, remember God, and pray forgiveness for their sins - and who shall forgive sins but God?

And do not persevere in the things they did and that wittingly. Those - their recompense is forgiveness form their Lord, and gardens beneath which rivers flow, therein dwelling forever;

And how excellent is the wage of those who labour?

From Uhud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow

piers institutions have passed away before you; journey in the Direct maximum one pusses unany vegore you; fourland, and benota now was the cut of the state of the stat This is an exposition for municipal fractions, and an administration for such as are godfearing. Faint not, neither sorrow;

for wound touches you, a like wound already has touched the put shall be the upper ones if you are believers. hathen; such days we deal out in turn among men, and that God hailiten, such unp. we have many the with the may take witnesses from may know who are the believers, and that He may take witnesses from among you; and God loves not the evildoers; and that God may prove who of you have struggled and who are patient? You were longing for death before you met it; now you have seen away before him. Why, if he should die or is slain, will you turn about

Ordid you suppose you should enter Paradise without God knowing the believers and blot out the unbelievers.

Muhammad is naught but a Messenger; Messengers have passed it, while you were beholding.

If any man should turn about on his heels, he will not harm God in any way; and God will recompense the thankful.

It is not given to any soul to die, save by the leave of God, at an appointed time. Whoso desires the reward of this world, We will give him of this; and whoso desires the reward of the other world, We will give him of that; and We will recompense the thankful.

Many a Prophet there has been, with whom thousands manifold have fought, and they fainted not for what smote them in God's way, neither weakened, nor did they humble themselves; and God loves

Nothing else they said but, 'Lord, forgive us our sins, and that we exceeded in our affair, and make firm our feet,

And help us against the people of the unbelievers.

And God gave them the reward of this world and the fairest reward of the world to come; and God loves the Good-doers.

O believers, if you obey the unbelievers they will turn you upon your heels, and you will turn about losers. No, but God is your Protector, and He is the best of helpers.

We will cast into the hearts of the unbelievers terror, for that they have a sociated with God that for which He sent down never authority; their lodging shall be the Fire; evil is the lodging of the evildoers.

@ 109 D

@ 108 D

God has been true in His promise towards you when you blasted them by His leave; until you lost heart, and quarrelled about the them by His leave, the had shown you that you longed matter, and were rebellious, after He had shown you that you longed for.

Some of you there are that desire this world, and some of you there are desire the next world. Then He turned you from them, that He are aesite in the might try you; and He has pardoned you; and God is Bounteous to

When you were going up, not twisting about for anyone, and the Messenger was calling you in your rear; so He rewarded you with grief on grief that you might not sorrow for what escaped you neither for what smote you; and God is Aware of the things you do.

Then He sent down upon you, after grief, security - a slumber overcoming a party of you; and a party themselves had grieved thinking of God thoughts that were not true such as the pagans thought, saying, have we any part whatever in the affair? Say:

The affair belongs to God entirely. They were concealing in their hearts that they show not to thee, saying, 'Ah, if we had a part in the affair, never would we have been slain here. Say: 'Even if you had been in your houses, those for whom slaying was appointed would have sallied forth unto their last couches; and that God might try what was in your breasts, and that He might prove what was in your hearts; and God knows the thoughts in the breasts.

Those of you who turned away the day the two hosts

Encountered - Satan made them slip for somewhat they had earned; but God has pardoned them; God is All-Forgiving, All-Clement.

O believers, be not as the unbelievers

Who say to their brothers, when they journey in the land, or are upon expeditions, 'If they had been with us, they would not have died and not been slain' - that God may make that an anguish in their hearts. For God gives life, and He makes to die; and God sees the things you do.

If you are slain or die in God's way, forgiveness and mercy from God are a better thing than that you amass;

Surely if you die or are slain, it is unto God you shall be

It was by some mercy of God that thou wast gentle to them; hadst thou been harsh and hard of heart, they would have scattered from

From Uhud to al-Khandaq:Times of Hardship and Sorrow about thee. So pardon them and pray forgiveness for them and take about thee. So paraon menerum property for seveness for menerum take a four the affair; and when thou art resolved, put thy must in God; surely God loves those who put their trust. figod helps you, none can overcome you; but if He forsakes you, Therefore in God let the believers put un unter vision.

It is not for a Prophet to be fraudulent; whoso defrauds shall bring

On the day of Resurrection; then every soul that should shall be the fruits of his fraud paid in full what it has earned, and they shall not be wronged. What, is he who follows God's good pleasure like him who is laden with the burden of God's anger, whose refuge is Hell? An evil

They are in ranks with God; and God sees the things they do. Truly God was gracious to the believers when He raised up among them a Messenger from themselves, to recite to them

The Book and the Wisdom, though before they were in manifest

Why, when an affliction visited you, and you had visited twice over the like of it, did you say, 'How is this?' Say: 'This is from your own selves; surely God is powerful over everything.'

And what visited you, the day the two hosts encountered, was by God's leave, and that He might know the believers; and that He might also know the hypocrites when it was said of them, 'Come now fight in the way of God, or repel!' They said, 'If only we know how to fight we would follow you.' They that day were nearer to unbelief than to

Saying with their mouths that which never was in their hearts; and God knows very well the things they hide;

Who said of their brothers (and they themselves held back), 'Had they obeyed us, they would not have been slain.' Say: 'Then avert

Count not those who were slain in God's way as dead, but rather hiving with their Lord, by Him provided,

Rejoicing in the bounty that God has given them and joyful in those who remain behind and have not joined them, because no fear shall be on them, neither shall they sorrow, joyful in blessing and bounty from God, and that God leaves not to waste the wage of the believers.

@ 111 2

And those who answered God and the Messenger after the wound And those who dissert the wound had smitten them - to all those of them who did good and feared God, shall be a mighty wage;

od, shall be a migary Those to whom the people said, 'The people have gathered against Those to whom the performance of said. God is Sufficient for us; and excellent Guardian is He'

So they returned with blessing and bounty from God, untouched by evil; they followed the good pleasure of God; and God is of bounts

That is Satan frightening his friends, therefore, do not fear them: but fear you Me, if you are believers.

Let them not grieve thee that vie with one another in unbelief; they will not hurt God; God desires not to appoint for them a portion in the world to come, and there awaits them a mighty chastisement

Those who buy unbelief at the price of faith, they will nothing hurt God: and there awaits them a painful chastisement.

And let not the unbelievers suppose that the indulgence We grant them is better for them; We grant them indulgence only that they may increase in sin; and there awaits them a humbling chastisement.

God will not leave the believers in the state in which you are, until He shall distinguish the corrupt from the good,

And God will not inform you of the Unseen; but God chooses out of His Messengers whom He will. Believe you then in God and His Messengers; and if you believe and are Godfearing, there shall be for you a mighty wage.

5. LESSONS TO BE DEDUCED FROM THESE VERSES:

1. God assures the Prophet (peace be upon him) that He was, in full cognizance of the grave events of Uhud, He is All-Hearing and All-Knowing; every detail of the battle, from the start to the finish was witnessed by Him that He was there when the Prophet (peace be upon him) stationed his forces at the bottom of Uhud, with the archers on the top of the mountain, and of the Prophe's strict orders to them never to leave their station on the top of the mountain, come what may, even if they saw the imminent death of the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself. God was cognizant

From Uhud to al. Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow of all these details, even the initial controversy whether to fight of all these details, even the initial hesitation to from inside the city, or from outside, and the initial hesitation to

God was there, All-Present when some factions of Anṣār (namely Band Harithah, and Banū Salamah) almost defected, influenced Band Hanman, and Daniel Small and Daniel State George State Color of the hypocrites, headed by 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy by the derection of the affection of the large states and allies. This verse reminds the Muslims of Uhud, not to be demoralized by the withdrawal of one third of the army with Ibn Salūl, because they ought to know better, namely that God is their Lord and Protector, and that He is capable of giving them victory and steadfastness as He did on

- 3. Then God reminded them how He made them victorious at Badr, when they were weak and helpless! So they ought to fear God alone and be grateful to Him.
- 4. The prime lesson to be remembered from Badr, is that success and victory proceeds from God alone, either through the instrumentality of the angels or without them. It so happened that the victory achieved at Badr was through the mediation of the angels, but that was not a necessary arrangement.
- 5. Thus, the initial victory which the Muslims achieved at Uhud, in the first day, was also from God, and it was limited and with a limited objective; to cut off part of the unbelievers of the Quraysh, in fact the Muslims killed more than twenty of the associators of Makkah, during the first phase of the battle, before things began to turn against them, due to the disobedience of the archers.
- 6. When the unbelievers achieved some measure of victory in the scond phase of battle, due to the disobedience of the archers, that victory was not complete. God, so designed the events that (a) the Muslims were not routed (b) nor was the Prophet (peace be upon him) killed nor (c) the unbelievers managed to invade

@ 112 D

- 7. So incensed was the Prophet (peace be upon him) at the sight of So incensed was the sight of the mutilated body of his uncle Hamzah, and the beloved Muş´ab the mutilated body of the same with the bodies of Our ayshites, should God make him victorious over them in the Quraysintes, site of the coming battles. Yet verse 128 of Sūrah Āl 'Imrān admonished him not to do so. Rather, he was advised to leave all matters to the wisdom and the judgement of God alone. He may forgive, and guide them to Islam, as was the case with Khālid ibn al-Walid, who was so disgusted by the deeds and conduct of the Qurayshite at Uhud, especially their mutilation of bodies of the dead, that as a result, he converted to Islam soon afterwards. So, God may choose to forgive or punish them in the Hereafter. This is God's privilege Alone. On hearing this verse, the Prophet (peace be upon him) recounted his earlier statement to retaliate against the act of mutilation, and forgave the unbelievers for their deeds, and actually prayed for their salvation.
- 8. Verses 130-134, hint to the primary cause of defeat at Uhud, namely the excessive love of material things, especially money. It was their love of gathering booty, that lured the archers to disobey the orders of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and to leave their position at the top of the mountain, though they were strongly ordered not to do so, under any circumstances. It is the love of money and material gains that led some Muslims to indulge in usury with the Jews of Makkah and Madinah, and it was the love of money that made them unwilling to spend of their wealth in good causes at difficult times. The Muslims were enjoined to be of the God-fearing, and restrain their anger at the outcome of the Battle of Uhud, especially at the mutilation of the corpses of Ḥamzah and Muṣʿab ibn 'Umayr, and they were also advised to forgive and forget the wounds inflicted upon them during the Battle.
- Verse 135 of Sūrah Āl 'Imrān, indirectly reminded the Muslims of the major sin they had committed at Uḥud, by their flight from the battle, and by deserting the Prophet (peace be upon him) to to the battle, and by deserting the Prophet (peace be upon him) to the battle, and by deserting the Prophet around him, but it also the enemy, with a few number of fighters around him, then God the enemy, with a few numbers of their high forgive them.

From Uhud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow

From Uhud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow

- My Verse numbers 139 and 140 reminded the Muslims of their high standing with God, and that they were advised not to grieve, and not to lose heart, at the defeat at Uhud, and the sight of the wounds inflicted upon their gracious Prophet (peace be upon him) himself. These wounds do not mean anything, except that God tries and tests the strength of the faith of the believers, and their steadfastness in their religious belief. That if the Muslims suffer defeat, and if wounds were inflicted upon them or if some of their men were killed at Uhud, so was the case with the unbelievers at Badr.
- II. The tragedy at Uḥud was an essential trial for the Muslims, so that God would know, who would be mujāhidūn and those who would bear the outcome with good patience. Muslims should not hope to enter Paradise before that examination or trial was completed.
- II. The greatest shock at Uhud was the news, spread by the unbelievers, that Muḥammad (peace be upon him) was killed. The Muslims ran for their lives and ceased fighting, including some Companions of the Prophet (peace be upon him). Verse 144 of Sūrah Āl 'Imrān rebuked the Muslims, who stopped fighting at their hearing of the rumour that Muḥammad (peace be upon him) was killed. Muḥammad (peace be upon him) was of God should not cease, because God. If he was killed, the worship deserves to be worshipped, and not the Messenger, because He lighting and Creator.
- J. Verse 146, reminds the Muslims, not to over-grieve, at the losses of Uhud, or even the death of the Prophet (peace be upon him), if that death did take place. It draws their attention to the facts if that death did take range Prophets and Messengers were and lessons of history, that many Prophets and Messengers were killed, together with their disciples, and the fact that this did not

- 14. Verses 148 and 149, remind the Muslims that if they follow the ways of the unbelievers (Jews as well as the hypocrites), they would reduce themselves to unbelief (back on their heels)! This is the way it is, according to the laws of God (the sunan of God), These laws dictate that conflict and even war is inevitable between truth and falsehood. The Muslims must learn that they have got to fight for their rights to be free to worship none but God alone. and they must fight to make His word supreme on earth, The unbelievers, if they have their way, would not allow them to do so. Life is not the mere enjoyment of food and comforts, or the realization of material goods. It has higher ideals of upholding justice and truthfulness and equality, and above all, freedom to worship God All-Mighty alone. In so far as some men are inclined towards tyranny and oppression, and so long as such a thing as aggressiveness is in-built in the nature of some men, then the Muslims must always be ready to suffer the infliction of wounds, and indeed death itself, in the way of God. As a reward for bearing these inflictions, God has promised them one of the two best eventualities: Victory or Martyrdom. The unbelievers have no such prospects or promises!
- 15. Verses 150, 151 and 152 tell of God's promises to give the Muslim eventual victory over the polytheists of the Quraysh, and that He will do so by installing terror and fear in their hearts. That promise was realized for the Muslims in the initial phase of the Battle of Uhud. But subsequently, the Muslims disobeyed and rebelled and were indulged in division and disagreement. All the subsequent calamities and disappointments were a result of these misdeeds of the archers and their disobedience! Verse 153, refers to the worst of all of these disasters, namely the flight of

From Uhud to al. Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow the Muslims and their abandoning of their Prophet (peace be the Muslims and their administrating of their rrophet (peace be upon him) to be besieged and wounded by the enemy. This verse upon him) to the total the angle of the enemy of the enem (153) releasily says under the control of the second of these calamities to be fall the Muslims (viz; fa-athābakum) ansed mest caramines to be the column trace (vice, further than the column trace), these calamities were as follows: i. First, the defeat, and then the flight of the Muslims.

- ii. The slaying of Ḥamzah, Muṣʿab, together with more - than seventy of the Muslims.
- ii. The wounding of many more Muslims, including the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself!
- iv. The cry and the rumour that the Prophet (peace be upon him) had been killed!
- v. That the Muslims were surrounded by the enemy from all sides, and the prospects of utter routing!
- vi. The abandoning of the Prophet (peace be upon him), despite his repeated calls for them to rally round him!

16. Verse 154 tells of the mercy of God towards the Muslims, despite their misdeeds, that after these calamities and sorrows, they rejoiced when they discovered that the Prophet (peace be upon him) was alive. Some of them experienced some slumber and managed to have a nap, whilst others of the hypocrites amongst them started an argument about the causes of the defeat, some of them attributing it to what they saw as the wrong decision on the part of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the young Muslims to meet the enemy outside Madinah. It was their opinion (logether with Ibn Salūl, the head of the hypocrites) to fight from inside Madinah. However, God rejected their argument, saying that it was only a camouflage, a smoke screen, to hide what they Conceal in their breasts of disbelief and hypocrisy. 'They say had we been followed (in our opinion to fight within the city) we would not have been killed, and defeated in this spot of the God advises the Prophet (peace be upon him) to tell these hypocrites that if they fought the enemy from within the city, hiding in their homes, the result would have been the same and those whom God had destined to die that day, would have come forth from inside their homes, and would have been killed anyway. That is the fate of God, and the fate of God, does not change, come what may. God attributes the misgivings of the hypocrites to the traces of the Jāhiliyyah ideas and doubts, still rife in their minds and hearts. They were also due to their doubts about God's promises to make the Muslims victorious! God further promised to disclose and expose the real motives, and the real unbelief, hidden in the breasts and hearts of these hypocrites, motives and unbelief which God knows too well!

- 17. In verse 153, God tells the Muslims that He caused them disappointment after disappointment (fa athābakum ghamman bighammin) i.e. the defeat was actually a consequence of the Muslims' misdeeds, especially that of the archers. In verse 155, it attributes these calamities to Satan, but it adds that Satan only had his way with them, because of their misdeeds, sins and crimes, especially the crime of disobedience to the Prophet's command for the archers not to leave their positions under any circumstances. But the verse also carries the good news of God's forgiveness for the Muslims.
- 18. Verses 156, 157 and 158, are very educative and noble verses. They enjoin the Muslims that death is not caused by travel or by battle, one dies only when one's set term of life is completed. The morale of this is that Muslims should not fear fighting or travelling or taking any reasonable risks in life, for fear of death. That fear is the characteristic of the thinking modes of the unbelievers, but it is not befitting of the Muslims. That if Muslims were actually killed in battle, when fighting in the cause of God, that is even better for them. They die as Martyrs, and are assured of God's forgiveness and mercy for them in the Hereafter.

From Uhad to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow It's indeed much better for them than what they collect of the his indeed much recurrence when the winds they connect of the life. That if Muslims die in material goods are the cause of God, their sacrifices would not be in the battle for the case of the brought unto God, and be gathered in front of Him, when He will amply reward them for the sacrificing of II Verse 159 is again a very noble and educative verse and is fraught nith very noble ideas and norms. The Prophet (peace be upon him)is told, that it was due to God's mercy on him, that his nature NEW SQU CONStituted by God that he was actually compassionate and letient upon Muslims. Had it not been for this compassionate and lement temperament, and if his temperament was rough and harsh they would have dispersed from around him. So the Rophet was enjoined to invoke this lenient temperament, and forgive the disobedience of the archers, and the ill arguments of the hypocrites, who ascribed the defeat to the Prophet's acting on the outcome of the Shūrā Council.

Despite the ensuing, and on-going controversy about the shūrā, and hypocrites' charge that the defeat on Uhud was a direct result of the Prophet's acting on the outcome of the youth-dominated Miria Council, which decided that the Muslim army move outside the city to meet the enemy, still the Qur'an, in this noble verse, Realfirmed the importance of the  $sh\bar{u}r\bar{a}$  practice, and actually ajoined the Prophet (peace be upon him) to pursue it, just as he pursued the two cordial religious duties of performing salāt and Paping of zakārt. This is meant to give a clear signal, that the practice of shirta is as much obligatory as salāt and  $zak\bar{a}t$ . Thus  $sh\bar{u}r\bar{a}$ here is accorded the very high significance and obligatoriness of the impression is here created, by this verse, that the practice and implementation of the  $sh\bar{u}r\bar{a}$ Outcomes is to be carried out in peace and war times. Moreover, bal practice must be all-embracing and most comprehensive in baj it should include all Muslim citizens, be they old or young, rich or poor, learned or of the generality of Muslims. Of course rich or poor, learned only learned and experienced Muslims of course there are occasions when only learned and experienced Muslims should be consulted. If the topic of a Shūrā Council is a technical one, it makes no sense to insist on consulting the generality of Muslims. But when the issue is a general one, like the one debated by the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims concerning how best to defend Madinah, it was anybody's guess. Thus shūrā position in Islam is quite an entrenched one. It is at the very core of the political theory of Islam. The way the Prophet (peace be upon him) practiced shūrā during the course of events, either leading to Uhud or ensuing it, and the fact that the gracious Prophet (peace be upon him) followed the outcome of the Shūrā Councils is quite significant despite the fact that (1) it was against his own well-considered personal opinion, and (2) despite the fact that the resolution adopted was backed by the youthful Muslims, and opposed by the elderly and the veterans. still the Prophet (peace be upon him) adopted it. All of this goes a long way to prove conclusively, that the outcome of the shūrā is obligatory, on both the members of the Shūrā Council, and the executive authority. None of the two parties would be allowed to go back upon their resolutions, once they have clearly voted for it. This is borne out by the trial of the youthful Muslims to reverse their earlier resolution to fight the enemy from outside Madinah, when they realized that their resolutions ran counter to the personal opinion of the Prophet (peace be upon him) However, the Prophet (peace be upon him) rejected that later move, saying that 'no Prophet will change his mind about going out to the battlefield, once he has put on his armour, until God decides between him and his enemy in the battlefield'. Shūrā is only a means of reaching the best and the most correct human opinion or resolution. However, it does not guarantee success of achieve victory. This is the privilege of God alone, to give victory or succour. For these reasons, Muslims must strive to reach the most correct or wise course of action. After that they have to put

From Uhud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow bid That in God alone, because God loves those who put their dui rust in Good atone, vectouse our roves those who put their und and reliance upon Him alone! Verse 160, again reiterates not and reliance upon research and succour are guaranteed by polonifimisune unan variety and other consideration, except addign trismorman percent of any other consideration, except the arming of the Muslims, the quality of their deeds, and the the earning of or the law of God, which sometimes are meant to test the resolve, the lightly and dedication of the Muslims to their Lord and to the y lerse 161, praises the Prophet (peace be upon him) and pronounces his innocence from the charge, which must have ten made by the hypocrites and those weak of heart and faith, that he would be unjust in his division of the booty of the Battle of Uhud. It is quite possible that some of the weak-hearted Muslims from amongst the archers, had used this argument to MINUAGE their fellow archers to leave their station, and indulge in the collection of the booty, in the initial phase of the battle, when the Muslims were in fact victorious. Verse 161 questions the proposition that the Prophet (peace be upon him) would kunjust in distributing the booty, asking how would one, like the Prophet (peace be upon him), who was phenomenal in God-faring, and in his efforts to please his Lord, be like those matrialists, who clamour for the rewards and benefits of this vorld? Prophets as a whole, of whom Muḥammad is the last and the seal, and the Most beloved in the sight of his Lord, are capping high rank and positions of esteem and honour in the in their Lord, because He knows their strive and jihād in His reg, and for the sake of conveying His call and commandments. his hypocrites and the unbelievers who are of very low rank

Vere 164, is especially addressed to the early Muslims, most of whom were in fact of Arab stock, saying that what a privilege ad honour was bestowed upon them by God. That He should god such a noble Prophet, i.e. Muḥammad (peace be upon him) from their own kith and kin, an Arab from amongst them, that he would recite the noble verses of the Qur'an on them, that he would purify and cleanse them from sins and disobedience, and that he would teach them what is contained in the Book of the Qur'an. Moreover, he would teach them Prophetic wisdom, and the practical implementation of the teachings of the Book, though they were in manifest error and ignorance in their jāhiliyyah days.

- 22. Verses [165-168], reiterate themes, mentioned before, that:
  - i. The calamity that had befallen them in Uhud, is due to their deeds, yet why should they be vexed that calamity may overtake them? Had they not inflicted a worse disaster and defeat upon the unbelievers at Badr? These are the revolving fates of God and His laws, that whoever does a misdeed, be he Muslim or unbeliever, is punished!
  - Even so, Muslims must know that what had happened to them in Uhud, was by permission of God; and so that God would know the true believers from amongst them.
  - Also, those events were a trial so that God would also know the hypocrites, who are unwilling to fight in the way of God, and to expose their real stance: being nearest to unbelief rather than faith, they said by their mouths what was not in their hearts.
  - They spread false rumours that, if their position at the Shūrā Council was adopted, defeat would not have befallen them at Uhud. And they stayed behind in Madinah, and failed to come forth to battle. The verse is obviously an allusion to 'Abdullāh ibn Ubayy ibn Salūl and his faction, who deflected at the critical hour, and did not take part in the fighting. Ibn Salūl was allied

From Uhud to al-Khandaq:Times of Hardship and Sorrow 10 the Khazraj, whom he called: 'our brothers', and was to the Khazral, which he caned our prothers, and was saying if these brothers obeyed him and supported his sping, runes to must be defended from within, position under the have been killed and defeated. God rejects such a false argument, and challenges the hypocrites to propel and avert death, if they are truthful

These verses (121-180) of Sūrah Āl 'Imrān, especially the verses of 169, 170, 171 now approach the climax of their themes, when they state the position and the honour of the martyrs unto their Lord.

This magnificant Qur'anic verse may be translated as

Count not those who were slain in God's way as dead, Nay, they are alive with their Lord, receiving their sustenance (as usual) rejoicing in the bounty that God has given them, and iovful in (the prospects of) those who remain behind and have not yet joined them, because no fear shall befall them, neither shall they grieve. Joyful in blessing and bounty from God, and that God does not leave, to waste the wage of the believers. [Āl 'Imran 3:169-1711

This noble Qur'ānic verse, I bear witness to this, as I have seen tin my own personal experience, has changed the lives of many towands of Muslims, not only in history but in contemporary times, young men who march to meet death, as if they are marching in their wedding ceremony. I have seen young men refusing to marry and take human wives, because they wanted be martyrs, and be wedded to the maidens of Paradise. I have Romen, predicting the day they would die martyrs and enter Paddise. I have seen men emerge from battle crying because they balemerged alive and did not die martyrs, as they wished to die. There seen men, predicting the day they would die as martyrs, and they actually did die as predicted. I have seen some of those who were so sure that they would die on a specific date, to the who were so still date, to the extent that they gave a farewell party to their friends and loved extent that they gar-ones, and then they really died as predicted. And I have heard of ones, and then they martyrdom in their dreams, and it came true men, who san of a summer day. I have heard of men who had seen the landscape, the place where they would fall martyrs, some fifteen or twenty years ago, and they lived until they came to the actual spot they had seen in their dreams, and they recognized it at once when they saw it, and then they were chosen by God as martyrs in that same spot. I met one of these would-be martyrs and he was constantly carrying a bottle of perfume in his pocket. I asked him:

'Ibn 'Umar,' for that was his name, 'I heard that you constantly carry a bottle of perfume in your pocket?' I asked.

'Yes, I do,' he replied, and he immediately put his hand in his pocket, and produced the bottle.

'Why are you carrying it around,' I asked the young chap, from a very well-to-do family of Khartoum.

'Because I hope Insha' Allah to die a martyr, and I do not want to meet my Lord except cleansed and perfumed. He replied. About a month later, news reached us in Khartoum that Ibn 'Umar had fallen a martyr in battlefield, and we were told that, on the eve of the day he fell martyr, he gave a party to his best friends, and told them, at the end of the party, which lasted far in the night, that he would definitely die a martyr the next day, and that was exactly what had happened. A friend of his told me that he had fought very gallantly chanting, as did Bilāl ibn Rabāh, the Abyssinian Companion and muezzin of the Prophet (peace be upon him).

Today I will meet the beloved ones, Muḥammad and his Companions!"

No doubt, these Qur'anic Verses (3:169-171) were a major spiritual power that helped to reshape the world's history since the incention. the inception of Islam; and no doubt, they will continue to the

From Uhud to al-Khandaq:Times of Hardship and Sorrow shape it until God inherits the Earth and those who live on its surface. These verses were also, no doubt, among the dynamic forces behind Islamic conquests, of the early Islamic history, that Sweptacross the globe. Those conquests could only be interpreted in the light of Qur'anic verses, such as the above mentioned NETSES, Bumbers 154 and 169-171 of Sūrah Āl 'Imrān.

4. Verses 172, 173, 174 and 175 tell of how the Muslims, the next day after their return from Uḥud, were mobilized again to go out to meet the Qurayshite enemy, still hovering in the vicinity of Madinah, and how these gallant and dedicated Muslims responded to the call, though many were seriously wounded. They were led by the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself, who was still suffering from the wounds inflicted on his head and face the previous day. The Muslims army marched until they reached a place called Hamra' al-Asad, about eight miles from Madinah to the South, on the road to Makkah. That was on the 16th of Shawwil, of the second year of the Hijrah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslim army stayed there for three days and nights, terrifying the enemy, and proving the military might and valour of his Muslim army. Some of the companions, who were badly wounded at Uhud, vowed to accompany the Prophet (peacebe upon him), and never to stay behind him. Ibn Hishām, mentioned the example of two men, brothers of the As'ad Banū al-Ashhal, maternal cousins of the Prophet (peace be upon him). Both of them had been seriously wounded at the Battle of Uhud. When they heard the call for battle, they vowed to go forth with the Prophet (peace be upon him). One of them, who Was less seriously wounded used to carry his brother, who was the Pranches ( the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself, that God has revealed

Netse 173, is well-known to have a definite spiritual value, it has been Protects the combatants, who recite it during battle; it has been tried many times over. The Prophet (peace be upon him), as he was encamping at Hamra' al-Asad, met a travelling band of Banū Abd al-Qays; the Prophet (peace be upon him) asked about Abū Sufyān and his intentions. They told him that he gave them a message saying that he was coming back to Madinah to exterminate the Muslims. At that point, the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: The Qur'an alludes to this incident and this encounter in verse 173-175. Said God in these verses:

@ 124 D

Those who responded to the call of God and Messenger, after wounds have hit them, to those who did well and feared (God) is a great reward. Those to whom people said that the people have massed against you, therefore fear them, but it increased them in faith, and they said 'God is Sufficient onto us, and He is an excellent Guardian.' So they returned with blessing and bounty from God, untouched by evil, and they followed the good pleasure of God and God is indeed of bounty abounding. That is the Satan frightening his friends, therefore do not fear them, but fear you Me if you are (true) believers... [Āl 'Imrān 172-175]

26. Verse 176, consoled the Prophet (peace be upon him) and sought to comfort him, concerning the withdrawal of the hypocrites from the battlefield, headed by Ibn Salūl. God told the Prophet (peace be upon him) not to grieve over their behaviour. God desired not to appoint for the hypocrites any portion of rewards in the world to come. Verse 177, still commenting on the behaviour of the hypocrites, and their withdrawing from fighting, said that they would make no difference to God, Who did not need their good deeds, nor did He need their fighting in the way of Him. They will only harm themselves, as they will be severely punished in the Hereafter. Thus, this verse continued to comfort the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims, on the sad and sorrowful events of the day of Uhud. In the same vein, verse 178 warns the hypocrites that the fact that God did not cause them to suffer any immediate punishment for their betrayal of the Muslims, and the betrayal of God and his religion, does not mean that it was good

Foon Uhud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow orthm. It is only that God gave them a respite, so that they or bem. It is only that Good Bave them a Tespite, so that they pur grow in unwener and any research and a superior Jirie 179 is a very significant verse, it spells out God's grand Purpose of enacting wars and suffering, such as the Prophet purpose of charactering and the Muslims suffered at Uhud. It was peace De upon many and trial for them so that God will sort out the hold and the good from amongst them. The true believers will he separated from the hypocrites, as a result of these traumatic appriences, such as that of the Battle of Uḥud. And because it was a trial, the outcome of the trial will not be disclosed to the true believers, whether in this world, (such as the outcome of the war) or in the Hereafter, (as to the destiny of the good and but factions especially). But God will elect some of His Prophets а Не wills, so that Muslims are commanded to believe in them (and follow them!) because if Muslims do believe and fear God, they will indeed be assured of a great reward.

N Verse 180, comments on the stance of the Jews of Madinah. According to their covenant with the Prophet (peace be upon  $\frac{1}{2}$  him [spelt out and documented in the  $\frac{Sahifah}{I}$  of Madinah], they were obliged to contribute towards the costs of any war that the Prophet (peace be upon him) had to fight in defence of Madinah. Alter all, they were accorded full citizenship of the city-state of Madinah, and they enjoyed all rights and privileges of citizenship of the city. And since they chose not to participate in the defence of the city, by fighting alongside the Prophet (peace be upon bim) and the Muslims, the least they could do was to contribute towards the war expenses. But they wanted to do neither, despite the fact that they were rich, and God bestowed upon them of His bunty. This noble verse reminded the Jews of Madinah, who the distribution of the bounty God had bestowed upon them, bat they should not suppose that it was better for them, nay it vas in fact worse for them. What they were unwilling to spend in the way of God, and were niggardly with, will be hung are their necks on the day of Resurrection, and to God belong to inheritance of the Heavens and Earth, and God is indeed and of all the things these Jews of Madinah were doing.

Thus we arrive at the end of these sixty verses of Al Incident (from 121-180) which give an elaborate commentary on the lasting significance of those very painful events of the dere Uhud. They educated and consoled the Prophet (peace be upon him), and the believers, and they unravelled the laws and cannot of God that rule supreme over the social as well as the natural

6. TWO OTHER SAD DEVELOPMENTS

Hardly had the wounds caused by the traumatic experience of the Battle of Uhud healed, than two other very unfortunate events took place with sad and sorrowful consequences for the Muslims. There were the events:

- The Well of al-Rajī1 (625 C.E.) in which six prominent Companions of the Prophet were treacherously killed, and;
- b. The Battle of the Well of Ma'unah, in which some forty of the best Companions of the Prophet who were quite versed in the Qur'an, were killed, also in a very mean and treacherous was These Qur'anic Scholars were commanded by the Companional the Prophet, al-Mundhir ibn 'Amr, of the Ansar of Banû Sa ida The details of these two events are given by Ibn Hishām, in a very elaborate and detailed way. What we will do here, is just to sketch the main lines of these two sad events, which caused the gracious Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims to grice. profoundly, at a time when the sad memories of Uhud were start were much. very much fresh in their memories.2

From Uhard to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow 7. THE EVENTS OF THE WELL OF AL-RAJI' 7. THE EVENTS OF THE WELL OF AL-KAJI

Goldwided the Redouins around Madinah as being quite confirmed

The Bedwards are more confirmed in unbelief and hypocrisy, and The Boundary are more companied at anothing certa hypoteristy, and after my to know the bounds of what God has sent down on His and blot and hypocrisy: groups and God is All-Wise. [al-Tawbah 9: 97]

God also said of these Bedouins: Served the Bedouins take what they expend for a fine, and await the arm of fortune to go against you. Theirs shall be the evil turn; God s All-Hearing, All-Knowing, [al-Tawbah 9: 98]

God also condemns the Bedouins of Madinah, in very clear and bash words, in another verse, says God:

And some of the Bedouins, who dwell around you, are hypocrites, and some of the people of Madinah are grown bold in hypocrisy, you know them not, but We know them, and We shall chastise them twice. [al-Tawbah 9:101]

Names of Companions killed at al-Rajī' and afterwards are:

Marthad ibn Abi Marthad al-Ghanawi, the ally of Ḥamzah ibn Abd al-Muttalib. It is to be remembered that Marthad was sharing the same camel with the Prophet (peace be upon him)

1 Khālid ibn al-Bakīr, the ally of 'Adiyy ibn Ka'b. 1 Taşim ibn Thabit, from the Aws (Anṣār).

& Rhabayo ibn 'Adiyy, from the Anṣār.

3 Zand ibn al-Dathinnah, from Khazraj, Abdullah ibn Ţāriq, from the Aws.

All of them were quite versed in the Qur'ān, and some of them memorized it by heart. They were demanded by the clans of Adha wa'l-Qarah of the tribe of al-Hawn of Khuzaymah, to come to the places to teach them Islam. They begged and entreated the Prophe (peace be upon him) to send these learned men to them, so that they might teach them the Qur'ān. But when they were so sent, they attacked them, killing three of them immediately, and taking three others as captives. One of those captives managed to set himself free, and tried to escape. But they killed him by having him surrounded and stoning him. That was 'Abdullāh ibn Ṭāriq. The other two, namely Khubayb ibn 'Adiyy and Zayd ibn al-Dathinnah were sold as slave in Makkah, and eventually killed in the most cruel way.

8. THE EVENTS OF THE WELL OF MA'ŪNAH

The Events of the Well of Ma'ūnah were even harsher and bloodier than those of the Well of al-Rajī'. Almost all the forty Muslims, all of the best and more learned, were treacherously killed. They were invited by Abū'l-Barā' ibn 'Amr, to teach the Bedouin tribe of Banā 'Āmir of Najd, as most of them were memorizers of the Qur'ān by heart. The Chief of Banū 'Āmir of Najd was one 'Āmir ibn al-Tufayl, well known for his enmity of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims.

The Muslims party set out for Najd, as Abū'l-Barā' gave the Prophet (peace be upon him) very strong assurances that the Muslims were in his protection. They were stopping at the Well of Ma'ūnah, mid-way between the land of Banū 'Āmir, and the Ḥārah of Banū Salīm, another Bedouin tribe, hostile to the Muslims. The Bedouins attacked them, incited by Ibn Ṭufayl. The men of Banū 'Āmir refused to obey their chief, Ibn Ṭufayl, as they knew of the protection accorded to the Muslims, by Abū'l-Barā', also a well respected chieftain of the Banū 'Āmir. But then 'Āmir Ibn Ṭufayl mobilized his allies from the Bedouins of Banū Salīm, who obeyed him and suddenly surrounded the Muslims, and overwhelmed them Food Chard to al-Khandaq-Times of Hardship and Sorrow The Modims fought quite gallantly, and did not try to The Mostants rought quite gallantly, and did not try to Harim Harim they were all killed in the fighting, excepting Harim The state of the s Amir Ibn ! ufayl, and was sent as an amuassactor to Amir Ibn ! ufayl, and the instantly before even delivering his message. Another Another memory, verone even derivering his message. Another message in the name of Ka'b ibn Zayd, from Banu Dinar of the Banu The Ansar, was badly wounded, and was abandoned by and the lived on and made his way to Madinah, and the a martyr on the Battle of al-Khandaq. Two members of a grow were left with the horses of the Muslim party. They were imr fin Umayyah al-Damarī (b) al-Mundhir ibn Muḥammad ete Ansar). The Ansari, al-Mundhir ibn Muhammad, went and fought the Bedouins of Salim and was killed. The other namely 'Amr ibn Umayyah was taken captive, but later set makwas 'Amribu Umayyah, who broke the sad news of the killing of both Quira" (or Huffaz) to the Prophet (peace be upon him). lar bu al-Jufayl was later smitten by Rabī 'ah ibn abī al-Barā' ibn But the wound was not fatal, and ibn Tufayl lived on.

9. TWO MIRACLES FOR TWO OF THESE HUFFĀZ

and one of those Muslim hāfiz, saw him raised so high that he was he had one of those Muslim hāfiz, saw him raised so high that he was have the douds. He asked who that man was, and was told he was have har hayrah, the ally of Abū Bakr.

The second miracle was narrated by Jabar ibn Salamah ibn Mālik.

The second miracle was narrated by Jabar ibn Salamah ibn Mālik.

The second miracle was narrated by Jabar ibn Salamah ibn Mālik.

The second miracle was narrated by Jabar ibn Salamah ibn Mālik.

The second miracle was narrated by Jabar said he family ibn al-Ţufayl.

The second miracle was narrated by Jabar said he was with plunged his spear, be over heard the wounded Muslim salamah being killed, and still saying that he had won. Later, and became a Muslim

10. THE JEWISH PLOT TO KILL THE PROPHET!

The sole survivor of the Ḥuffāz, who were exterminated at the wellof Ma'unah, by the name of 'Amr ibn Umayyah, killed two men u of Ma unan, by the Banu 'Amir, the tribe of the treacherous 'Amir ibn al-Tufay, in doubt in vengeance for the killing of the Muslim Huffaz at the Well of Ma'unah. 'Amr ibn Umayyah did not know at the time, that the Bani Ma unant. Amir were under covenant with the Prophet (peace be upon him) When he told the Prophet (peace be upon him) about the killing of the two men of Banū 'Āmir, the Prophet (peace be upon him) said.

'I have an obligation, under the treaty with Banū 'Āmir, to pay their blood money. I have to ask our confederates from the Jews of Banû al-Nadîr to help towards that payment, as they are quite rich and required to do so by the terms of the Agreement of Sahifah of Madinah.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) went to the quarters of Banu. al-Nadir to ask them to pay their share in the blood money of the two 'Amirites, killed by 'Amr ibn Umayyah. He led a big delegation of Muslims, including his three top aides: Abū Bakr, 'Umar and 'Alī. The Jews did not receive them well, and they were grumbling about paying the prescribed money. They also showed their resentment of the killing of Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, one of the Jews assassinated by the Muslims, because of his role in inciting the Qurayshites and the Bedouins, as well as the Jews to fight the Muslims and invade Madinah. Then the Jews, as the Prophet (peace be upon him) was standing against the wall of the yard, plotted to kill him. They even commissioned one of them, by the name of 'Amr ibn Jahsh ibn Kah to climb the wall, against which the Prophet (peace be upon him) was sitting, and drop a rock on his head. But then Jibril, the Ard Angel, informed the Prophet (peace be upon him) of the plot the Jews of Banu al-Nadir were about to execute. The Prophet (peace be upon him) rose and took permission, pretending to answer the call of patterns. of nature; but never to return to his place of meeting with the less. When a longer interval than usual lapsed, the Companions left as well

Food Unad to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow was read their best to look friendly and hospitable, lest their plot Assessment the two former-conformer-

Make the two former confederates and allies. Report Mahammad (peace be upon him) called for the siege The siege continued for six days and nights. That the fourth year of the Hijrah, the events of the and Ma'unah were in the third year of Hijrah). The Benial Nadir withdrew to their strong fortress, and whenever approached them, they fired at them with arrows and and other weapons. Seeing that the situation was stalemate, **Poplet (peace be upon him) ordered the Muslims to cut down wate trees and destroy their crops. When the Jews saw that, they and to surrender, provided the Prophet (peace be upon him) gave assurt conduct outside the city. The Prophet (peace be upon him) and that each of them could carry whatever his camel(s) could are from his household items, but no weapons would be allowed made Madinah. They then moved out of Madinah in a great show Metival and celebration, as if victory was on their side, with their winen singing and sounding the drums. The Prophet (peace be upon mi and the Muslims gained a great deal of booty and weapons, as and of the eviction of Banu al-Nadir.

The great portion of Sūrah al-Ḥashr was revealed on the occasion the conflict between the Prophet (peace be upon him), and the Jews Almi al-Nadir. Verses 2-20 talked about God's design to evacuate ≈ kos of Banū al-Nadūr, because of their treachery and plotting to des hophet (peace be upon him), despite the covenants between and the Muslims. The verses described the typical way in which the data deristically fought their enemy, from behind walls, townships and from behind fortifications. These verses Prophet's trick of cutting the fruit trees of the Jews to best out of these fortifications. It also sanctioned the way the peace be upon him) had distributed the booty among the pece be upon him) had distributed the booty giving the Ansar a lesser portion, pecause the stribution of the wealth among the greatest numbers, in Muslim society, and which became a permanent rule of the economy in Islam, has been revealed a greater distribution of world here, and it commended a greater distribution of wealth: says God,

Whatsoever spoils of war God has given to His Messenger, from the people of the cities, belongs to God and His Messenger, and the near kinsman, to orphans, the needy, and the traveller, so that it (wealth) be not a thing taken in turns (Revolve) among the rich of you alone, Whatever the Messenger gives you take it, and whatever he forbids you, give it over, and fear God, surely God is Severe in retribution [al-Hashr 59:7]

11. TOTAL BAN ON WINE

It is during the siege of Banu al-Nadīr, that the total ban on wine was enacted by the Qur'an, i.e. in Rabi' al-Awwal, the fourth year of Hijrah. Before that, the Muslims were only ordered not to pray when drunk, until they knew what they were saying. They were told that the drinking of wine is a big sin, but that it has some benefits, but that its harm was, in fact, greater than its benefit. Then the final ban was effected when a verse was revealed declaring that wine, gambling, sacrificing to idols and divining arrows, as abominations of Satan work, and commanded the Muslims to avoid them happily and they would prosper:

God Says in the Qur'an:

O believers! Wine, gambling, sacrificing to idols and the divining arrows are an abomination of the work of Satan, so avoid it, happily so you will prosper. Satan only desires to precipitate enmity and hatred between you, in regard to wine and arrow shuffling, and to bar you from the remembrance of God and from prayer. Will you then desist? [al-Mā'idah 5:90-91]

It is quite significant that the philosophy of social change advocated in this verse is not a revolutionary one, rather it is a gradual one, even in one, even in matters crucially touching the basic issues of conduct and

From Whud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow Promotion and gambling are serious moral ills, and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling are serious moral ills, in the Our's and gambling adverse effect on society, yet the Our's and gambling adverse effect on society. disc, Although wine drinking, and gambling are serious moral ills, allowed wine drinking, and gambling are serious moral ills, and gambling are serious moral i by probunding agverse enect on society, yet the Qur an allowed until the fourth year har properties in the Muslim community until the fourth year har properties in the Qur'anic preoccupation with the properties of the properties of the preoccupation with the properties of the preoccupation with the properties of th be perpetuation in the Musium community until the Tourth year with changing high this relects the Qur'anic preoccupation with changing their emotional alliance fixed in the preoccupation with changing their emotional alliance fixed in the preoccupation with the preoccupation with changing their emotional alliance fixed in the preoccupation with the preoccupation with changing the preoccupation with changing the preoccupation with changing the preoccupation with the preoccupatio ophigh. This reliects the Quirante Predecupation with changing and winning their emotional alliance first. In so far as the prophis ideas, and winning their emotional then it is back. powksidess and winning user emotionar amance met. In so far as ording is committee to change people's minds and hearts first.

12. THE CONFLICT WITH BANU AL-NADIR,

AND A BIG RIFT WITH JEWS The Battle against Banú al-Nadir marked a very big and significant ritin Muslim-Jew relations. It was reported that up to the conflict Month, the Prophet (peace be upon him) used to have a Jewish proposed secretary, reported to be very good in writing, and welluned in the Scriptures, and knew ancient languages, like Hebrew, Spinc, in addition to Arabic. That Jewish Secretary was replaced եր Zayd ibn Thābit al-Anṣārī, who was appointed as confident and personal secretary to the Prophet (peace be upon him), after the conflict with the Jews of Banu al-Nadir.

13. THE PLEDGED SECOND ENCOUNTER AT BADR

When the annual memory of Uḥud came round in the 4th year of liput, the Prophet (peace be upon him) remembered that he had ledged to meet Abū Sufyān and the Makkan unbelievers at Badr the ayear. He, therefore, summoned the Muslims to take up their time, but some feeble-hearted from amongst them, remembered the bundle experience of Uhud, and they expressed their wish that they Referred to fight their enemies from within the city of Madinah. But the hophet (peace be upon him) was indignant and castigated these Mains for their weakness and hesitation, and told them that he was Blog out to Badt, even if had to go it alone. That decisive stance on the part of the Prophet (peace be upon him), sealed the issue, and the part of the Propriet (p. and pights. However, Abū Sufvān at stayed there all hesitation was gone.

for eight full days and nights. However, Abū Sufyān and his army failed to show up. It was reported that, after he started some distance failed to show up. ... towards Badr, he returned to Makkah, saying that the rainy season was good, and his army was not well prepared. He promised to go out to attack the Muslims the next year, same time. The Muslim army, led by the Prophet (peace be upon him), learned about the retreat of Abū Sufyān. They were jubilant, and they stayed there, in good cheer and high spirit. They even conducted some profitable trades with Bedouin tribes. Their prestige and authority over Arabia, were greatly enhanced, to the disadvantage of the Quraysh, who failed to take the field against the Prophet (peace be upon him), although the initial challenge came from their part, the Prophet (peace be upon him) only responding.

Thus, events began to move in the direction of a major and final battle between the Muslims and the Qurayshites. To Abū Sufvān, the Prophet's military show in Badr in the fourth year of Hijrah, and his own failure to show up was most disquieting. So he started to mobilize early in the fifth year, for a major show-down with the Muslims. Before we discuss the Battle of al-Khandaq, and the major events leading to it, let us take a last glance at the epic of Uhud and its aftermath.

14. SOME HIGHLIGHTS OF UHUD

The Prophet (peace be upon him) managed to keep his ground, to rally the Muslims back, and to complete an orderly withdrawal towards the bottom of the mountain. Although bleeding and utterly exhausted, he maintained his coolness, mental alertness and his good cheer. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) reached the bottom of the mountain, Khālid ibn al-Walīd and his horsemen were still there, having routed the disobedient archers. At their sight, the Prophet (peace be upon him) gave a very loud and great shout of anger, resolve and indignation. Which means: 'They have no right to be stationed Foon Uhud to al-Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow From Vivue and the Part of times, referring to the Qurayshite of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sumber of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times, referring to the Qurayshite was a sum of times. Muslim force gathered at once, and Muslim force gathered gathe James that indignant cry, a musim force garnered at once, a mu James and the symmetry combed to the symmetry Indik mountain and engaged Nirand 1911 at ward (at that time) and his company and managed to remove them dambelever) and no company and managed to remove them and push them back quite a distance. Thus, it was abut poortion and push them back your a distance. Thus, it was both the prophet (peace be upon him) abstraction and minimess of the Pattle of Uhud were albanillary acument was the hot pursuit which youth The motor than to Hamra' al-Asad. The unbelievers were sembled to consider whether they ought to attack the Muslims ISOME TO LUMBIAL THE METERS AND THE

15. THE MARTYRDOM OF MUKHAYRIQ, THE JEW

with Muslims they hurried back to Makkah.

histoberemembered that Mukhayriq had converted to Islam, in train days of the Prophet's arrival in Madinah. When the Prophet poor be upon him) learned about his conversion to Islam, he said: Mulhayriq is the best of the Jews.' On the day of the Battle of Uhud, Mithayriq went to the Jews and said:

You know very well that is obligatory upon you (according to the propositive document of Madinah Sahifat al-Madinah to support Nammad against the attack of Quraysh.' But the Jews replied that it 14 Shurday, and they could not fight or do any work on Saturdays.

This is only an excuse; but I am going to fight along side with him, adilam killed all my money and property must go to Muḥammad.' Ba Mukhayriq joined the battle, and fought gallantly until he was

Thus the events that came in the wake of the Battle of Uhud were The initial shock and grief of defeat were gradually giving by the unital snock and grier or dereat were gradients and more self-confidence, especially after the defeat alevition of the Jews of Banū al-Nadīr. The Prophet's outing first to Ḥamrā' al-Asad, and then second to Badr in the fifth year, duly to Ḥamra al-Asau, and deterred the aggressive, war-pruned desert enhanced his power and presting in scared the Quraysis, and Bedouins and greatly enhanced his power and prestige in Madinah, and the killing of the large. The sad memories of the Uhud, and the killing of the huffaz at al-Raji and Ma'ūnah were largely forgotten. Yet the war against the Quraysh was far from being over, and the Arab desert Bedouins had still to be watched closely, and Muslims at Madinah had still to worry about the enemy from within, namely the hypocrites, headed by Ibn Salūl, It was this Ibn Salūl who incited the Jews of Banū al-Nadīr to break their covenant with the Prophet (peace be upon him), and promised to come to their help, should hostilities break out. He even promised to go out with them, should it come to that. But he miserably failed to honour any of these two promises. Thus Ibn Salūl used the lews of Banu al-Nadīr to fan his own opposition to the Prophet (peace be. upon him). But in the crucial hour, he failed to act. These misdeeds of Ibn Salūl were alluded to in Sūrah al-Hashr, we mentioned earlier.

Two small expeditions which the Prophet (peace be upon him) directed against the Bedouins around Madinah, and which were successfully carried out, greatly enhanced the security of the city, and further strengthened the position of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims therein. Thus the Prophet (peace be upon him) enjoyed a brief period of peace and stability, and was able to take care of some of the home and family problems, which were left pending during these tremulous years of war and conflict. One of these was the question of Zaynab bint Jahsh and her unstable marriage to his former adopted son, Zayd ibn Hārithah. The Prophet's cousin Zaynab bint Jahsh, was a Hashimite, and her family was not approving her marriage to Zayd, a former slave, but accepted the marriage out of reverence to the Prophet (peace be upon him). However, life between the young couple became more and more untenable. Zayd used to complain to the Prophet (peace be upon him), who loved Zayd as much as a father would love his dear son. But every time Zayd complained, the Prophet (peace be upon him) would advise him against divorce, and would tell him to fear God and keep his wife.

Food Uhud to al. Khandaq: Times of Hardship and Sorrow 16. THE CHARACTER OF LAYNAB

16. THE CHARACTE Jack Bood and devout Muslim, and was known to have there will be the orphans. Yet there will be the poor, the needy and the orphans. monoposion for the poor, the needy and the orpnans. Yet there Zayd, and the orpnans. Yet there are orpnans. Yet there

are orpnans. Yet there are orpnans. Yet there po no social and emotional companionity between ner and Zayd, and emotional companionity between ner and Zayd, and emotional companionity between ner and Zayd, and an analysis and an arriage on the grant and all the marriage on the grant and all the grant and gr Months respected quite well. In particular, ner family, especially the marriage on the grounds set by the marriage of the grounds set by the marriage of the grounds set by the by the by the grounds set by the winds by th of unity to former slaves or even Arabs of non-Qurayshite stock. And to force be upon him) had to force Make and destroy Arab racism and false feeling of superiority. Bannageru wassey she prophet (peace be upon him) was seeking to establish the abbutterrupneur production of the state of t and not by their worth and piety, and not by their ethnicity radgest The Qur'an denounced racism, and sentiment of ethnical spanning, in the most harsh words. Said God in the Qur'an:

Omnkind, we have created you from male and female, and appointed you races and tribes, that you may know each other, surly the noblest among you (the most honoured) in the sight of Golare the most God-fearing of you, God is All-Knowing, All-Aware.

Customs and traditions of nations and races do not change ting or in a short span of time. Although the Qur'an rejected all and biases, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) condemned nades and ethnicity in the strongest terms, and did all he could numbut these social ills, rife in the pre-Islamic society, yet they resided on, as the Zayd-Zaynab marriage amply demonstrated. in loday, racialism and ethnicity is not dead in Muslim society, hidis a fact to be derided, given that the Qur'an and the sunnah balangsied it almost fourteen centuries ago. It is of course be that racialism exists in a mild form in the Muslim countries, Separation of the West. But Western countries are now quite timid to acknowledge Sandial discrimination is practised in their countries, and they are doing all they can to combat it, especially in France, Germany

Although orientalists have tried to make a scandal out of the Marriage of the Prophet (peace be upon him) to Zaynab, after her divorce from Zayd, a divorce which the Prophet (peace be upon him) tried hard to avert (advising Zayd many times to 'hold to your wife and fear God'), yet the question was actually quite natural and ordinary in traditional Arab society. Even today, if a women is divorced, or if widowed the next of kin would marry her as to protect and provide for her. Zaynab (may God be pleased with her), might have been beautiful, but that was not the overriding reason why the Prophet (peace be upon him) married her, after her divorce from Zayd. At any rate, Zaynab was his cousin, who was under his eyes since she was a child. Had it being a question of love or lust, as the orientalist conjectured, he could have married her earlier on, and would not have been instrumental, as he really was, in arranging her marriage to Zavd. so as to break an old Arabian custom that fathers by adoption could not marry the ex-wives of their adopted sons. Thus, the Prophet's marriage to Zaynab was actually commanded by the Qur'an, for very objective considerations. It might be true that the Qur'anic command concurred with the Prophet's own personal wish to solve the problem of the unsuccessful marriage of his adopted son, Zayd, and his cousin Zaynab. It might even be true that he liked the idea of marrying the compassionate and beautiful Zaynab and to bring her some happiness, as she had earlier agreed to marry Zayd, merely out of respect and reverence for the Prophet (peace be upon him), though she had no feelings for him. Be that as it may, the Qur'an commended the marriage in clear and unequivocal terms.

When you said to him whom God has blessed, and you had favoured; keep your wife to yourself and fear God; and you were concealing. within you, what God would reveal, fearing other men but God has better right for you to fear Him! So when Zayd had accomplished what he would of her; we gave her in marriage to you, so that there should not be any fault in the believers marrying the ex-wives of their From Uhud to al-Khandaq:Times of Hardship and Sorrow had sus, when they have accomplished what they would of them, droughers, when they have accomplished what they would of them as a state of the st God guid, quite explicitly, in the above quoted Qur'anic verse od suid, quite explicitly. In the above quoted Qur anic verse quoted Qur anic verse above quoted Qur anic verse quoted Qur anic verse quoted Qur anic verse quoted quoted Qur anic verse quoted Jajanto Zand had accomplished what he would of her. We gave more, God with a more, God with a more would be more, God with a more would be more more woul ya Duringe to you to muniaminacy... and turther more, God appropriate opening this was to appropriate the ex-wife appropriate opening the ex-wife approp and in the eyes of more Armos and the Prophet (peace be upon And the second s indulpance occupous many and a second of Uhud, the Well of al-Raji, Bull of Ma mah, where some of the best of his Companions were Boldy the crude and blood-thirsty Arabs of the desert Bedouins. Internation, he also got married to other ladies. But these other strings were for political reasons and other human motives, as modition were women advanced in age, and without much of wincanormally desire for in marriage, i.e. beauty, wealth, or noble ha Theorientalists made a lot of fuss, concerning these marriages, ansang the Prophet (peace be upon him) of having excessive desire adlast for women. Nothing was further from the truth than these wastions. For a more detailed account of the orientalists' position, la resist can consult Sir William Muir, Dermenghem, Washington Implanmens and others. The reader can also consult Haykal, Tallik of Muhammad, translated by Ismail al-Faruqi, who gave the comprehensive summary of the views of these orientalists. beas now started to build towards an imminent confrontation with (The Trench), the hoped (peace be upon him) waged two more attacks at the Bedouins the desert. These were excursions of (a) the expedition of Dhat the second expedition was directed to Dumat albold both of these expeditions were quite successful, and dealt Stable blows to those unruly Bedouins of the desert. The stage

Muslims once and for all. The Quraysh were hesitant, knowing from previous experience, that to wage war against Muḥammad (peace be upon him) was no light undertaking. They wanted assurances from the Jews, which they keenly provided:

- They told them that Banū al-Nadīr were quite ready to attack Madinah; they were stationed not far away on the road between Madinah and Khaybar, armed and ready.
- b. The Jews of Banū Qurayzah were quite prepared for war. Since they feared the same fate as Qaynuqā' and al-Nadīr before them, they were ready to attack the Muslims from within Madinah.

2. THE JEWS FAVOUR PAGANISM TO MONOTHEISM

Then the Quraysh wanted to further test the position of the Jews. They asked them whether the worship of idols was better than the religion of Muhammad (peace be upon him). The Jews did not hesitate to say that the paganism of the Quraysh and Ghatafan was better than the monotheism of Muhammad (peace be upon him). Now this position of the Jews was dictated by sheer expediency. By giving this false testimony, they were actually undermining themselves and their religion, more than they were undermining Islam. The gracious Qur'an chided them for this false testimony. Referring to it, God says in the Qur'an:

Would you not consider those who were given a share of the Book, believing in demons and idols, and saying to the unbelievers that they are better guided to the way than the believers. Those are they whom Allah has cursed, and he whom Allah has cursed, you would not find for him any helper. [al-Nisā' 4:51-52]

So desperate in their enmity of the Muslims were the Jews, that they were prepared to compromise their own religious creed, although they were resisting Islam and fighting the Muslims on the ground that they would not abandon their religion of Abraham and monotheism.1

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege 3. THE CONTROLL TO TORCES

4. Muslims heard news of the armies advancing towards

1. Muslims heard news of the armies advancing towards

1. Muslims heard news of the armies advancing towards

1. Muslims heard news of the armies advancing towards

1. Muslims heard news of the armies advancing towards Most the Muslims neared news of the armes advancing towards armes advancing towards. They assembled to consider the maturally apprehensive. They assembled to consider the most them. boundary were naturally appreciations. They assembled to consider the winding and evaluate the extent of the threat against them. They assembled the advantage of the street against them. by studion and evaluate the extension the time at against them. I ney time time at against time time at against time time at against time at a some at a som

The Quraysh with approximately six thousand fighters — four the Quirayou must are a property of one thousand five hundred and thousand on foot, camel corps of one thousand five hundred and Ghatafan, clans of Sulaym, Ashja' and Murrah supplied a combined force of one thousand five hundred (700+400+ 400).

Banū Fazārah sent a force of camel corps of one thousand; and a large number of infantry.

Banū Asad and Sa'd (clans of Ghaṭafān) also contributed a large number of fighters.

Altogether, the combined forces of the Quraysh and their bedouin allies exceeded ten thousand soldiers well armed and quite ettermined to crush and exterminate the Muslims and the Prophet peace be upon him) in Madinah. The situation was indeed very game, and the very existence of the Muslims as a community was in red. The only way for them to defend themselves and their territory has no fortify and defend the city from within.

4. THE DIGGING OF THE KHANDAQ (THE TRENCH)

has Salman, the Persian, who suggested the digging of a Khandaq hench or dry moat) around the city. The idea was quite new, but hophet (peace be upon him) accepted it and work to dig the had was undertaken with all speed, as it had to be ready before the Madinah. It was reported that the Muslims was reported Madinan. It was reported the work with such zeal and enthusiasm, that the project

(C 144 9)

The Battle of al. Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege The knights charged forward to mount Sala', and challenged Mor knights charged torward to mount oard, and charged 'Alī ibn

Mor knights charged torward to mount oard, and charged 'Alī ibn

Mor knights charged torward to mount oard, and charged 'Alī ibn

Mor knights charged torward to mount oard, and charged 'Alī ibn

Mor knights charged torward to mount oard, and charged 'Alī ibn All Ibn

All Ibn

All Ibn

All Ibn

All Ibn

Abd al-Wudd said: But why for Goodness

All Ibn

Abd al-Wudd said: For L

All Ibn

All Ibn and by 100 with me, my cousin, for I do not like to kill War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad Ros, by God I want to kill you,' said 'Ali. At this reply, the Ibn 'Abd was completed in just six days. Seeing that the Prophet (peace he Both by Good wanter war, our, and charged at 'Ali furiously. But upon him) himself took part in the actual digging, no Muslim spared immaged to kill him. When that formidable Quraysh knight fell any effort to complete the work before the arrival of the enemy. In any case, the danger that hung over them, was more than a sufficient Manageo to National Manageo to National Manageo and fled and dismayed and fled incentive for all to do their utmost, and all the necessary preparations In across the trench to their own side. That incident disheartened were completed before the enemy arrived.2 Large quantities of stones were place on the inside of the Khandaq on the roofs of the houses, Months and the failed attempt to cross over to the inside Madinah and next to the Khandaq, so that children might help Majors, before accepting the only course of action open to them: the Muslims by throwing them at the enemy. necump and lay siege to Madinah. They dismounted, and put up her tents. The siege proved a long, tedious and expensive affair. Only 5. AN UNPLEASANT SURPRISE FOR THE QURAYSH paradic exchanges of arrows, and stone throwing, was attempted When the forces of the Quraysh arrived, they were confronted by the but time to time. The siege continued for almost a month, without trench, the most unpleasant surprise that they might have expected. In view of their large numbers they hoped to overwhelm and storm un positive results. The Khandaq proved a very effective device, and the city of Madinah with ease. The obstacle of the trench was quite perplexing to them, as the Arabs knew only open combat in open Muslims were not short of provisions, so long as Banū Qurayzah space. True, the Jews of Arabia used to fight from behind walls and watpacified, and were prepared to sell food and other provisions to fortifications, as the Qur'an reports in Surah al-Ḥashr, but they had never seen anything like a trench. The moat itself was so wide that Milmallies. But Huyayy ibn Akhtab was quick to see the importance only once, after many trials, the knights of the Quraysh were able to depriving the Muslims of that logistical advantage. So he made his jump over it, at a point where it was rather narrow; only four knights way to the quarters of Banu Qurayzah. made the jump. A fifth was not so lucky, and his horse fell in the moat and was instantly killed. Quraysh were so exasperated at the construction of the barrier, that they shouted, 'Cowards, Cowards,' at the Muslims. The Quraysh knights who managed to cross the trench 6 HUYAYY IBN AL-AKHTAB'S SEDITION OF QURAYZAH hen the leader of Banū Qurayzah Ka'b ibn Asad saw Ḥuyayy at his boot, he first refused to admit him. The following dramatic exchange 'Amr ibn 'Abd Wudd, a formidable and well-known knight of the Quraysh, much feared and hated by the Muslims. ʻlkrimah ibn Abī Jahl, the son of the well known leader of  $Ban\bar{u}$ O Ka'b please open the door, you cannot shut it in my face, for Makhzūm of Quraysh, killed at Badr. Hubayrah ibn Wahb (from Banū Makhzūm). But O Huyayy, you are indeed a sinister visitor, don't you know that there is a pact between me and Muḥammad, which I have no hand the light control of violating, since I have known nothing from him, except @ 146 D @ 147 D

'Just open the door, for I have something very important to tell you,' cried Huyayy.

'I am not going to open it to you,' replied Ka'b.

'I bet you do not want to open the door, so that I shall not share your dinner,' said Huyayy.

At this last remark, Ka b offended and embarrassed, opened the door, he did not want to give the impression that he was niggardly to his guests. When allowed in, Huyyay proceeded at once to persuade

'Dear Ka'b I have come to you with the prospect of the honour of the age, and with an up-roaring sea, I have come to you with the whole of Quraysh, army and leaders, and with the whole of Ghatafan, leaders and army. They have told me most emphatically and given a very strong pledge, that they are not going to turn back to their homes this time, until they destroy Muhammad and the Muslims completely.'

'Have you finished Huyayy?' began Ka'b, still unconvinced, and still greatly disturbed by the mission of Huyayy; 'by God, you have indeed brought me the indignity and shame of eternity, and an empty cloud which he already shed its water while it still thunders and shows lightening, with nothing in its wake, Woe to you, Ḥuyayy, leave me as I am with Muhammad, for I have always found him loyal and faithful.' But Huyayy would not budge and did not leave Ka'b alone. He continued wheedling, until Ka'b gave in to his persuasion, and agreed to violate his pledge with the Prophet (peace be upon him). Huyayy succeeded in assuring Ka 'b, that he could always count on his support, and that of his Arab friends. He even pledged that, should the Arabs depart without defeating Muhammad, he would stay behind to defend Qurayzah, and share with them whatever consequences that might lead to. By that assurance, Ka 'b was duly swayed to what would lead to a disaster, for him personally, and for his whole tribe, as we shall see in the sequel.

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege I MUSLIMS PANIC AT THE PROSPECT OF ATTACKS MUSIMS Prophet's effort to conceal it, news reached the Muslims The Propriet senior to consear the Jews of Banu Qurayzah. The betrayal our course deal of panic and fear in their ranks. If the PREPARED TO BE true, that meant that another war front would be god against them. Moreover, their sole source of food and other THE PROPERTY WOULD BE LOST. They were already exhausted, cold (for the and hungry. The siege had what time gone on for about a month approximately, and their nntry and supplies were very low indeed. Their army of just over there thousand men was greatly out-numbered and out-matched by tecombined armies of the Quraysh and the Bedouins of over ten thousand soldiers armed to the teeth. The prospect now, of attacks from the south by the Arabs and from the inside (from underneath) by be lews of Qurayzah was more than some could bear. The Gracious Uninportrays the situation, and panic of the Muslims most vividly; God said in the Qur'an:

When they came against you from above and below you, and when Jour eyes swerved and your hearts reached your throats, while you entertained (evil) thoughts about God.

There it was, when the believers were tried and shaken most mightily, and when the hypocrites and those in whose hearts is sickness, said God and His Messenger promised us only delusion? And when a party

O People of Yathrib, there is no abiding here for you, therefore return, and a party of them were asking leave of the Prophet, saying Our houses are exposed Yet they were not exposed, they desired only

8. THE PROPHET RESORTS TO STRATEGIC TACTICS 8. THE PROPHET RESORTS TO STRATE DOLLAR MAGING MAGI of waging war. To him is attributed the famous Hadith. 'Assuredly,

Even pre-Islamic Arabs, who were well known for their love of war, valued highly the role played by good judgement, and by dever ruses in winning battles. During the Battle of Badr, as we saw, the strategic positioning of the Muslims, by the side of the wells, was a major, decisive factor in gaining a huge military advantage over the

An Arab poet stressed the importance of good judgement in winning wars: 'Sound opinion is more important (in winning wars) than the courage of the bravest knights. It is the basic requirement and bravery comes second,' he said.

As the Muslims faced overwhelming odds, and their situation worsened because of the treachery of the Jews of Qurayzah, the Prophet (peace be upon him) began to use intrigue against his enemies, as they, especially the Jews, did against the Muslims.

His first aim was to divide the confederates, to attack and destroy their apparent unity. He turned his attention first upon the most powerful ally of the Quraysh, namely the tribe of Banu Ghatafan, and their minor allies. He sent an envoy to them, with a message:

'Go home, and quit this affair in which you have no stake, because this is only the Quraysh trying to avenge their defeats at Badr and Uhud. Go home, and I will give you one third of next year's date harvest in Madīnah,' offered the Prophet's messenger to Ghatafan.

The offer was very tempting and Banu Ghatafan began to discuss it amongst themselves. Their zeal and enthusiasm for the fighting began to wane and, as many of them became inclined to accept this offer, it considerably weakened their morale.

9. THE WONDERFUL TRICK OF NU 'AYM IBN MAS' ŪD'

However, the most brilliant trick, resorted to by the Prophet (peace be upon him) in that difficult and fearful situation, was to instruct Nu 'aym ibn Mus 'ūd who was a recent convert to Islam, but his conversion was at that time kept a secret to confuse the enemy. The Prophet (peace be upon him) commissioned him to 'go and weaken wenterly's resolve and will to fight with us...' the Prophet (peace Beeten him) instructed Nu aym ibn Mus ud. խագոր իրոյ լության անձ ան was a friend of Qurayzah, and had been a Mulayini visitor of their quarters. In particular, he used to visit them holy and drink wine in their cafés before his conversion to Islam. Reducided to exploit his friendship with Qurayzah. He went to the hrithations of Qurayzah, and asked to speak to Ka b ibn al-Asad, beit kader. He reminded him of his affection for them, and of the gorial tie that was between them. When Banū Qurayzah assured Num that they did not suspected him, he said: "O Qurayzah, you how very well that the situation of Quraysh and that of Ghatafan are not like your situation. The land is your land; your property, your instand children are on it, you cannot leave and go elsewhere, should immeto that. Now Quraysh and Ghatafan came to fight Muhammad adhis companions and you have aided them against him. However, their property and their wives are not here. So they are not Beyou. If they see an opportunity, they will make the most of it. But bold things go badly, they will go back to their own land, and leave mus face the man in your country. However, you will not be able b do this, if you are left alone. So I advise you not to fight with these Pople, until they give you some of their chiefs as hostages, to remain a pour hands, as security that they will fight Muhammad with you, pou etadicate him and his Muslim followers.' argued Nu'aym.

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege

The view and counsel of Nu aym were appealing to Qurayzah, ad they waited for the right moment to confront the Quraysh with

Meanwhile, the wily Nu aym went to the camp of the Quraysh the wily Nu aym went to the camp of the wily Nu aym went to the camp of the light Muhammad I. You know my affection for you, and that Barlett Muhammad. I have heard something very important, and I State of the second something very important, something very into you by way of warning, which you is a second something very into you by way of warning, which you is a second something very into you be heard. State pyery confidential. When they promised to do so, he began: The state of the s Specific their action opposing Muhammad, and they have actually

( 150 D)

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad "Would you like us to get hold of some chiefs of the two tribes

Quraysh and Ghaṭafān, and hand them over to you, so that you can inin you in exterminational. Cut their heads off? Then we can join you in exterminating them. Muḥammad has sent word back to them accepting their offer, so if the Jews ask you demanding hostages, do not send them a single man

Nu 'aym went to his own tribe, Ghatafan, and had no difficulty in convincing them of his sincerity and his counsel, as he did with

This plan worked quite well. The Quraysh wanted to test the alliance of Qurayzah in the light of what they heard, they sent one envoy, by the name of 'Ikrimah ibn Abī Jahl on the eve of the Sabbath of Shawwal, the fifth year of Hijrah. 'Ikrimah told Banu Qurayah that it was not feasible for them, to prolong their siege of Madinah any longer. Their horses and camels were dying and indeed the morale of their army was generally sinking very low; that now it was the time to attack the Muslims, and deal with them once and for all that they were looking forward to, indeed demanding Banū Qurayah to participate in this final, and decisive battle against Muḥammad (peace be upon him). However, the response from Qurayzah was quite disappointing. They said, as it was Sabbath, they could do nothing, their religion very strictly forbade them to do anything on Sabbath, lest a severe chastisement should befall them. Moreover, they demanded that the Quraysh and Ghatafan should give them some of their chiefs to be held with them, as a security that should Qurayzah engage in fighting Muḥammad, those two tribes would fight alongside them to the finish. Qurayzah expressed their fears that should the battle turn against them, their allies (Quraysh, Ghaṭafān) would leave for their homes, abandoning Qurayzah to face Muḥammad alone. But this was an eventuality they did not wish for, because Qurayzah alone could not successfully engage Muḥammad and his Muslim army.

Quite exasperated and angry, 'Ikrimah quickly withdrew and returned directly to the Quraysh, telling them what Qurayzah had said in reply to their demands. The Quraysh said that Nu aym had

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege adeal been right. They sent word to Qurayzah that they could expect abribbenrique transport them. When that reply reached Qurayzah, they in no hootages more than the state of the state randge was driven between the two allies of the confederates that and diego to Madinah, during the Battle of al-Khandaq (or the Battle

This is how God's design worked, and how the Prophet (peace ke upon him), by the will of God, managed to sow distrust, and disension, amongst the enemies of Islam.

10. THE RAIN AND THE COLD WIND5

The refusal of Qurayzah to join in the battle against Muḥammad (peace be upon him), until Quraysh and Ghaṭafān agree to give lostages, meant that the besieging forces and their already low morale suk even lower. As if this was not enough, that night a bitterly cold vind blew across the plain, accompanied by torrential rain, so heavy ad 50 cold that every soldier was shivering from cold, fatigue and bugget. The wind moreover, uprooted the confederates' tents, and the spilled over as their food was spilled over as their food No were overturned by the wind. The rain was accompanied with bander and strong dazzling lightning. The Quraysh were struck by tightening thought that Muhammad might take advantage of the

II. THE PROPHET SENT HUDHAYFAH BNÁL-YAMÁN TO RECONNOITRE QURAYSH CAMP6

When the Prophet (peace be upon him) heard about the dissension Street the Quraysh and Jews, and when the rain and the cold wind State their encampments, he called among Muslims for a volunteer Spother encampments, he called among Muslims for a volunteered spots their encampment, and bring him news about their situation. The Prophet (peace be upon him) said that whoever volunteered, The prophet (peace be upon him) said that whoever volunteered of paradise. But the Muslims were so exhausted

@ 152 D

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad with cold and hunger, and so afraid that none of them voluntered to go, despite the fact that the prophet (peace be upon him) repeted his demand more than once, and despite the promise of Paradix extended by him. Seeing that no one was willing to volunteer, the Prophet (peace be upon him) called upon Ḥudhayfah ibn al-Yanin to go. Hudhayfah said that he had only complied out of respect for the Prophet (peace be upon him).

Hudhayfah managed to penetrate deep into the enemy's atmy and camp. It was so dark and so cold and noisy that nobody was paying any attention to anything except his own safety and survival. Hudhayfah drew very near to where Abū Sufyān was standing, about to deliver a decisive speech. Had he been authorized, Hudhayfah said, it would have been easy for him to kill Abū Sufyān, from where he had been sitting.

Then Abū Sufyān stood up and gave a speech; but at first warned against the possibility of Muslim espionage and infiltration, asking that everyone of them should check who was sitting next to him. Hudhayfah proved very vigilant and quick minded, because he promptly asked the man sitting next to him about his identity. In this way he avoided the possibility that his neighbour would take the initiative, with the prospect that he might be discovered.

The address of Abū Sufyān was quite clear that the army had no other option but to withdraw; Abū Sufyān furthermore, made it very clear that he himself was withdrawing without delay. Said Abii Sufyān:

O Quraysh, we are not in a permanent camp, the horses and the camels are dying. The Banū Qurayzah have broken their word to us, and we have heard disquieting reports of them. You can see the violence of the wind, which leaves neither cooking pots, nor fire and tents to count on. Be off, for I am going.'

Hudhayfah said that: Abū Sufyān was in such a hurry that he rode on his camel without undoing its tackle, forgetting to do this in his haste, fear and confusion. Hudhayfah said he was near enough to this Suffin that he could have easily killed him but, he remembered by Prophet's instruction not to do such a thing. Thus the Ahzāb forces (the confederates), departed that night, in and confusion that they left their things, and some of their pagnons behind. When next morning dawned, there was no sign of dem. The Muslims came out to look; the space across the Khandaq usquite empty. They could not believe their eyes! There, they beheld ng mother sign of God's great mercy and favour upon them. The thick, who just one day before, posed the greatest ever danger for them and Islam had by then been vanquished, almost without any histing being carried out. Just as in Badr, God managed the war amost exclusively by Himself, on behalf of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and Muslims. The only effort carried out by the Muslims vasto dig the Khandaq and put up patiently with the month-long size of Madinah. They also bore the perilous news of the treachery a Qurayzah, and their cutting off the food supplies. 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib adhis company managed to guard the Khandaq well and prevent any atempts to cross it by the horse-men of Quraysh. The Qur'an refers whese dramatic events in very vivid terms:

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege

Obdievers, remember Allah's blessing upon you, when soldiers came Against you, and We sent against them a wind (hurricane) and soldiers you saw not, and Allah sees what you do. When they came Mon you from above and below, and when your eyes we swerved and With harts reached your throats, and you entertained evil thoughts, about Allah There it was, that the believers were tried and shaken

12. THE BATTLE OF AHZĀB WAS THE GREATEST TRIAL A HEBATTLE OF AHZAB WAS THE GREAT ESTABLE AND A SUffering in Alexandra Alexa That and suffering in the history of the Prophet (peace be upon ingle set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet (peace of the prophet set back, a single least of the prophet se January Line of the property o the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself sustained serious

C 154 9

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad wounds, his uncle Hamzah was killed, and his body mutilated, and his body mutilated a Seventy of his best and most gallant companions were killed, yet the adverse consequences for the Muslims were not very great, and they managed to offset them the very next day, by setting out in pursuit of Abū Sufyān and his forces. Moreover, the Quraysh victory was far from being conclusive, and achieved no decisive results for them, Although it was a psychological boost for them, avenging their slain at Badr, they were unable to achieve any strategic advantage over the Muslims. They did not manage to kill the Prophet (peace be upon him), nor did they manage to enter Madinah or destroy the military strength of the Muslims. By contrast the Battle of al-Khandaq threatened the very existence of the Muslim community. Never before had the Quraysh and their Jewish allies managed to gather such a mighty army, and never before had they been able to lay siege to Madinah for almost a whole month. Lastly, never before had the alliance against the Muslims been so extensive and great, drawing together all the adversaries of the Muslims for the first time, whereas the Prophet (peace be upon him) was not able to call upon his traditional allies of Banū Khuzā ah, because of the suddenness and completeness of the siege; the alliance brought together for the first time. The following forces comprised the army of the Quraysh and allies:

- The Quraysh and their immediate allies from the Bedouins of the deserts of Makkah (Banū Ghaṭafān, Sulaym, Ashjaʻ, Murrah, Fazārah, etc.).
- b. All the clans of tribes of the Ḥijāz.
- The combined forces of the confederates reached above twelve thousand, together with an uncounted number of Bedouins from immediate outskirts of Madinah, who joined the advancing Ahzāb army.

In addition to their number, they had the best equipment and armaments of the time in Arabia. It is to be remembered that the main objective of the Jews of Banū al-Naḍīr, who urged the war, was

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege Muḥammad (peace be upon him) and by Madinah Similarly, the leaders of the Quraysh, when they set Madinah surrounded by their confederate army of the A DIMPARIS MANUMENTAL MAIN OBjective to uproot the Muslim presence Admins, and a and for all. Qurayzah also, when they agreed to join a Mahada, once and as their main condition that they be assured and the objective of the expedition was the complete destruction of Multim authority, before the war would end and Quraysh and Complian would depart. For all of these reasons, the Battle of al-Ahzāb natur the most trying and most dangerous confrontation that the and Muslims yet had to face. It was far more perilous than Uhud. The only other battle that may exceed al-Ahzāb in significance was the buttle of Badr, because then also the very existence of the Muslims vas under threat. It is for this reason, that the Qur'an refers to Al-Abilitias the occasion when the Muslims were most severely tried and shaken most mightily.

his the only occasion in the Qur'an when God describes and quoes the great panic and fear that the Muslims experienced:

When the eyes (of the Muslims) swerved, and their hearts reached to beir throats, and you entertained unseeing evil doubts about Allah.

lknow of no better description of the situation of the psychological Strothe combatants, when facing the real possibility of death, than description given in the above verse. Even the bravest of men, then they experience that kind of situation for the first time and by a brief moment, when the prospects of death and defeat loom In light moment, when the prospects of death and the light wife same symptoms, referred to in the above (grainic verse i.e. their eyes swerve and their hearts seem to reach

The Qur'an also describes the Muslims' military situation as the describes the Muslims' military situations' from about 15 military were surrounded and attached from Additions from above you and from below you! This encirclement Stations' from above you and from below you! This encirclement other respects, as they were hungry, cold War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad and without any of their traditional allies. Also they faced really Overwhelming odds: in the number of men, in armaments and carrier

Indeed so great was God's power and favour to the Muslims that in a single night, all of that had totally changed. The Battle of al-Ahzāb was very similar to Badr, in that everything had been planned, arranged and managed by God alone. What the Muslims Contributed was nothing compared to God's Divine and most perfect

13. THE MARCH AGAINST QURAYZAH

Once the Confederate Forces had departed, the Jewish threat of Banu Qurayzah was very much in the minds of everyone. The Prophet (peace be upon him) called for general mobilization against the treachery of Qurayzah, when they had been given no cause to betray the Prophet (peace be upon him). By the admission of their leader, Ka b ibn al-Asad, that they have always found him loyal and faithful.

Except for the treasury and sedition of Ḥuyayy ibn al-Akhiab, Banū Qurayzah might have been content to stick to their pledge with the Prophet (peace be upon him) and Muslims. The Prophet (peace be upon him) himself observed the useful working relations with the Jews of Madinah in his early days of arrival there. Not only did he pray towards the Aqsa' Mosque, but he used to observe the Day of Atonement and fast the Day of Ashūra'. He also used to visit the Jews in their homes, and religious schools, and even engaged them in religious and theological discussions. Politically, and according to the provisions of the Document of Madinah (Saḥifat al-Madinah) the Jews were accorded full citizenship of the City State of Madinah, and even the first private secretary of the Prophet (peace be upon him) was a Jew. Then Qurayzah violated their covenant with him, and he could no longer, for security reasons, have a Jewish secretary. According to the provisions of the Şaḥifah, which envisaged a kind of federation, the Jews enjoyed a considerable degree of freedom to militir own affairs. They were fully integrated in the commercial where own amains, they have been and selling with them. It is quite the of the city with Muslims, buying and selling with them. It is quite goifficity where the settlements in Madinah were gonificant transport to the gonificant transport transport to the gonificant transport transpo Applet (peace be upon him) never hinted that they should depart on he grounds that they were Jewish or of foreign origin. The Prophet page be upon him) welcomed all people, and reached out to the hordeners, and the destitute, Muslims and non-Muslims, for he was profoundly generous and tolerant. But of course, it was not easy for photographic of Madinah to see prophethood departing from the house of hoob (Israel). They became very envious and spiteful of the Prophet loate be upon him). Their betrayal of the Prophet (peace be upon him), and their violation of the covenant with him, left him no other ourse of action than to take punitive military action against them. As theevents of the Battle of the Ahzab had shown, it was clear beyond houbt, that they constituted a security hazard, which he could no longer afford to ignore.

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege

The Prophet (peace be upon him) therefore, soon after the Confederates had departed, gave the general order:

Whoever believed in God and the Hereafter, let him not pray the As prayer of that day, of the departure of the Aḥzāb, except in the quarters of Banū Qurayzah.'7

As a result, there was a massive exodus of Muslim soldiers of Maintan towards the quarters of Quraysh some miles outside Madinah. The flag was given to 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib, and he advanced by and their fortifications to which they had retreated, closing the don's behind them. As 'Ali came near, he heard the Jews voicing Rophet (peace be upon him). When 'Alī saw the billing to hold him back so that he would not hear This was a rare moment when the Prophet (peace be upon

This was a rare moment when the Prophet (Peace De upon allowed himself to express anger at the outrageous conduct of War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad Qurayzah: 'You brothers of the monkeys, has not God disgraced you replied 'O Abhad and brought His vengeance upon you? The Jews replied to Abit all the nearly and t Qāsim, you are not a barbarous person. The Jews then realized that the person has the neare he unon him) herond what they had pushed the Prophet (peace be upon him) beyond what he Dromhet was still human i.a. a Bromhet has Could take. After all, the prophet was still human, i.e. a Prophet of human nature. Contrary to some religions, in Islam Muhammad has never been regarded as a divine being. Quite often, the Quran had to correct him, blame him or even rebuke him. This is one of the miraculous aspects of the Qur'ān. Had Muḥammad (peace be upon him) been the author of the Qur'an, he would never declare himself to be wrong, or rebuke-worthy, as he was in fact so many times declared to be in the Qur'an.

(C 158 9)

14. THE SIEGE AND DEFEAT OF QURAYZAH

Having arrived at the fortification of Qurayzah, and seeing that they were quite entrenched in these fortresses, the Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered that they would be besieged. It is narrated, by Ibn Hishām, that Gabriel not only told the Prophet (peace be upon him) to lay siege to Qurayzah, but himself participated in the siege, appearing in the form of the handsome Companion of the Prophet, Dihyah al-Kalbī, with an embroidered white turban, riding a white mule. The siege lasted for twenty-five days and nights, until the Jews were very hard pressed, and God cast terror in their hearts.

Huyayy ibn al-Akhtab made good his promise, and joined Qurayzah in their fortress after the Confederates departed. When Ka 'b ibn al-Asad the leader of Qurayzah saw that the Qurayzah could no longer bear the siege, he advised them to convert to Islam, if only to avert the terrible consequences of surrender. He knew very well, what they had done to the Prophet (peace be upon him), and the Muslims, and he was sure that the Prophet (peace be upon him) was so infuriated by their uncalled for treachery that it was unreasonable to expect anything from him but a severe judgement. However, the rank and file of Qurayzah refused to leave the religion of their

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege firefithers, or to abandon the Torah, their holy book. Despairing to fortubers, or to available to convert to Islam, Ka'b Ibn al-Asad turned to projude no propagate to the prophet (peace be upon him), and asked him to be lenient and to not Prophet (peace of a real and a real to real them, as he had treated Banú al-Nadīr before them, namely to and them, as no leave the city, and move northward towards al-Shām. They asked their former Arab ally of the Aws, by the name of Abū Lubilah ibn al-Mundhir, to negotiate for them the terms of their

15. THE EPITHET OF ABŪ LUBĀBAH8

When Abu Lubabah came through the gate of the fortress, he met a nomen from Qurayzah, crying and lamenting. He was moved by compassion for their plight. When she asked what the Prophet (peace kupon him) would do if they surrendered, he moved his hand across Is throat, meaning that he would kill them all. Then he realized that ke had betrayed the Prophet (peace be upon him), by disclosing his ultrations towards Qurayzah. When he came back to the city, he made it straight to the Prophet's mosque, and tied himself to its main olumn, and vowed not to untie himself, until God had forgiven him. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) learned of what Abū Lubābah haddone, he only said: I would have forgiven him, had he come to me In but now, I am afraid he will have to stay there until God makes God's forgiveness of Abū Lubābah came at the dawn of the next dy, in the house of Umm Salamah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) Salamah, the Prophet's wife.

What are you laughing about O Messenger of God?' asked Umm God has forgiven Abū Lubābah,' answered the Prophet (peace

The second of the news to Abu Lubabah,' asked the Prophet's Tisee no reason why not,' said Muḥammad.

(C 161 2)

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad Umm Salamah stood at the door of her apartment which opened as did many of the Prophets minus On the Prophet's Mosque, as did many of the Prophet's private apartments, and shouted:

Rejoice Abū Lubābah, for God has forgiven you' At that time, the Prophet's wives and indeed Muslim women at large, used to might rather freely with men. This was before segregation (or hijāb) was prescribed. After the hijāb was prescribed, such intermingling was Prohibited. This did not happen until well after the Ahzab Battle, which took place in the fifth year of the Hijrah.

16. QURAYZAH VIOLATE THEIR AGREEMENT WITH THE PROPHET

No doubt, the Qurayzah's action in violating their covenant with the Prophet (peace be upon him), for no other reason but the irrational envying of him, and their vengeful desire of seeing him destroyed, was a very unfortunate development in Muslim-Jewish relations. However, their alliance with the Quraysh and Ghatafan, and their pledge to utterly destroy and exterminate the Prophet (peace be upon him) was the most unfortunate thing to do, given the Prophet's good treatment of Qurayzah, and the fact that he kept his pledge to them in the most perfect manner. The Prophet (peace be upon him) might have felt some compassion for their plight, being the kind man he was known to be, but he was Prophet (peace be upon him) and statesman and as a statesman, he was obliged to see to it that justice had been done. This course of action was endorsed by revelation as well.

God Himself, as the Qur'an tells us, disapproved of the action of Abū Lubābah and called it, 'treachery to Allah and His Messenger.'O believers, betray not Allah and His Messenger and betray not your trust and that wittingly." [al-Anfāl 8:27]

Gabriel himself had ordered the Prophet (peace be upon him) to take immediate action against Qurayzah, on the very day of the departure of the Aḥzāb. He addressed the Prophet (peace be upon him) 'why have you put down your arms? The Angels have not put

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege don't their arms yet. So march toward Qurayzah, because I am

50, dearly the whole affair of Qurayzah was divinely ordained. murching there, advised Gabriel. The Prophet (peace be upon him) himself did not appear in the foot line of events. He did not arrange to meet Qurayzah, after their machery, nor did they ask to meet him. They knew they had no face weet him. They had not only violated their covenant, but they Actually spoke ill of him publicly, they had plotted to exterminate him and this followers. Moreover as he approached their fortifications, they had loudly vilified him, in the worst foul and profane language.

17. SA'D IBN MU'ĀDH APPOINTED AS JUDGE

When Qurayzah declared that they would abide by whatever verdict the Prophet (peace be upon him) made the Prophet (peace be upon him) accepted their surrender. The Aws demanded that, since the loss of Qurayzah were their friends and allies, the judge who would nde in their case be from them. Sa 'd ibn Mu 'ādh was suggested. The Prophet (peace be upon him) immediately agreed, as Sa'd was known to the Prophet (peace be upon him) to be a fair decisive and a noble man. The Aws then surrounded Sa'd who was badly wounded by an and said, 'Have clemency on our hinds and allies, Qurayzah, for the Prophet made you judge over then, knowing that you were their friend and ally, so that you might thow mercy and compassion upon them,' but Sa'd was unmoved by

He retorted 'it is high time that Sa'd did not compromise in the Quy of God, nor care for the censure of anyone any more.' When Sa'd reached the place where the Prophet (peace be Then said reached the place where the Prophet (peace be upon him) said; 'O And a securance dhency, while the Muhājirin kept silent. Sa'd demanded assurance Statistis verdict would be final, and that everybody would abide by The prophet (peace be upon him), whom he did not War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad mention by name, out of respect. When the Prophet (peace be upon said they would abide by whatever verdies said mention by name, out or respect. when the Prophet (peace be upon and the Muslims said they would abide by whatever verdicts in the I give the verdict hat managed would pass on Qurayah, he said, 'Then I give the verdict that men of the Lilled their property divided among the Manda. combatant age be killed, their property divided among the Muslim and their women and children taken captives.'

That judgement was carried out. It was indeed a very serice judgement, but in the light of the intention of Qurayzah to exterminate each and every Muslim, including women and children, it was not unexpected that the verdict against them would likewise be a hard

The episode of Qurayzah ended the epoch of friendly relations between Muslims and Jews, an epoch which was recorded by the

What the Qur'an said, in this respect, can be rendered in English as follows: 'There you are; you love them, and they love you not, and you believe in the whole of the Scripture.' [Âl 'Imrân 3:119]

With the vanquishing of Qurayzah, the city was emptied of its Jewish population; the three Jewish settlements were brought to an end.

The Jews of Qurayzah, were utterly routed, only four men were saved, three of whom converted to Islam; the fourth 'Amir ibn Su'dah did not convert to Islam, but as he had objected to the violation of the covenant with the Prophet (peace be upon him), was allowed to go freely unimpeded. He departed in the direction of the north. A Muslim commander, by the name of Muhammad the Muslim had set him free, without even consulting the Prophet (peace be upon him), saying, as he released him: 'O God, do not deprive me of the honour of accepting the excuse of the noble."

Sūrah al-Aḥzāb commends the patience of the Muslims: Sūrah al-Aḥzāb has given a vivid account of the state of the Muslims during the Battle of al-Khandaq. The sūrah earlier on had depicted, without any ambiguity, the fear and panic of the Muslims, when they were encircled by the Confederate Forces from above and the Jews from below.

The Battle of al-Khandaq: Muslims Under Siege It later commended their patience and forbearance, and their

When the believers saw the confederates; they said; this is what God unwarering trust in their Lord: Wher the converse spromised us, and God and His Messenger have goken truly, and it only increased them in faith and surrender to government. Allah Among the believers are men who were true to their covenant with Allah, some of them have fulfilled their vow by death and some are still awaiting, and have not changed in the least. That Allah may recompense the truthful ones for their truthfulness, and chastise the hyporites, if He will, or turn to them in mercy! Surely Allah is All-Forgiving, All-Compassionate. [al-Aḥzāb 33:22-24]

After the defeat of the Ahzāb, and the vanquishing of Qurayzah, the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims enjoyed a brief period of peace and tranquillity. Then the unruly and hypocritical Redouins around Madinah started to stir again, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) had to carry arms, and move against them, aways taking great care not to await the first blow from the enemy, but to deal with them first if he could. In the aftermath of the Battle of All-Ahraib, the Prophet launched expeditions against the Bedouins d Banū Liḥyān, Banū Fazārah, and Banū al-Muṣṭaliq.

In addition to these raids on the Bedouins, the brief period of Peace that the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims enjoyed, was soon to give way to some very sad and traumatic experiences; 2. The death of Sa'd ibn Mu'adh.

h The IJR Affair (the Lie Affair).

Another major event in the wake of al-Khandaq was: the And the state of t Antibo al. Âs and Khâlid ibn al-Walid, which actually boosted the Maribinal As, and Khalid ibn al-Walid, which actually Doubled their depressed spirits, and allowed them to by and hope for better days and more victories for Islam.

CHAPTER 6

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq

1. THE QURAYSH WILL NEVER AGAIN INVADE MADINAH When the Quraysh and the Confederates left Madinah, after having been hit by a terrible hurricane, it is reported that the Prophet (peace be upon him) made a prophecy:

'The Quraysh will never again invade Madinah. We will invade them, but they will not be able to invade us," said the Prophet in a jubilant tone of voice, and very high spirits.

This prophecy was borne out by subsequent events. The Quraysh never again was able to invade Madinah. On the contrary, the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims first made the unarmed expedition of al-Hudaybiyah, and then the armed expedition that resulted in the conquest or 'opening' of Makkah.

2. THE DEATH OF SA'D IBN MU'ADH

Meanwhile, the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims had had to endure the grief of the passing away of the chief of the Aws, the gallant Sa'd bin Mu'adh, who was badly wounded by a flying arrow, while defending the Moat of al-Khandaq. He was nursed by his sister Rufaydah, in a tent near the Prophet's Mosque, on the orders of the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself who, no doubt, wanted to keep a close watch on his health. When called to sit as a judge on Qurayzah,

@ 166 D

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq

if and leaning on two men. Sa'd was immensely liked by the for the Muslims at large. He was handsome, courageous, hopke and the unit of Qurayzah, his htis narrated that Gabriel woke Muhammad in the middle of the nound burst open again, and he died.

aght to inform him of the death of Sa'd ibn Mu'adh. Who is it, do you know, O Muḥammad, that has died tonight, and for whom the doors of Heaven were flung open, and the Throne of Allah shook?' asked Gabriel.

The Prophet rose quickly and went out, dragging his garments, stright to where Sa'd was lying, in the tent of his sister Rufaydah. He found Sa'd already dead.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) and his household grieved motoundly. 'A'ishah met Usayd ibn Hudayr, who just came from Makkah, to find that one of his wives had died. He showed considerable gudfor her, for which he was rebuked by 'Ā'ishah: 'May Allah for give յա, 0 Abū Yaḥyā, you grieve for a woman, when you have lost the san of your uncle, for whom the Throne shook!'

Some of the hypocrites, who intensively disliked Sa'd, said they bundhis bier very light, even though in old age, he had became quite Sa'dhas other carriers [meaning Angles]. By Him who holds my k and in His hand is my soul, the angels rejoiced at receiving his and the Throne shook for him, said the Prophet.

3. THE BURIAL OF SA 'D IBN MU'ĀDH

3. THE BURIAL OF SA'D IBN MU ADII Allah! Subhan Allah! Subjan Allah; then he exclaimed loudly: Subhan Allan: Suumun hopet became aniita aniit hopket became quite again, the Companions asked him about his The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: 'The grave was constrained The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: 'The grave was constraint.' Meaning that, as the grave was being constrained the Prophet (Peace be upon him) 'A' ishah narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: Every gare is constrained; if anyone could have escaped that it would have been We have never heard of the Throne of God shaking for any dead man, but for Sa'd ibn Mu'ādh.' Every wailing woman lies except the one who lamented Sa dim Mu 'ādh,' said the Prophet!'4

4. THE ASSASSINATION OF SALLAM IBN AL-HUQAYQ Sallām ibn al-Ḥuqayq, from the Jews of Khaybar, played a majornok in inciting the Quraysh to wage the Battle of Khandaq. The Khazaj after the defeat of the Quraysh, asked permission of the Prophet to assassinate him, for his enmity to the Prophet and the Muslims, and his uncalled for provocation of the Quraysh and Ghatafan to attack Madinah in order to exterminate the Muslims. The Aws and Khazraj used to vie with one another, so as to please the Prophet (peace be upon him). But it was the Aws who had carried out the plot that killed Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf. So, the Khazraj wanted to undertake the plot against Sallām. It is difficult now to understand the extremity of the conflict between the Muslims and their Jewish adversaries, in that remote historical time. But it would appear that the two groups were locked in struggle for survival. In general, the Qur'an has enjoined and encouraged peaceful coexistence between Muslims and the People of the Book, as is well known from many verses of the Qur'an, and as was practised in the history of Islamic civilization. Be that as it may, a group of Muslims from the Khazraj managed to penetrate the Jewish castle of Khaybar, to the north of Madinah city. They made their way to the home of Sallam ibn al-Huqayq, found and killed him. The hostilities between Muslims

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq adlews intensified, and the campaign to conquer Khaybar became Amribn al. Áş converted to Islam whilst in Abyssinia. He had and ambassador of Muslims who went to Abyssinia seeking political asylum therein. Whilst he win the court of the Negus, the Prophet (peace be upon him) sent Lunihn Umayyah al-Damri to look for Ja far ibn Abi Ṭālib and his mmp Amr then demanded that the Negus should hand over 'Amr hulmayyah al-Damri. The Negus was so furious at this request that familinal- 'As was quite taken aback. So much so that he wished the and might open up, so that he could escape the embarrassment of the situation. He apologized to the Negus, saying that had he known but his request would encourage the Negus in that way, he could tort have made it. The Negus then expressed conversion to Islam, ad the deep respect he felt to the Prophet of Islam:

Tis Muhammad to whom the great Nāmūs came, as it used to ame to Moses. This and what Jesus has brought have some from the we niche. 5 Amr ibn al- As then asked:

Definitely so' replied the Negus. 'So obey me, O 'Amr and follow is, for by Allah he is right and he will triumph, over his adversaries, Then Amr decided to return to Arabia and declare his Islam. On they to Madinah, he met Khālid ibn al-Walid who was heading beth of Makkah, also to declare his conversion to Islam. It must then between evident to anyone who reflected clearly on the situation that Statistical physical destined for total victory in Arabia. the Quraysh's resistance A state of the doubles of Arabia and the Jews of Arabia were vanquished. As for A destribution of the fews of Arabia were vanguisned. As the few upon him) struck terror Asker Bedouins, the Prophet (peace be upon him) struck terror as it may, the struggle for Islam was far from

@ 168 D

(C 169 2)

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad Many tribes and factions among the Bedouins continued to compile the Muslims. Therefore, further taids had had held and fight against the Muslims. Therefore, further raids had to be

Six months after the defeat of Qurayzah, the Prophet (peace be upon him) was again on the march, this time against the Bedouins of Ban Lihyan, to avenge the killings of his Companions, Khubayb ibn Adin and his band, at the well of al-Raji. He made it appear as if heading to al-Shām to the north, so as to take the enemy by surprise. He appointed Ibn Umm Maktūm as his deputy at Madinah. Honever, when he arrived in the place of Liḥyān, he found that the enemy had been alerted and entrenched themselves at the top of the mountains. He did not attempt to launch an attack against that position as that would have been counterproductive. Instead, he moved in the direction of Makkah, in order to threaten the Quraysh, though in fad he had no plans to attack them. Then he returned to Madinah saying 'Returning repentant, God-Willing, giving thanks to our Lord, ltake refuge in Allah from the difficulties of the journey, and its unhappy ending; and from unpleasant sight, and from bad homecoming and from losses in money and family,' a supplication which later became standard for travellers when returning home from a long trip.

5.2 The Raid on Dhū'l-Qarad

A few nights after his return to Madinah, a certain 'Uyaynah ibn al Hisn al-Fazārī, raided the outskirts of Madīnah, where the Prophet's milk-camels were grazing. They killed the shepherd and carried off his wife together with the camels.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered immediate hot pursuit of the raiders. A group of knights, under the command al-Miqdad ibn 'Amr (nicknamed al-Miqdad ibn al-Aswad), set off after the kidnappers. They overtook the rear of the raiding force and succeeded in freeing some of the stolen milk-camels as well as the kidnapped wife @ 170 DD

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq of the shepherd who had been killed. However the chief of the raiding otheshepmen with al-Hisn escaped, with some of the camels. When de Muslims' main force, led by the Prophet (peace be upon him) homestra arrived on the scene, the raiders had already reached their domation. Some of the Muslims wanted to continue the raid, but the frophet (peace be upon him) advised against it, as the immediate Metropher of the limited one of recovering the kidnapped woman and ands and teaching the raiders a lesson. It was not part of Prophet's ins to attack Ghaṭafān at large. The rescued woman, who was very dated by her escape, told the Prophet (peace be upon him) that she had rowed to slaughter the camel she was riding if she lived. The Ronhet (peace be upon him) responded jubilant and light-hearted.

What a terrible reward you are proposing for her (the sheand Allah carried you on her, and delivered you to safety on her, ad now you want to slaughter her! Moreover, no vow is valid in bookedience of Allah, nor is the camel your own property... she is one of my own camels," explained the Prophet (peace be upon him),

5.3 The Raid on Banū al-Muṣṭaliq

blat, the most important raid which the Prophet (peace be upon im carried out after al-Khandaq was the raid on Banū al-Mustaliq. has the largest, and with far reaching consequences. It was also the tid that was associated with the Affair of the Ifk, (The Affair of the is in which 'A'ishah, wife of the Prophet and Mother of Faithful, Test unjustly accused of misconduct. It was also important for the the party incident which at the same and a Muhājir during the match incident which threatened to cause a major rift between Example in the first time in their history. However, the Prophet page be upon him) managed to contain it.

5.4 The Cause of the Raid bid on Dhird Oatad Analysis and Analysis an The state of the fith year of the Hijrah, some two months and the Prophet (peace be upon him)

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad that the Bedouins of Banū al-Muṣṭaliq were preparing to altack him. At once he put together a large force, and set out to reach them the appointed Abū Dharr al-Ghifari, as governor of Madinah The Ran al-Mustaliq were commanded by al-Harith ibn Abi Ditat, the fabruary as a sovernor or Madinah. The pain of Juwayriyyah, whom the prophet (peace be upon him) maried like alled al-Mitrave' an ibe analysis on. The two armies met at a well called al-Murays, on the way to Qudayd towards the sea-shore. There was some fighting, and the Bani al-Mustaliq were utterly defeated, and fled in all directions, leaving their women, children and property behind. Only one Muslim was killed in that battle.

6. THE FIGHT BETWEEN JAHJAH (MUHĀJIR) AND SINĀN (ANṢĀRĪ)

After this good, decisive victory, a nasty incident marred the day, and threatened a rift among the Muslims. Two men, Jahjah (of the Muhājirīn) and Sinān (of the Anṣār) fought each other at the well, and each one called out for his faction. The conflict was averted, but the head of the hypocrites, Ibn Salūl, was angry because a number of his people, including a young boy, Ibn Arqam, were hurt in the quared. Ibn Salūl said in exasperation: 'Have they actually done this? If they have disputed our priority in this well, they have also outnumbered us in our own homes! Nothing so fits us and those vagabonds of Quraysh, as the ancient proverb: "Fatten your dog and it devours you". By Allah, when we return to Madinah (the stronger the more empowered) will drive out the weaker." (The powerless).7

Then Ibn Salūl addressed the Anṣār: 'You have done this to yourselves, you have let them occupy your homes, and you have divided your property among them, had it not been for that they would have gone elsewhere!'

Later on, after the dispute died down, Zayd ibn al-Arqam, went to the Prophet and told him about the unbecoming and insulting remarks of Ibn Salūl. But Ibn Salūl denied having said those remarks, and took a strong oath to that effect. Of course, he was lying; and the @ 172 DV

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq Oprimic revelation exposed his real stance, and nobody believed him Our and revenue on this incident: They say: If we return to the city the mightier ones of it will expel They say I we return the more abased. Yet glory belongs unto Allah, and unto His Mosenger and the believers, but the hypocrites do not know it."

7. 'UMAR IBN AL-KHAŢŢĀB ADVISES THE KILLING OF IBN SALŪL

When the above Qur'anic verse was revealed, exposing the betrayal and hypocrisy of Ibn Salūl, 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb advised the Prophet (reace be upon him) to kill him. But the Prophet (peace be upon him) micted Umar's proposal, saying: 'But what if the Arabs should say but Muhammad kills his own companions? No, I will not do it.'8

The Prophet's decision was indeed a wise one. Ibn Salūl was only technically a Companion of the Prophet (peace be upon him). In mality, he was not a companion. Actually, he was the head of the by pocnie movement, which was set against the Prophet (peace be upon him) and opposed his authority. However, as far as external appearances mattered, in the eyes of the Bedouins, he was indeed or of the community of the Muslims. Furthermore, Ibn Salūl used blane many friends and allies among the Khazraj in particular, and be harder in general. That fact was underscored by Usayd ibn Hudayr, tho advised the Prophet (peace be upon him) to treat Ibn Salūl well, Istante he was almost made king before the advent of the Prophet Sequence was almost made king before the advent Scanted with the views of Usayd ibn Hudayr, and said he would balkindy with the views of Usayd ibn Hudayr, and said in the said, and make much of his companionship, blog as he remained with the Prophet (peace be upon him) and A street of the properties of a coellent example of how a Muslim political power should treat spolitical opposition, with tolerance and accommodation. Islam is Political opposition, with tolerance and accommodation. Islam exclusive. It is pluralistic and not

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad monolithic. It allows, indeed it encourages, non-Muslims to freely express their separate identity, so long as their political alliance, as Citizens, is to the state, and they carry out their obligations and duling that all muodely a state. as loyal citizens. It was this line of thinking, that allowed the Propher (peace be upon him) to accord the Jews of Madinah full rights of citizenship in the commonwealth of Madinah. But, alas, the Jews turned that offer down, and violated their covenant with the Prophet (peace be upon him), a covenant duly documented in the Sahifah of

The son of Ibn Salūl, who was a Muslim, volunteered to kill his father, should the Prophet (peace be upon him) choose that course. But again the Prophet (peace be upon him) declared that he had forgiven him. Later on, all the Muslims learnt of the affair of lbn Salial and he was ill-treated by them all.

8. THE PROPHET (PEACE BE UPON HIM) ORDERED THE ARMY TO MARCH ON FOR TWO DAYS

The Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered the army to march on at noon time. It was not his habit to do this, but he wanted to avertany exacerbation of the quarrel between Ansar and Muhājir. He made them march the whole of that afternoon, all the night as well as the next morning. When he halted again, they were too exhausted to engage in controversy. As soon as their bodies touched the ground, they fell asleep. It proved a most effective way to avert a potential split among the Muslims.

9. THE PROPHET'S MARRIAGE TO JUWAYRIYYAH

Juwayriyyah was the daughter of al-Ḥārith, the chief of Banū al-Mustaliq. She fell captive in the hands of a Muslim soldier. Not wishing to remain in captivity, she sought to ransom herself and be free. She came to the door of Prophet (peace be upon him), seeking his help toward the payment of her ransom, no doubt because of

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq the Population for magnanimity and generosity. 'A'ishah by frontiel's repuration for magnificantly and generosity. A Ishah (peace) that she tried to turn her away, lest the Prophet (peace) that she tried to turn her away. Bound that sine trice to the company, the tropnet (peace to the properties of the pr kapan hini snounu seeribed, manayriyyah as being sweet and very mutive. But the Prophet overheard the exchange between the two months not one out of his room, to find Juwayriyyah standing there

Who is this woman, O 'A'ishah?' asked the Prophet. Jam Juwayriyyah bint al-Ḥārith, chief of Banū al-Muṣṭaliq, Mostner of Allah, responded Juwayriyyah, at once.

What do you want?' asked the Prophet. Ihave fallen captive to the hands of Thabit ibn Qays al-Shammas, and have written an agreement with him to ransom myself. I come prouto help me in paying that ransom, O Messenger of Allah.

How is it if I give you a better offer?' said the Prophet.

What is it, O Messenger of Allah?' asked Juwayriyyah. Трау your ransom, and marry you,' said the Prophet. 'Yes, О Masanger of Allah.' said Juwayriyyah, well pleased with the offer.

The Prophet said 'It is done!'

When the Muslims learnt that the gracious Prophet (peace be married Juwayriyyah bint al-Hārith, daughter of be their of Banu al-Mustaliq, they set their captives free, saying bather had become the relatives of the Prophet (peace be upon by marriage. More than a hundred captives were released that Agranda, as news spread of the Prophet's marriage to Juwayriyyah. This linearity hap proved a great blessing to her people, by her wits

10. THE AFFAIR OF THE LIE AND

THE HONOUR OF THE PROPHET

State of that marriage concluded, when Continue (3) status of that marriage concluded with the city of the vicious lie, and the conclude (3) which and the conclude (4) status of the vicious lie, and the conclude (4) status of the vicious lie, and the conclusion of the vicious lie, and the conclusion of the vicious lie, and the conclusion of that marriage concludes (4) status of the vicious lie, and the conclusion of that marriage concludes (4) status of the vicious lie, and the conclusion of that marriage concludes (4) status of the vicious lie, and the conclusion of that marriage concludes (4) status of the vicious lie, and the conclusion of that marriage concludes (4) status of the vicious lie, and the conclusion of the vicious lie, and the Official of the vicious is and the prophet's Companion, Safwan ibn

@ 174 D

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad al-Mu attal. The notorious gossip was about the delayed return to Al-Mu attal. The notonous gossip was about the delayed teturn to Madinah of 'Ā'ishah, riding the camel of Ṣafwān ibn al-Mu'attal, a companion of the Prophet (Deace he unnandada) handsome young Companion of the Prophet (peace be upon him) after the raid of the Banu al-Mustaliq. The perpetrators of that he were Muslims, close to the Prophet's family:

- 1. The Prophet's poet and friend: Ḥassān ibn Thābit. 2. Hamnah bint Jahsh, a cousin of the Prophet, and sister of Zajnah
- 3. Misṭaḥ ibn Uthāthah, poor relative of Abū Bakr, who depended
- Ibn Salūl, the head of the hypocrites, and some of his friends, and supporters from the Khazraj, spread the lie across the city far and wide.

The matter was so grave, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims were so hurt, that life was totally disrupted in the city. The Prophet (peace be upon him) could not longer carry on his usual business of delivering God's call (da'wah), nor of managing the state. Always brave and open and totally transparent, the Prophet (peace be upon him) could not hide from the vicious rumours, and decided to bring the matter into the open. A public meeting was called in the Mosque, and the Prophet (peace be upon him), sad and pale, addressed the hushed and apprehensive gathering. After thanking God and praising Him he said: 'Why are some men hurting me, by staining the honour of my family, saying false and indecent rumours about them? By Allah, I know only good about them; and they say these things about a man of whom I know naught but good, who never enters my house but in my company...' argued the Prophet (peace be upon him).10

When the Prophet (peace be upon him) made that moving speech and the Muslims noticed that he was deeply hurt, they were naturally very disturbed and dismayed. Usayd ibn Ḥuḍayī, paramount

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq when the martyrdom of Sa'd ibn Mu'adh, sprang to bight and said: If the men you alluded to are of the Aws, we will rid bight and saide. It micromen you amount to the control of the cont morthers, for they ought to have their heads cut off...' said Usayd hafting heard the words of the leader of Aws, about the Khazraj, ad said: By Allah, you lie! They shall not be beheaded. You would arhire said this had you known that they were of the Aws. Had they kendyour own people, you would not have said it.' Liar yourself, by Mai responded Usayd ibn Hudayr. You are but a hypocrite, arguing abehalf of the hypocrites?'11

Feelings ran so high, that the two Muslim factions of the Ansar amost came to blows, and a full scale conflict among the Muslims was regreal possibility. But the Prophet (peace be upon him), using his augitional wisdom, managed to avert it with some difficulty. In his boilderment and dismay, the Prophet (peace be upon him) retired whis own private apartment. He sent for 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib, and limh ibn Zayd. It was his habit and custom to consult with  $Ab\bar{u}$ Mar and 'Umar, ibn al-Khaṭṭāb, his two senior aides. But the issue voin exceptional one. He could not consult Abū Bakr, because he to the father of 'À'isha, and he could not consult 'Umar because he Vishnown to be severe on women. As for Usāmah, he spoke quite blog A ishah, strongly condemning the rumours as false and Bull Bull as for 'Ali, his greater concern was for the personal wellkagofihe Prophet (peace be upon him), as well as the welfare of the September (peace be upon nim), as wen as the september (peace be upon nim), as went as the september (peace be upon nim), as the september (peace be upon the property noble and sensitive nature, knowing his great affection sologe for 'A' ishah, and at the same time he was very mindful, lest be whole affair should adversely affect the society at large. So he stable allar should adversely affect the society at range.

Stable dismiss the whole things and lessen its importance, bearing and adversely at range. spind the dangers and challenges of the mission that still lay ahead. Is the state of the mission that still any writers on this topic have tended to over-The state of the s

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad that our mother 'A'ishah, in her anguish and grief, also mistead he noted that the state of the that our mother A Ishan, in her anguish and grief, also misted the thinking of our master (Alī, may Allah be pleased with him, as he sate are nlantiful and the control of thinking of our master An, may Anan pe pleased with him, as he said

O Messenger of Allah, women other than she, are plentiful, and you

It is reported that 'Ā'ishah never forgave 'Alī for that remark Some historians even suggested that the remark made by 'Ali, left a permanent scar and bitterness in the personality of 'A'ishah, which was a major factor in shaping A'ishah's negative position, towards the succession of 'Alī to the Caliphate, after 'Uthmān, may Allah be pleased with both of them.

11. 'Ā'ISHAH'S PERSONAL ACCOUNT OF THE LIE AFFAIR" Be that as it may, we must now give a brief statement of Wishahis Own version of the unfortunate affair of the ifk:

 ${}^c\!\tilde{A}$  is hah used to sit in the hawdah with curtains drawn, as was the women's custom after the hijāb (women's seclusion or segregation) was ordained in the fifth year, after the Battle of al-Khandaq. Because she was very light in weight, the carriers of the hawdah had difficulty determining whether or not she was inside. 'A'ishah giving her version of the story said:

'As the Prophet was about to move on, after spending part of the night encamping, I slipped away to relieve myself, wearing a necklace of Zafar beads around my neck. When I had finished, the necklace fell without my noticing. On returning to the camp, I discovered that I had lost it. At that time some of the men started to move. But I went back to look for the necklace, until I found it, thinking that there was still time to catch up with the caravan. When I got back, the place was totally deserted! Obviously, the carriers of my hawdah did not realize my absence, no doubt because of my very light weight. So I wrapped myself in my smock and then lay down where I was, knowing that if I were missed, they would come back for me and by Allah I had just laid down, when Şafwan ibn Mu'attal passed me. He had fallen behind the main body for some purpose, and had not spent the night with The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq be rough. He saw my form and obviously recognized me. So he or and stood by me. He used to see me before the veil (the and stood by the state when he saw me he exclaimed in as made ment and the state of t potential was wrappen and the speak to him. Then he brought up by and and told me to ride it, while he stood behind. So I rode a and he took the camel's lead, going forward quickly in search of the army, and by Allah, we did not overtake them, and I was naturissed until the following morning. The men had halted, and when they were resting, up came the man leading me, and the larspread their reports and the army was much disturbed. But, h Allah I knew nothing about it.

Then we came to Madinah and I fell ill, and so I heard nothing of the matter. The story had reached the Messenger of Allah, and my parents, yet they told me nothing of it all, though I missed the Messenger's accustomed kindness to me. When I was ill, he used to show compassion and tenderness towards me, but in this illness, hadd not, and I missed his attention. When he came in to see me, in the presence of my mother who came in to nurse me, all he said lwas immensely hurt, so I asked him to let me go to my mother's house, so that she could nurse me.

Do what you like," he said, and I was taken to my mother's bone, still knowing nothing of what had happened, until I recovered from my illness some twenty days later. Now, we were happenels; we did not have those privies which non-Arab people an their houses; we loathe and detest them. Our practice was to goot to relieve ourselves in the open space outside Madinah. The Some used to go out every night, and one night I went out with be nother of Mistah. As she was walking with me, she stumbled Ora ker gown, and exclaimed, "May Mistah stumble!" What a bad thing to stay about one of the Muhājirīn, who fought with the Prophet at Badr! said.

She replied "haven't you heard the news, daughter of Abū

When I told her that I had heard nothing, she told me what the Legished said about me. By Allah, I could not relieve myself, and War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad I broke down crying, until I thought that my liver would burst. I said to my monther stool Continued to cry for almost two days, I said to my mother "God forgive you, O mother. Men have spoken ill of me all this time, and 'She replied: "My little daughter, don't let the matter weigh on

You. Seldom is there a beautiful woman, married to a man who loves her, but the rival wives of her husband gossip about her, and

However, 'Ā'ishah was not to be consoled. She withdrew into herself, and in her seclusion, sinking into despondency and dejection. She knew that it was her cousin, Hamnah, and her other cousin, the poor Mistah, who was living on the charity of her father, together with Hassān ibn Thābit, the Prophet's poet, who were promulgating the false rumours about her and Şafwan. The Prophet (peace be upon him), for his part, did not know what to think and what to believe. In his desperate search for the enlightening truth, he found himself eventually in 'A'ishah's room. She was sitting at a corner with a woman-friend from the Anṣār, both of them crying. In another corner, Aishah's parents were sitting, speechless, their gaze fixed to the ground, in their deeply troubled thoughts. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) broke into the room, everybody looked up. 'A'ishah's tears dried out suddenly, and blood rushed to her cheeks, as she looked into the face of the man whom she loved and venerated so much, and who had suddenly, become cool towards her, and stayed away from her for more than a month. The Prophet (peace be upon him), looking intently into 'A'ishah's face, eventually put the question directly to her:

'O 'Ā'ishah! You know what people say about you: Fear Allah, and if you have done wrong, as men say, then repent towards Him for He accepts repentance from His servants,' said the Prophet (peace be upon him).14

'As the Prophet said these words, my tears totally ceased. I waited for my parents to answer on my behalf, but they said nothing. By Allah, I thought myself too insignificant for Allah to send down

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq robular of the Qur'an about me, which would be recited in the Industrial But only hoped that the Prophet would see my innocence Mountain or something of that sort." Presently she turned to her parents;

Northou answer for me:

Dependently, they said they had nothing to say. Again 'Ā'ishah Depondently, user some solution to her feet and, drying her tears, bort no tears. Then she sprang to her feet and, drying her tears, Adversed the Prophet (peace be upon him) with fire of anger and determination in her face and eyes. By Allah, I will never repent to Him of what you mention! By Alba I know that if I were to confess to what men say of me, Mak knowing that I am innocent of it, I should admit what did on happen; and if I denied what they said, you would not believe m Wishah said that she then racked her memory for the name of Jacob but could not retrieve it, so she said:

But I will say what the father of Joseph said "My duty is to show pkny of patience and Allah's help is to be asked against what you

Having said those words, to the Prophet (peace be upon him), the quietly laid down on her bed.

hardy any time passed than the Prophet (peace be upon him), tading where he was, was seized by the trance that used to take him, theory revelations came to him. He lay on the floor, wrapped in baddhes, with a leather cushion under his head. Although it was a rearrange resource custom runder the property of the Prophet (peace be upon him) sweated profusely, drops does on his forehead were like pearls. When he came back to his Simulation should write me Pearly, When the Sound news, Olishing good news! Allah has just revealed to me your innocence! 16 Januar good news! Allah has just revealed to me your minds the parents were looking gustily, as they feared that the berings turnour would be confirmed. However, Arishah herself Section would be confirmed. However, A Island the name of All L., which head the name of All L., and t Raische to Allah. Allah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) went out at once, and addressed

A specific point (peace be upon him) went out at once, and addressed the Qur'ānic revelation, he had received concerning the innocence of 'Ā'ishah, for whom now alka,

12. QUR'ĀNIC VERSES ABOUT (Ā'ISHAH'S INNOCENCE The ordeal was not only over for 'A'ishah, and her immediate family but it was indeed over for the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the The Qur'anic Verses affirming 'A'ishah's innocence run as follows:

Those who came with the slander are a band of you; do not redon it evil for you; rather it is good for you. Every man of them shall have the sin that he has earned charged to him, and whosoever of them took upon himself the greater part of it, for him there awaits a mighty chastisement. Why, when you heard it, did the believing men and women not think good thoughts of each other, and say, this is a manifest lie!"

Why do they not (demand of the accusers that they) produce four witnesses to prove their allegations? For if they do not produce such witnesses, it is they (accusers) who, in the sight of Allah, are lians

And were it not for Allah's Favour upon you, and His Grace in this world and in the life to come, awesome suffering would indeed have afflicted you, in consequence of all that in which you indulged; when you took it up with your tongues, uttering with your mouths something of which you have no knowledge, and deeming it a light matter, whereas in the Sight of Allah, is a grave matter indeed.

And [once again] why do you not say: whenever you hear such [a rumour]: it does not behove us to speak of this, O You Who are limitless in Your Glory, this is a manifest falsehood! Allah admonishes you (hereby) lest you ever again revert to the like of this (sin), if you are (truly) believers. For Allah makes (His) signs clear unto you, and Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise. [al-Nur 24:11-18].

God says to the Muslims: 'Do not consider the lie affair a setback; it is a good and positive thing.' One of the beneficial results of the lie

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq those elaborate laws and regulations revealed in relation to for are those enavorance and regulations are given in the Qur'anic verses A Some of translated into English above. But the full compass of day law and regulations is very wide: They are given in Sūrah al-Nūr and further explained in the sunnah of the Prophet (peace be upon They deal with false rumours, allegations, slant and slander. they also deal with dressing and costumes of a Muslim woman, and the time and separation of the two sexes in Islam (hijāb). Severe maintent of eighty lashes is prescribed against those who indulge s oreading false rumours and allegations. The Companions of the holds, who were known to have been involved in the rumour were hand, including the famous poet of the Prophet, Ḥassān ibn Thābit; www.Mistah, relative of 'A'ishah, was flogged. The punishment was and out in public. Concerning this punishment of spreading false AMOURS, God says in the Qur'an:

The who falsely accuse chaste women of adultery, and do not long forth four witnesses to this effect, shall be flogged with aphy stripes, and their testimony shall never be admitted as orderee in any matter! Those are the indecent, the immoral.

13, THE STORY OF ABŪ AYYŪB AND HIS WIFE The Interstora OF ABO AT POD A Wike of Abū Alyvūb: 'Did you not hear what the men are saying dom Aishah. O Abū Ayyūb?'

Abban, U Abū Ayyūb?

Abbando iii?

Abbando iii?

Abbando iii.

Mother Wik of Ayyub: Most emphatically no!

And Anyth: Most emphatically no!

And Anyth: By Allah 'A'ishah is a better woman than you!' Adding to common sense, good will and piety of that Muslim este of Ansir, Allah revealed the following Qur'anic verse:

Why, When you heard it, did the believing men and say this is a manifely liet War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Mulanmed think 800d thoughts of each other and say: this is a manifestler The Way in Which A ishah, the young Mother of the Faithful ordeal of the Malini Maha Conducted herself during the trying ordeal of the Failly the character of that heloved wife of the Failly the Habby great deal about the character of that beloved wife of the Popler in which The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq Although still quite character of that beloved wife of the Propher of that she had been of immune She Put up with the scandal, showed that she had been of immined to the standard only that, but she masses seed a tree. and the victim of a very vicious accusation. After God revealed her exence in the Qur'an, her parents said to her, 'Get up and thank moral and spiritual strength. Not only that she had been of immore the strength and indoment truether with an eventual strength. Messenger of Allah.' She said 'By Allah, I am not going to thank gift of analytical thinking, and judgement, together with an excellent of her character and her be or anyone else, for that matter, but I only thank Allah alone! Command of the language. The strength of her character, and her character characters are characters. As God said in the Qur'an, the 'Ifk Affair' was not evil or harmful uth Muslim society of Madinah. Rather, much benefit and good immense sense of pride and dignity, not only her beauty or hiness go a long way towards explaining why the Prophet (peace be upon The Muslim society was severely tested and tried. They knew him) found her company so fascinating and compelling. Also, the the mountain the mountain the second false accusations are. They were generality of the Muslims were very fond of her, first of all, not only prainew and very effective penal code to combat slander and slant be accusations, and to reinforce the values of chastity and good because they knew her favoured place with their beloved Prophe mobile Moreover, a whole code of how the relationship between (peace be upon him), but also because of her extra-ordinary gift for Awar should be arranged in Islam, was revealed in the wake of memorizing the Qur'an, for her excellent knowledge of jurisprudene Musin ibn Thabit, the Prophet's Poet, repented and was and law, and also history of poetry. As the Prophet (peace be upon Ingraby the Prophet (peace be upon him), by 'A'ishah and the him) once remarked: 'She is truly the daughter of Abū Bakr' And the Companion Mistah (who fought at Badr) was danie logicen by the Prophet (peace be upon him), Abū Bakr All the beloved character traits of Abū Bakr, Aishah inherited especially his moral courage and nobility of soul. Abu Bakr was an and the generality of the Muslims. He even continued to enjoy the and superally of the Musiums. He even communed to enjoy the distribution of the Our an iteal such in the Abu Baker, following accomplished scholar of Arab history as well as poetry. He had a rare is single of the Qur'an itself, which told the Muslims that Allah gift for eloquence, and so too had Aishah. It was for these qualities State of the Winds affair. The Prophet's name and honour were and not just her fairness and beauty, that the Prophet held A'ishahin Sand whereas the hypocrites were given a harsh lesson in moral such a high esteem, and likewise the community of the faithful. Madinah was further tainted and The account 'A'ishah gave of the 'Ifk Affair' was very consistent and wholesome. To the Muslim mind, the whole matter was settled The top let (peace be upon him) was now entitled to some rest, and indeed neace and hanniness descended Research transport (peace be upon him) was now entitled to some rest.

A ichah's notion vise a descended once and for all by the Qur'anic revelation of the sūrah of the Light, In the state of th quoted above. But for any objective enquirer, the account left not Manager of the second of the s the least shadow of a doubt, that A ishah was innocent, and that she All the state of t Signature of the prophet (peace be upon Maria diading authority on the Qur'an, Islamic Jurisprudence of the Prophet (Peace be upon authority on the third-tanking authority on Maring and practices of the Prophet (Peace be upon and was recognized as (C 184 D) Make is said to have became the third-ranking authority on was recognized as War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad such by the leading Muslim jurists, in her own right, and not because wife of the Prophet (may Allah benleaddus) Such by the leading lylusing Jurists, in ner own right, and not leave wife of the Prophet (may Allah be pleased with

Once the storm of the 'Ifk Affair' subsided in Madinah, the Property of the Affair's subsided in Madinah, the Affair's subsi (peace be upon him) started to think and plan for the great eventual transport of the Prophet (neace harman) still lay ahead. The thinking of the Prophet (peace be upon him) a that crucial juncture of Islamic history was preoccupied with finding a final solution to the question of Makkah and the Quraysh. Depte the great suffering inflicted on the Prophet (peace be upon him) by the Quraysh, he never ceased hoping for their eventual conversion to Islam. He knew very well the role which the Quraysh Arabs could play in the history and civilization of Islam. He also knew of the crucial and most central position that Makkah and its ancient sanctuar, the Ḥaram, would occupy, in the religion of Islam. So his thoughts now were all centred on finding a peaceful solution to the conflict with the Quraysh. He knew also that the Quraysh would never again be able to invade Madinah, that, at least from the military point of view, the Quraysh was a spent force that posed no strategic threat to his authority. But the Quraysh were the honoured chiefs and leaders of all Arabia. So if the Prophet (peace be upon him) could only win them over to Islam peacefully, the position of Islam in Arabia would be secure forever or at least greatly enhanced. Also, should any hostilities break out between the state of Madinah and the powerful empires to the north, the Arabs of Quraysh, if converted to Islam, would be a valuable support and resource. Later on, 'Umar ibn al-Khaṭṭab, the second Righteously Guided Caliph of the Prophet, used to say: The Arabs are the mainstay of the power of Islam,' in other words 'the Arabs are the main factor in the strength of Islam: (The substance It was in the wake of the 'Ifk Affair' that the Prophet (peace of Islam).'

be upon him) saw the dream which precipitated the events that eventually led to the conclusion of the Ḥudaybīyah Pact or Armistice in the following year. That was followed by the Great Victory or the Opening of Makkah and the peaceful winning over of all the Arabs

The Aftermath of the Battle of al-Khandaq Ulle Cause of Islam. The Hudaybiyah Pact was actually the prelude unbecture of Islam. In the graduary of Islam over its adversaries, and the unbectually and final victory of Islam over its adversaries, and the underentially and that peace was at last coming to that war-torn Indoor Arabona.

If it was true that the Prophet (peace be upon him) was warormed in the greater part of his career at Madinah, yet the deep ranning of his heart was always for peace, for harmonious living in descrice of God and pursuit of justice. Peace is a central theme n klum, since the very essence of Islam is to achieve peace and traquility through total submission to God. So it is peace, rather hun wat, which is the 'highest good' in Islamic society. But alas, add is the nature of man that he more often than not inclines to autosion and injustice. Because of this, and because the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself and his followers were subjected to malled for and unnecessary oppression, the Muslims were obliged n hight wars against the idol-worshippers and the belligerent Jews

In the coming chapter, we are going to tell the most extraordinary uny of how hard the Prophet (peace be upon him) had to fight in the cause of achieving peaceful reconciliation with the Quraysh and bar supporters. It was quite clear, in the mind of the Prophet (peace Rupon him), that what he needed was peace rather than war, to Ministration of bringing the light of Islam to humanity at large, Ble was commanded by his Lord! It is unfortunate that Western time bonker. A sawell as of today, have insisted on a false image the Prophet (peace be upon him) as war-monger. Some of them laterin compared him to Hitler! Nothing is further from the truth. The Plant is that he followed the course of peaceful resistance to the thank of the Quraysh, and the ignorant Bedouins for the whole the Makkan period of thirteen years, until God gave him and the Median period of thirteen years, until God Bave Marie He permission to fight back: God said in the Qur'an: Meh is able to make showing the state of the Alloh is able to make them victorious. Those who were expelled fom their homes without right, except that they say: Allah is our

@ 186 D

Lord. And had Allah not driven back the people; some by the means of others, cloisters and churches, oratories and mosques would have been destroyed, wherein Allah's name is much mentioned to will make victorious those who unball to Assuredly Allah will make victorious those who uphold His cause!

The Prophet's attitude towards war and peace was without doubt wholly dictated by the provisions of the Qur'an. In the Qur'an, war is always portrayed as an evil, except when waged in a just cause. Muslims are in many verses are commanded not to initiate hostilities. However, it is legitimate for them to do so in self-defence, or when it is deemed necessary and essential to fight off injustice and oppression. People have a basic right to freedom of worship, be they Muslim, Christians or Jews, or indeed any other religious dominion, especially if they have a Revealed Scripture. So here, Muslims are commanded even to fight in the general cause of religious freedom for themselves and for others, as is amply demonstrated by the verses quoted above. But when Muslims resort to war, they are expected, as commanded by the Qur'an, to fight with absolute firmness and commitment, so that war would be won for the cause of Islam, and human freedom and dignity, so that human beings can freely worship God alone, be they Muslims or non-Muslims.

If an enemy proposes an armistice, then it is the religious duty of Muslims to respond at once by accepting it: This is commended by God in the Qur'an itself:

And if they become inclined towards peace then you must be so inclined, and put all your trust in Allah, He is All-Hearing, All-

And if they desire to trick you, then Allah is sufficient unto you. He has strengthened you with his victory and the believers, and brought their hearts together! Had you expended all that is on earth, (9) wealth) you could not have brought their hearts together, but Allah brought the could not have brought their hearts together, but Allah

Surely, He is All-Mighty, All-Wise. [al-Anfal 8:61-63]

Abbrabore Qur'anic verses amply demonstrate, peace is strongly

Abbraborated in the Qur'an. For the sake of attaining the peace is strongly doub above Qur'anic verses amply demonstrate, peace is strongly demonstrated demonstrate and policious and initiatives must be taken. If the enemy shows and initiatives must be taken the Marching inclined towards peace, then the Marching inclined towards peace. The enemy shows and inflatives must be taken. If the enemy shows must be taken to the enemy shows must A separation of their enemy being insincere in the gesture. and on at the strings of power, and would not allow deceit and behold to trumph over solarit.

This throughout his career, the Prophet's primary search was This brougnout me career, the property of the bulk peace. He was always honourable and magnanimous with Index peace, The second grammers and indeed. In Compression on the Jewish Tribe of Qurayzah . But that must kiened as an extreme and exceptional measure, taken in extreme alexquional circumstances against a uniquely exceptional enemy, u@unyah were bent on exterminating the Prophet (peace be quo him) and his community, totally and completely, if they were

The Prophet's trip to Hudaybiyah, and his subsequent attempt number a peaceful accord with the Quraysh, was a hallmark, and a untr-stone, in his search for peace. Hudaybiyah marks a turningmus, because it marks the beginning of the peaceful era in the hapled's life, and the beginning of the great drive towards peace Satisfy prove so instrumental in the lasting and eventual victory Main Without that peace, Islam could not have had the chance to stead to far, so quickly, and establish the most brilliant civilization

That the treatment which the Prophet meted to the Jews of Statishing act exceptional, can be further demonstrated from Statistical Action of the Company of by the state of the Book More and the Jews as The state of the Book Moreover, far from being anti-Semitic, the Muslims, Abraham as their spiritual father,

The Search for Peace at Hudaybiyah War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad the one who gave them their name as 'Muslims'. They also recognize the lewish or Israelite Prophets, as their own Prophets. The Arabs. in particular, regard themselves as Semitic, being the descendents of Ishmael, son of Abraham, despite the present-day habits of some lews who call the Arabs the Hagarities or sons of the Egyptian slave-girl of Abraham, Hagar, and being as such, not authentic Semites, but only half-cast or hybrids. THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE HUDAY BYAH PACT Moreover, the Jews of later times were not affected by the Emeanificance of the Hudaybiyah Pact cannot be over estimated. episode of Qurayzah. They continued to enjoy a respectable place anthefirst two years after the Pact, more people embraced Islam in Islamic civilization, and occupied high offices of state as well as a high place in the commercial life of many Muslim societies, und the whole of its previous history of nineteen years. When beginning with the Umayyad Dynasty. Throughout Muslim Spain, he hophet (peace be upon him) called for the march to Makkah and the Ottoman Empire, the Jews never experienced anything like the Inquisition Courts or the Nazi Holocaust. On the contrary, they urthe pilgrimage, which ended in the Hudaybiyah episode, not enjoyed full rights as citizens, and were employed as physicians, nor than one thousand four hundred Muslims responded to the and even ministers, and government advisors. During the Abbasid Dynasty, they participated fully in the cultural as well the scientific ## Some versions put the number of the men who accompanied life of the society. For examples Maimonid (Mūsā ibn Maymūn al-≈ Prophet to Ḥudaybiyah at no more than seven hundred. But Qurtubi) the great Jewish philosopher, studied under Ibn Rushd and other philosophers and scientists of Muslim Spain. It is even said that when he called for the conquest of Makkah, more than ten thousand Ibn Rushd, in fact, acted as his personal supervisor and mentor, even asponded. The Quraysh were compelled, for the first time in their lodged him (i.e. Maimonid) in his own house, when he was a student billory, to openly and publicly admit the political reality of Islam as ardigion and state. Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) was That recognized as head of the greatest and most powerful political unity in Arabia as a whole. The Bedouins of Arabia were quick see the shift in the balance of power, and started to deal with the Prophet's authority at Madinah. They were no longer swayed by the Quraysh, which was then seen as a force in decline. All of bese considerations weighed heavily in the direction of the final victory of Islam in Arabia, and the final downfall of the Quraysh W 190 D @ 191 D

2. THE PROPHET'S EFFORTS TO WIN PEACE AT ḤUDAYBĪYAH

The events that led to the conclusion of the Ḥudaybiyah Pact show very clearly that the Prophet (peace be upon him) spared no effort in his quest for peace. The way he patiently put up with the Quraysh's insolence and arrogance, and the extraordinary flexibility and forbearance with which he dealt with the successive delegations sent by the Quraysh, testified to his insight and unshakable determination to reach a negotiated peace with the Quraysh. No doubt, it was Divine guidance that was steering his course. It was shown to him, in a dream, that he would enter Makkah peacefully, and without fear or bloodshed, with his head shaven, a mark of the pilgrim. He believed in that dream, and worked hard to realize it.

3. CONFRONTATION WITH THE QURAYSH AVERTED

As the Prophet's unarmed and peaceful procession was drawing nearer to Makkah, with about seventy sacrificial camels, well-decorated, driven in front of them, it was met by a certain Bashīr ibn Sufyān. He told the Prophet (peace be upon him) of the Quraysh's elaborate preparations for war, that the bulk of their army was at Dhū Tuwā, and that Khālid ibn al-Walīd, not yet a Muslim, since his conversion to Islam took place after the Ḥudaybīyah Pact was concluded, was commanding their Cavalry at a place called Kurāʿ al-Ghamīm. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was saddened by this news, and said:

Woe be to the Quraysh; war has devoured them! What harm would it be to them, if they had left me and the rest of the Arabs? If they should kill me that is what they want; and if God gives me victory over them, they would enter Islam, with dignity in large numbers. And if they do not like any of these opinions, they could fight me while they have enough strength. For what are the Quraysh thinking of? For by God, I will not cease fighting for the mission with which God has entrusted me until He makes me victorious, or I have my neck cut off in this trial.

The Search for Peace at Hudaybiyah difficult and the Took a difficult and the Armies of the Armies of the Armies be upon him) then took a armies of the Valley of the July order to avoid meeting the road was very and in order to avoid and rugged road the Valley of the Muslims to the Plain of the Muslims to the Plain of the Muslims to t

4. THE KNEELING OF AL-QAŞWĀ'

5. Substitution of the valley of al
6. Substitution of the valley knelt down,

6. Substitution of the valley knelt down,

6. Substitution of the valley knelt down,

6. Substitution of the valley of al
6. Substitution of the valley of al
6. Substitution of the Ka'bah, the year

The Prophet (peace be upon him) took the kneeling of al-Qaṣwā'
The Prophet (peace be upon him) took the kneeling of al-Qaṣwā'
The Prophet (peace be upon him) took the kneeling of al-Qaṣwā' paac with the Quraysh. He declared that he was stopping there, and that he would agree to any peace proposals by the Quraysh. When the Companions protested that there was no source of water in the vicinity, the Prophet (peace be upon him) called upon one Companion, gave him an arrow, and told him to shoot into one of the dry waterholes.
On doing this, the water gushed forth, and it was so plentiful that the whole army and its animals drank, without affecting the water Prophet (peace be upon him).

5. DIFFICULT NEGOTIATIONS WITH QURAYSH Hardly had the Prophet (peace be upon him) rested in the valley of Hudaybiyah, than delegations from Makkah started to arrive, one

5.1 The arrival of Budayl ibn Waraqah al-Khuzāʻi

First came a delegation from the tribe of Khuza'a, who were long time allies of the Prophet (peace be upon him), even though most of them remained non-Muslims, Khuzā'ah were ancient enemies of the Quraysh, so it was natural that they felt inclined to the Prophet (peace be upon him) from the start. The Prophet (peace be upon him) told them that he came as a pilgrim, and showed them the proof of the sacrificial animals. They were convinced, and their leader Budayl hurried to the Quraysh, and told them of what he saw, and that the intentions of the Prophet (peace be upon him) were peaceful. But the Quraysh were adamant. They wouldn't budge from their position. They told the chief of Khuzā'ah that even if they accepted that the Prophet's intentions were peaceful, he would not be allowed to enter Makkah against the will of the Quraysh. They did not want the Arabs to say: that Muḥammad had entered Makkah and performed pilgrimage against the will of the Quraysh.

5.2 The Delegation of Al-Hulays ibn Hafs

Quraysh then sent al-Hulays ibn 'Alqamah, head of the powerful troops of the Ahābīsh, said to be troops who were originally from Abyssinia. Al-Hulays personally was a Qurayshite (of Banū 'Abd Manāt ibn Kinānah). When the Prophet (peace be upon him) saw al-Hulays coming, he told his Companions that he was from a religious group known to be devout. He ordered them to send the sacrificial camels to meet him, so that he would take notice of them. When al-Hulays saw the sacrificial animals, duly decorated, he was very impressed. He even went back without meeting the Prophet (peace be upon him), as he was totally convinced of his peaceful intentions, and that he came solely for the purpose of pilgrimage.

Manufactured with the Quraysh, and told them of Medifiely conferred with the Quraysn, and told them of the desert who leaves the desert rebutted mm unknown, saying that he was merely who knew nothing when they saw that he was angared broken. problem when they saw that he was angered by their response, When they saw marine was angered by men response, and be quiet until they obtained acceptable war and the quee to appear and to assure according to assure And Muhammad (peace be upon and the would ultimately allow Muhammad (peace be upon and the would ultimately allow Muhammad (peace be upon and the world upon a world upon and the world John they wound ununaccy and the state of th And the state any action against and did not take any action against words, as he had initially vowed to do.

53 The Coming of the Insolent 'Urwah in Mas'ūd 150 Juraysh sent 'Urwah ibn Mas' ūd al-Thaqafī to the Prophet make upon him). 'Urwah was known for his insolence. He throad the Prophet (peace be upon him) disrespectfully; he even indurbuke the Prophet, by telling him that he had gathered the umof the earth, a mixed people, and brought them out in order to bown people. He told the Prophet (peace be upon him) that k@uzyshhad gathered a mighty army, and that his mixed army and pupe would soon desert him, if it came to military confrontation. hi Bakr was standing by, obviously incensed by the insolent marks of 'Urwah, because he directed some severe words at him. bat Unwah took them lightly, saying that he owed Abū Bakr some projous favours. Then 'Urwah started touching the Prophet's beard, shilly pulling it, as was the custom of Bedouin Arabs, when talking na friendly way to a senior chief. A Companion of the Prophet, al-Mughirah ibn Shu'bah, who was standing behind the Prophet (peace be upon him), would strike 'Urwah's hand, each time he pulled at

The Prophet (peace be upon him) told 'Urwah what he had told the previous ambassadors, and 'Urwah was very much impressed. On returning to the Quraysh, he told them how much the Muslims loved, renerated and obeyed the Prophet (peace be upon him). Comparing the Prophet (peace be upon him) to Caesar and Chosroe, 'Urwah said, he was even more loved and obeyed than the latter were, and that Muḥammad (peace be upon him)'s people would not give him

6. THE PROPHET'S AMBASSADORS TO QURAYSH

Then the Prophet (peace be upon him) sent Khirāsh ibn Umayyah al-Khuzāʿī to the Quraysh. But he was unsuccessful and narrowly escaped death at their hands, had it not been for the Aḥābīsh, who protected him. Then the Prophet (peace be upon him) asked 'Umar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb to go to the Quraysh, but he excused himself, saying that there were not enough of his own tribe of Banu 'Adiyy in Makkah to protect him, that he had too much enmity with the Quraysh, and had treated them quite roughly. 'Umar suggested 'Uthmān ibn 'Affān, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) agreed. So 'Uthman was dispatched. Quraysh received 'Uthmān (of Banū Umayyah) quite well, and even offered to let him visit and worship at al-Ka bah, if he so desired. But 'Uthman declined the offer, saying that it was unbecoming of him to do so, while the Prophet (peace be upon him) was not allowed to do the same. Then Quraysh told 'Uthman that they could not allow the Prophet to enter Makkah, lest the Arabs would think that he had entered it by force. However, 'Uthman's return to the Muslims' camp was delayed, and rumours came that he was killed. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was very angry and said, he would never return to Madinah without engaging the Quraysh in battle.

7. THE PLEDGE OF AR-RIDWAN OR THE PLEDGE OF THE TREE

When 'Uthman's return was delayed, and rumours came that he had been killed, the Prophet (peace be upon him) summoned the Muslims to give their undertakings. The ensuing Pledge of al-Ridwan took place under a tree. Most men said that the Prophet (peace be upon him) had taken their pledge that they would fight until they were victorious and him as martyrs. However the Prophet's Companion, Jabir And him as matryrs, rowever the Prophet only took their pledge not that the Prophet only their many and the Muslims present gave their pledge, except one who refused. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) heard who refused when the riophet speace of apoint that I have been to Curandh, and resumed his peace efforts. 'Uthman returned

They knew very well that Muḥammad (peace be upon him) came columned the Quraysh's position that:

or pagrimage only, and had no aggressive designs. That they had no right to prevent him or the Muslims from

That, in spite of that, they could not allow him to enter that year, lest the Arabs should say that he had entered by force.

Instead, they hinted that the Prophet would be allowed to enter next year, if he so wished.

8. THE NEGOTIATIONS OF HUDAY BIYAH PACT

being that many of their powerful allies did not approve of denying the Muslims (or for that matter any Arab) the right of visiting the Ancient House of God, especially al-Hulays ibn 'Alqamah, the ommander of the Aḥābīsh, the Quraysh agreed, in principle, that the Prophet (peace be upon him) and Muslims would be allowed access to the Ka'bah; but not that year. It had to be the next year, and they would have to be notified well ahead, so that they would vacate the city, and make other suitable arrangements. They argued that they could not allow him to enter that year, since they had taken their weapons, and made to the roads to prevent him. Should they allow him to enter Makkah, in these circumstances, it would look as if they had allowed him because of fear or weakness. The Bedouins would draw the wrong conclusions, and say that Muḥammad (peace

@ 196 D

9. EMISSARY OF SUHAYL IBN 'AMR

When the Quraysh agreed to negotiate, they sent Suhayl ibn 'Amr, as their emissary. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) saw Suhayl, he said: 'Quraysh now wants peace, otherwise they would not have sent Suhayl ibn 'Amr' When Suhayl came, real negotiations got underway for the first time. They were long and difficult negotiations, and Suhayl was tough on a number of points:

- a. First, he refused a document which set out the provisions of the pact because it opened with Bismillah, i.e. 'In the name of God, the Most Merciful, Most Compassionate.'
- Suhayl also objected to the phrase 'Muhammad, the Messenger of God'. He rejected it, he said, because he was unfamiliar with it, and because, if he recognized Muḥammad (peace be upon him) as the Messenger of God, he would not have fought with him. The Prophet told 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib, who was writing the document of the pact, to make due allowances to both objections (a & b) made by Suhayl. Ultimately the document of the pact was written as follows:

'This is what Muhammad (peace be upon him) ibn 'Abdullāh has agreed on with Suhayl ibn 'Amr;'

- They have agreed to lay aside war for ten years, during which men shall be safe and refrain from hostilities.
- b. If one from the Quraysh side should come to Muḥammad (peace be upon him), without the permission of his guardians, he will be returned to them!
- But should anyone from the side of Muhammad come to the Quraysh, they will not return him to the Muslims.
- d. None of the signatories to the pact shall show enmity or bad faith, or secret reservations towards one another.

Merer wants to enter into bond and agreement with Ascret wants to enter into wone and agreement with Mediand agreement with Quraysh, may do so. (At this and greement with curayons may no over the selves Bakr Stand Representation of the Prophet (peace be upon him), and Banu Bakr boy up and declared themselves allies of Quraysh.) Madinah, but he could come BOT YEAR, When he would be allowed to enter the city, and gar there for three days and nights, carrying no weapons, occept the traveller's weapons, namely swords in their

IN SHOCK AND DEJECTION AMONG MUSLIMS Deathe pact's provisions were completed, the Prophet (peace be makim) summoned some Muslims and some polytheists to witness acordusion. There was a profound sense of disappointment and Indon among the Muslims. When they set out from Madinah, they Was doubts that they would enter Makkah, and carry out their bottonal rites of circuiting the Ka'bah, and worshipping God, in in the Ancient House. No doubt some, among the Muhājrīn, talso looking forward to visiting their homes and relatives. Had the Prophet (peace be upon him) told them what he had seen a big dream that he would enter the Sacred Sanctuary, in peace and carity, fearing nothing, and with his head shaven. But now, what Appened was just the opposite, they were barred from visiting the and the House, when they were standing so near to it, and the phytheists were threatening to attack them. The Prophet (peace be gon him) rose up, slaughtered his sacrificial animals and shaved head. The Muslims had been passive in their bewilderment and and the Muslims Had been Prophet (peace) be upon him) act as he did, and heard his prayers for those who followed his example. They were reassured and everybody got up,

C 198 2

(C 199 D)

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad slaughtered his sacrificial animal and shaved. The Prophet (peace be upon him) told them that God had indeed promised them a dignified and peaceful entry into the Holy City, but had not said it was going to be in that year.

> 11. 'UMAR IBN AL-KHAŢŢĀB QUESTIONS THE TERMS OF THE PACT

<sup>c</sup>Umar led the opposition to the conclusion of the Ḥudaybiyah accord. He asked: 'Are they not the polytheists? Are we not the Muslims? Are they not on the path of falsehood, we on the path of truth? Why then are we to suffer the demeaning of our religion?' 'Umar first talked to Abū Bakr, and when he didn't get a satisfactory answer from him, he went straight to the Prophet (peace be upon him), and put the same

The Prophet answered: 'I am God's Servant and His Messenger, and I will not go against His commandments, and He will not make me a loser!'2 'Umar was very sorry for challenging the Prophet's decision. He felt remorse about this for a very long time to come and, in expiation, he fasted much, and gave charity to the poor.

'Umar was obviously unhappy at the apparent imbalances in the pact:

- The Muslims were denied entrance to the Holy City for no good reason.
- They were not allowed to write the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate, and were not allowed to declare the Prophethood of Muhammad, declarations which were the most fundamental articles of their faith
- Their defectors would not be returned to them, whereas they were required to return the defectors from the Quraysh.
- When they would come next year, they would be allowed to stay only for three days and nights, and would not be allowed to carry

Who would what if the Company what if the Company who would The Search for Peace at Hudaybiyah bor weapons, cacepe to the desirence of parantee men success and the desert at the well of al-Raji

However, the Prophet (peace be upon him) had been favoured hometa, about the benefits of the Pact; benefits Multiple outweighed the kinds of misgivings expressed by 'Umar.

12. DIVINE GLAD-TIDINGS ABOUT THE CONSEQUENCES OF THE PACT

On the return journey, God sent glad-tidings to His Prophet about the consequences of the pact just concluded. The Qur'an called it imagnificent victory. A whole sūrah was revealed to Muhammad peace be upon him), which commented on the events of that day, and puised the resolve and dedication of the Companions, who had taken the Pledge of al-Ridwan under the Tree, with the Prophet (peace be quanhim): God said, in the Qur'an, commenting on those events:.

Surely, We have given you a manifest victory, that Allah may for give you your former and your later sins, and complete His blessing upon you, and guide you on a straight path, and that Allah may give you a mighty victory. It is He Who sent down peace (Sakīnah) into the hearts of believers, that they might add faith to their faith. To Allah belong the hosts of heavens and the earth, Allah is All-Knowing, All-

The reasons why God, called the Hudaybīyah Pact a victory are all given in these opening verses of this sūrah. The Prophet's sins, whatever they might have been, were all forgiven, and the ones to come in the future would also be

- b. God's blessing upon the Prophet (peace be upon him) would be completed, an obvious allusion that the cause of Islam would be victorious, and many people would enter into Islam.
- The Prophet (peace be upon him) was assured of continuing help
- d. Lastly, another glad-tiding was given that there was a mighty victory in the near future, stored for the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims, as a consequence of the conclusion of the Pact of Hudaybiyah.
- The verses also told the Prophet (peace be upon him) that a Divine Intervention had taken place, that relieved the shock and dismay, which the Muslims experienced on account of the apparently inequitable terms of the Pact. God sent down the sakīnah (i.e. calm and serenity) on the hearts of the believers, and they accepted what the Prophet (peace be upon him) had accepted, in order to make the Pact possible, in the face of the intransigence and arrogance of the Quraysh.

13. THE MEN OF AL-RIDWAN PLEDGE ARE PRAISED

In subsequent verses of Sūrah al-Fath, God praises the Muslims who took the Ridwan Pledge with the Prophet (peace be upon him), under the Tree. God said, in this connection:

Those who pledge fealty to you pledge fealty in truth to Allah, Allah's hand is over their hands, then, whosoever breaks his oath, breaks it but to his own disadvantage, and who so fulfils his covenant made with Allah, Allah will give him a mighty wage". [al-Fath 48:10]

14. THE CASE OF THE DEFECTORS

Hardly had the ink on the Hudaybiyah Pact dried, than the terms of that pact were put to a severe test. The very son of the negotiator, Suhayl ibn 'Amr, defected to the Muslims, before they had even departed Muslim camp include: of Hudayonyan, and white the Quraysh signatures in the Muslim camp, including Suhayl there, in the Muslim of his and Almanded the extradition of his and Almanded the extradition of his and the sum of his and his Mere still there, in the avission of his son Abu Jandal. The standard the extradition of his son Abu Jandal. out that define the upon him), to the utter dismay and dejection of and peace be upon many, to the difference and a specific to a specific t Applied landal. On hearing this, Abu Jandal called out loudly: Pall Moral and an Uninearing and State of the polytheists that they may entice me from Muslims! But the Prophet answered: PAbii Jandal, be patient and control yourself, for God will pointe relief and a means of escape for you and those of you nha are helpless. We have made peace with them, and we and they have invoked God's name in our agreement, and we cannot deal falsely with them."3

The Prophet (peace be upon him) proved his great capacity to imin cool and calm, in the face of high emotion and provocation. He ladgiven the word of God's message, and must remain true to it. He walled also to teach them that pacts and treaties are not worthwhile Howen no sooner than made. He must set the example, even to armies, known for their cruelty and infidelity. If the Prophet (peace be upon him) would break his word, who else could be expected to

15. THE EPISODE OF ABŪ BAŞ $\bar{I}R$

However, the case of the defectors soon developed into a major crisis for the Quraysh. A certain defector, by the name of Abū Baṣīr, came to the Prophet (peace be upon him) in Madinah, and the Prophet sent him back, with his persecutors, just as he did with Abū Jandal ibn Suhayl ibn 'Amr, the ambassador of the Quraysh. But, during the bin Suhayl ibn Amr, the amusassacor of the himself from his captives, and look up residence on the trade route of the Quraysh to Syria. There he was joined by other Muslims who had been detained in Makkah, and was joined by other Musiums who had been decanted in Priakkan, and the whole group developed into a serious and great threat to Quraysh trade to Syria. Altogether, about seventy Muslims gathered around Abū Başīr, as their leader, at Al- 'Ashīr on the sea coast. This Muslim force succeeded in disrupting the Makkan trade, and the Quraysh wrote to the Prophet (peace be upon him) requesting him to take them into Madinah, in spite of the very term of the Hudaybiyah Pact that had been so obnoxious to the Muslims, especially 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb. Many Muslim women from Makkah managed to reach Madinah and were not returned to the Quraysh.

In concluding this section on the Pact of Hudaybiyah, it is important to re-emphasize the steadfastness with which the Prophet (peace be upon him) persisted in the pursuit of peace. Nothing succeeded in distracting him from his set objective, to achieve some accord with the Makkans:

- They almost killed his first ambassador, after killing his camel (which actually belonged to the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself).
- b. They prevented him from visiting the Ancient House, in flagrant violation of the tradition of Abraham, Qusayy and Hāshim; and the religious customs of the Quraysh at large. It was an unreasonable thing to do; since every Arab had the right of access to the Holy Sanctuary, why discriminate against Muḥammad (peace be upon him) and the Muslims?
- They raided the Muslim camp with fifty knights, during the Sacred Month of Dhū'l-Ḥijjah, in violation of the religious code of Banū Abraham.
- d. They held 'Uthman ibn 'Affan, as a captive for a few days, and only set him free when they learnt that the Muslims vowed to release him of his captivity by force and to avenge his blood, if killed.
- e. Last but not least, the Quraysh negotiators were most provocative and impolite during the negotiations, and insisted on the most unjust and unbalanced terms, but the Prophet (peace be upon January Limits with wonderful patience and magnanimous Limits with the patience and magnanim by bot all of this, with wonderni patience and magnanimous him)

I have a some and magnanimous him)

I have a some and magnanimous him)

I have a some a some and magnanimous him)

I have a some a so The wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

when the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the propner (peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the peace be upon him)

the wisdom of the peace be upon him th Monte of the paramount spiritual, political and moral force undergrave the paramount spiritual, political and moral force undergrave the paramount spiritual, political and moral force undergrave the outside the paramount spiritual, political and moral force undergrave the outside the paramount spiritual, political and moral force undergrave the outside the paramount spiritual, political and moral force undergrave the paramount spiritual and moral force undergrave the paramount spiritua under as the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force weakened

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force

under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and moral force under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and Maranetta (and the paramount spiritual) under a the paramount spiritual, Pointical and Under a the paramount spiritual and under a the paramount spiritu alable The Quraysns power and admorny runner weakened admoral and the Quraysns power and admorny runner weakened and admoral admoral and admoral and admoral admoral and admoral admoral and admoral admoral and admoral a advanced away, never to revive again. Aviding twiakkans, on seeing the amount of the Quraysh, headed north and joined by moment downtant of the who converted by the popular of the who converted be proposed the period, in the wake of Hudaybiyah, included such phominent names as Khālid ibn al-Walīd; nickname the Sword Monthly Harris as remained with the victorious and far reaching of Cod, for his prominent role in the victorious and far reaching Modifin conquests (al-Futūḥāt al-Islāmiyyah); while 'Amr ibn #/As who became the celebrated Governor of Egypt, and one of the principal builders of the Umayyad Dynasty, also became a Muslim during that time, in the wake of the Hudaybiyah Pact.

16. THE CONQUEST OF KHAYBAR todants of the life of the Prophet (peace be upon him) may wonder at theatent of his military exploits. His main adversaries were no doubt the Quraysh idolaters, but the desert Bedouins and the Jews proved Dilesser adversaries. Those Jews, in particular, surprise the student of Arab history by their aggressive nature, inflated self-image to the tidusion of everybody else, and their martial character. These were hardly the qualities one would expect from a religious minority, living na predominantly Arab land, peopled moreover by many bellicose and Bedouin tribes. In the three Jewish settlements of Madinah, the Banii Qaynuqāʻ, the Banū al-Naḍīr and Banū Qurayẓah, the Jews lived in separate quarters that:

- a. were exclusively Jewish of the same clan
- b. consisted of very elaborate fortifications
  - were almost self-sufficient, and self-contained, with all the necessary amenities such as market-places, carpentry, bakeries, blacksmiths jewelleries, textile and flour-mills and arms' factories. In particular, those Jews were very tough fighters, and they thrived, as warlords, and traders in armaments. No wonder, they perpetuated the notorious war of Bu'āth, between the Aws and Khazraj. The Banū Qurayzah allied themselves with the Aws. The third Jewish settlement of al-Nadīr sided with a lesser Arabian tribe. It was the Jews who incited the wars between the Khazraj and Aws, and they also had wars amongst themselves. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) established his state at Madinah, they found a new role of inciting war and hatred between Muḥammad and his Arab adversaries. Although initially they entered into the Sahifah Covenant with the Prophet (peace be upon him), they repudiated it one after another. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) agreed to let them leave Madinah, they went to swell the Jewish settlements in the north of Arabia, Khaybar, Umm al-Qurā, Fadak, and others. They also established new colonies. From there, they continued their new role as inciters of sedition and war against the Prophet (peace be upon him), and the Muslims in Madinah. The Muslims' initial efforts to gain the friendship and alliance of the Jews (as People of the Book) against idolaters of Makkah were all in vain. Not only that, but the Jews of the north allied themselves totally with the Quraysh and the Arab Bedouins of the desert, and told them that their ancient Arabian religion of idol-worship was a better religion than Islam. Thus the Jews were in the fore-front of hostilities against the Prophet (peace be upon him), and as such he could not ignore their designs. Thus the Prophet (peace be upon him), who had been so enthusiastic about winning the friendship and alliance of the Jews, and who was so assiduously seeking peace and reconciliation with his adversaries at Hudaybiyah, was compelled by the intransigence and belligerence of the Jews of Arabia to fight them to the bitter end. On purely religious and ideological grounds, there need not have been such a conflict, Optin recognizes Judaism as a revealed religion, and legally binding of Arabia were bound to a legally binding Covenant Rutthat Medica he unon him. By Sof Arabia were bound to a regardy binding Covenant.

But that was how events able prophet (peace be upon him). But that was how events able prophet (peace be upon him). with prophet (peace be upon num). Due that was now events two great adved with unfortunate consequences for the Jewish and the security of Arabia. Such was the Jewish threat to the security and your Arabia. Such was the Jewish that the Prophet (peace Approximation had to move against their stronghold at Khaybar, by the city. The struggle against Quray Zah and the one of al-Khandaq made it absolutely clear that the Prophet poir be upon him) could not ignore the Jewish threat from Burbus upun the major role which the Jews of Khaybar played initing and mobilizing the Quraysh, and the desert Bedouins, b join forces against the Muslims at al-Khandaq.

17. THE KHAYBAR EXPEDITON (7 AH) ima purely military point of view, the Hudaybiyah Pact was a strof anticlimax for the Muslims. It had no spectacular results, but of course, its long-term political and moral consequences were timendous. The Qur'an, as we have noted, described Hudaybiyah as Manifest Victory'. But to the generality of the Muslims, the political and moral consequences were not obvious, and their morale in Medinah continued at a low ebb in the aftermath of the Hudaybiyah Part. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) gave the order to march against the Jews of Khaybar, there was an enthusiastic response. The apedition was underway, only six weeks after the return of the Muslims from Hudaybiyah, i.e. in the month of al-Muḥarram, in the

Now, the lews of Khaybar were the strongest, the richest and the bravest of the Jews. They were famous for their elaborate fortifications, which they had built in their rich and fertile valleys at Khaybar, Fadak, Wadi al-Qurā and Taymā'. Contrary to the common impression among some students of Islamic history, Khaybar was not a single fortress, but consisted of a network of elaborate fortifications. The Prophet (peace be upon him) had to overtake them one by one. As was his habit, the Prophet (peace be upon him) did not disclose his exact destination, when he marched towards Khaybar. He knew that the Bedouins of the Ghaṭafan were allies of the Jews of Khaybar, and had he disclosed his intentions of attacking Khaybar, word would have been easily sent to them. So, the Prophet (peace be upon him) marched by night, and it took him three nights' march to reach their fortifications in the small hours of the third night. Early next morning, the Muslims charged against them! The Jews of Khaybar were just opening the doors of their fortresses, and their peasants and workers were setting out for their usual business, when they saw the Muslims' army coming towards their doors.

They shouted and yelled at the top of their voices: 'It is Muḥammad and his army.' They ran back to the doors of their fortresses, entered and quickly slammed the doors after them! The Prophet (peace be upon him) was reported to have shouted back, 'Allāhu Akbar! Khaybar is Doomed! Allāhu Akbar! Khaybar is Destroyed!'4 Then, he recited part of a Qur'anic verse, and said: When it (doom and chastisement) arrived in a people's square it is indeed a bad morning for those who have been warned. [al-Sāffāt 37:177]

The Prophet's allusion to 'people being warned' was indeed very significant. Ibn Hisham mentions that when the Prophet (peace be upon him) returned from Hudaybiyah, he sent a strong warning to the Jews of Khaybar, though its wording was polite and persuasive. This letter is given by Ibn Hishām, when discussing the general issue of the Qur'anic dialogue with the Jews in Sūrah al-Baqarah. But it is quite clear, that the letter was sent, after Hudaybīyah, since it contains verses of Sūrah al-Fath which was revealed to the Prophet (peace be upon him) on his way back from Hudaybiyah, in the year 6 A.H. The letter reads as follows:

In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate. From the Messenger of God, friend and brother of Moses:

of the Qur'an (God says to you, O people of the Swin the Qur'an (God says to you, Book) Swin have a say and you will find it in your own Book od spin the Office of the Says to you, U people of the 'Muhammad' of says to you, Wuhammad book of the Wuhammad it in your own Book) 'Muhammad it in your own bises with his says and those with his says and the says and those with his says and the sa And and you will find it in your own Book) Niuhammad on the land o 88th Mosenger of Allah, and those with nim are hard on the selves; you see them selves; you see them and those with nime are hard on the selves; you see them abilitys, compassionate among memselves; you see mem lower and acceptance from

lower and prostrating; seeking grace and acceptance

lower and prostrating; seeking grace and acceptance

lower and prostrating seeking grace and acceptance and acce bring and prostraings seeking grace and acceptance from their foreheads, that Mak the mark of their prostration is on their description in the short description in the Torah. And their description shardescopnon in the rotation and they good is like a seed which sends forth its off-shoots and they Coope is like a seen which seems juring us off-smoots arm they among the it, and it becomes thick, and rises straight upon its amogner it, and is occurred times, arise to so you report to sail drighting the sowers, that he may cause the unbelievers micromy me sowers at the sight of them. Allah has promised mount with believe, and do good works, forgiveness and a great reward.' [al-Fath 48:29]

Then the Prophet continued his letter to the Jews of Tadjure you by God, and by what He has sent down to you, and by His drying the sea for your fathers, when He delivered them from the Pharaoh and his soldiers, that you tell me, do you find in what He has sent down to you that you believe in Muhammad (peace be upon him)? If you do not find that in your Book, then there is no compulsion upon you, the right path has become plainly distinguished from error, so I call you to God and His Messenger ....

This letter is a significant proof that the Prophet (peace be upon m) was trying very hard with the Jews of Khaybar, as he had tried with the Qurayzah, to reach some kind of peaceful accord that would and the hostilities, and open the road for peaceful dialogue. It is of wurse through peaceful dialogue that ideas spread, and common understanding between people is achieved. As put by Barakat Ahmed, the Prophet (peace be upon him) was trying very hard to find a modus vivacity with the Jews of Khaybar, the last Jewish stronghold in Arabia, to break the cycle of violence and counter-violence. But his letter went unanswered, and his efforts came to nothing. The Jews of Khaybar were not lacking in courage or resources, but they were lacking in vision and in leadership. They could not see clearly, that it was fruitless and vein to fight off a far stronger political and military force, that Quraysh and their Bedouin allies had been unable to defeat. They were given to the leadership of the embittered Banū al-Nadīr who lost their capacity of objective evaluation of things, because the only thing they could ever think about was to avenge their defeat and expulsion from Madinah by the Prophet (peace be upon him). Moreover, their traditional system of defence was inappropriate, as it was designed primarily to stop the raids of the desert Bedouins, which were small-scale and brief. The Bedouins were not capable of laying siege to the fortress of Khaybar, having neither the patience nor the resources to maintain sieges. It was a different matter with the Prophet (peace be upon him), who understood the device of war, himself suffered it, during the Khandaq battle. The Jews of Khaybar were the strongest, and the most arrogant of the Jews of Arabia. They always held the Prophet (peace be upon him) in contempt, and grossly underestimated his power and his ability to win wars. They failed to see the changing fortunes of the times, and that the days of the domination of north Arabia by the Jews had ended. Even if they saw these changes, they were unable to adjust and adapt to them. Moreover, these fortresses were isolated from each other, no co-ordination or common leadership existed between them. In that way, it was not difficult for the Prophet (peace be upon him) to storm the lesser ones among these fortresses as he gathered the bulk of his army to attack the two main strongholds.

@ 208 D

These fell one after the other. The Jews' morale was then very low. Their Arab allies of Banū Ghatafan did not come to their help because, apparently, they were discouraged by the sudden surprising appearance of the Muslims' army.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) then marched to the last strongholds of Khaybar, namely Waṭīh and al-Sulālim. These were very well fortified and well-defended. The Jews of Khaybar put up their best fighting men, as well as their best pieces of armour. The Prophet (peace be upon him) laid siege to these forts for more than wand mights. When conditions became untenable, and the Jews de and to the prophet (neace he spore him and the prophet (neace h and sked the Prophet (peace be upon him) to let them asked the propner (peace we upon min) to let them.

The Prophet allowed the property and property. and handle could nave men money and property. The rropnet as as as a series of the standard in roturn for note that his land in roturn for not his land in roturn for note that his land in roturn for not his land in roturn for note that his land in roturn for note that his land in roturn for note that his land in roturn for note or helpon num pagreeus, our later ne anowed their agricultural of the Jews of specially the dates. That was a good deal for the Jews of duc. of course they were already paying that to the Bedouins of The recommendation of the surrender, there were not many casualties, 1800ptn fighting took place, only isolated duels, arrow and stone Fange which claimed few lives. The few duels that took place were integration lewish knights, who came forward asking for them. Merinduded Maripaba, a Jew of Yemeni origin, from Banu Ḥimyar. By WB a poet as well as a brave and skilful warrior. He was killed by Maslamah, who had lost a brother the day before, as the Muslims were besieging the fortress. Yasir, brother of Marhaba, the came forward to avenge the killing of his brother, was killed by blibayr ibn al-'Awwam, son of Şafiyyah, the aunt of the Prophet

After these two duels, no Jews dared to come out, and the Jewish morale sank even lower, leading to their eventual surrender. The crample of Marhab and Yasir supports our view that the charactertaits of Jews of Arabia had undergone significant change. They were no longer city-traders and money-lenders. They had become war-like, and adopted the Arabs' martial customs and characteristics. Many of them were accomplished poets, and used to brag about their bravery and generosity, as did their Arab compatriots.

One of the most famous poets of pre-Islamic Arabia, was a Jew of Khaybar. His name was al-Samaw'al ibn 'Adiyā. He was a famous knight-cum-poet. He was very rich, too, and had a fortress of his own, called al-Ablaq. He is remembered for two things:

1. His famous pre-Islamic ode . This is a long and very beautiful poem full of wisdom. It starts with the famous verse:

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad 'If a man's honour is not stained by bad conduct then any costume he wears is beautiful?

The second thing was his fidelity. The famous Arab Poet Imra al-Qays, deposited his armour with him, when he journeyed to the north, to meet the Caesar. Some people came and demanded Imra' al-Qays's armour, whilst he was away, but Samaw'al refused and a fight ensued in which his son was killed.

We have mentioned the incidents of Marḥaba, and his brother Yasir and the knight-poet al-Samaw'al ibn 'Adiyā to show that the Jews of Khaybar were not lacking in courage or in will and power to fight, but they only lacked vision and leadership. The Jews of Arabia were a self-centred lot; all they cared about was their own privileged status, as the paramount power in Arabia (that was before the advent of Islam) and that they were the chosen sons and beloved friends of God. The Qur'an quotes them as saying:

Say the Jews and the Christians we are the sons of God, and His beloved ones; say: Why then does He chastise you for your sins? No; you are mortals, of His creation. He forgives whom He will, and chastises whom He will, for to God belongs the Kingdom of the heavens and of the earth, and all that is between them. To Him is the eventual return. [al-Mā'idah 5:18]

18. THE PROPHET'S MARRIAGE TO SAFIYYAH

Many of the Prophet's marriages had religious and political motives. Such was the case of his marriage to Safiyyah bint Ḥuyayy ibn al-Akhtab, the Jewish Chief of Banū al-Nadīr, now defending Khaybar. Her father was killed with Banū Qurayzah, as he played a major role in persuading them to violate their covenant with the Prophet (peace be upon him), and then stayed with them to the last eventuality, as he promised. Şafiyyah was married to a Jewish relative. She saw a strange dream: that the moon fell in her lap. When she told her husband, he hit her hard in the face, so that he blackened her eye, saying: You just of Hijaz, Muhammad. The blow left a permanent of the king of Huaz, Muniammau. The view letter permanent (peace) or her hice which she told him about the dream which had now

Rober Schryyah, the Prophet (peace be upon him) had also taken Book Sanyyan, une rispine cycles of the property of the proper Japan Jerus Consolation for Jean House of the act was meant as some consolation for Parmeure of the fact that the Jews RANSWING TAILURA PARTY AND THE PROPERTY AND THE PROPERTY AND THE PROPERTY AND THE PARTY AND THE PART happet (peace be upon him), by which they were allowed to stay on had lands and property in return for paying half the produce, meant the three expeditions against Qurayzah and Khaybar did not result in aubolute rift between Jews and Muslims. Jews remained and played routal role in the inception of the Islamic civilization afterwards. lik treatment the Prophet (peace be upon him) meted out to the bas of Khaybar and Fadak, which is considered by historians to have ken, in the circumstances of total war and confrontation, rather light, uggests that the number of the Jews of Qurayzah killed in Madīnah may have been exaggerated by later sources. Six hundred men is a rety large number to have been killed, and it stands out as very odd, in the struggle between the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the lews in Arabia

19. THE PRAYER OF THE PROPHET AS HE ENTERED KHAYBAR

When the Prophet was about to enter Khaybar, he stopped and said:5

'O God, Lord of heavens and what they over-shadow, Lord of the lands and what they are made to grow, Lord of the devils, and what into error they throw, Lord of the winds and what they winnow, we ask You for the good of this town, and the good of its people, and the good of what is in it, and we take refuge in You from its evil and the evil of its people, and the evil that is in it. Forward,

w. b. b. most impressive he most All the state of t War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad The Prophet (peace be upon him) used to regularly repeat these 22. THE RETURN OF JA'FAR AND OTHER MUSLIMS FROM ABYSSINIA (778 A.C.) words, whenever he entered a town for the first time. Offlek Musicipio Fred Process of the Sources, that Ja far, and and some women, came back from Abyssinia, the and other men anu some women's came of the prophet (peace be upon 20. THE SURRENDER OF FADAK When the Jewish People of the fertile oasis of Fadak heard about the was quite pleased to see Ja'far. He embraced him, and kissed relatively mild way in which the Prophet had treated the people of In lettiven his eyes, and said: I do not know whether I am more Khaybar, they asked him to give them similar terms, and he agreed. phenocen us eyes, and sure the surrender of Khaybar, or with the coming of Ja'far In this way, the Jews of Fadak proved wiser than those of Qurayzah, Khaybar or Banū al-Nadīr. Thus, no siege of Fadak was necessary and the fay' (Land-tax) of Fadak was allotted as private property to lifarwas the young cousin of the Prophet (peace be upon him), the household of the Prophet (peace be upon him), and his relatives the punger brother of 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib. He looked very much like exclusively. This arrangement was decreed by the Qur'an itself: tet Prophet (peace be upon him) himself. He came accompanied with And whatever spoils of war Allah has given unto His Messenger from is wife, Asmā' bint 'Umays, and his son 'Abdullāh who was born to them against which you pricked neither horse nor camel, but Allah gives authority to His Messengers, over whomsoever He will. Allah is Powerful over everything. [al-Hashr 59:6] la'far soon lead an expedition to Mu'tah, and fell a martyr in the 21. THE YOUNG MAIDEN OF GHIFAR Two years after the Hudaybiyah Pact, the Prophet (peace be Ibn Hisham tells of a group of Ghifari women (i.e. from the tribe of Banu Ghifar), who came to the Prophet (peace be upon him), as முளிர்ற்ற led the Muslims into Makkah, performing the 'Umrah (or he was about to depart to Khaybar. They asked to accompany him Isser pilgrimage). His dream was eventually realized, and he and the so as to attend the wounded, and help the Muslims in any way they could. The Prophet (peace be upon him) told them to do so, with Muslims entered Makkah, in peace and without fear, with their heads God's blessing. One of these women was quite young, and the Prophet shaven. In these two years, between Hudaybiyah and the performance (peace be upon him) took her on the back of his saddle. When they of the lesser Pilgrimage, Islam spread far and wide, across the Arabian stopped next morning to pray, there was menstrual blood in the saddle where the young girl had been sitting. She clinched to the camels back trying to hide it. The Prophet (peace be upon him) saw her and understood the cause of her embarrassment. He said, 'put some salt in the water and wash it, and continue your ride with me.' Such was the character of the Prophet (peace be upon him) easy, natural and quite accommodative to other people. No wonder, he was so dearly loved @ 214 D @ 215 D week and by any body who happened to meet him. His way Marion and proper was most impressive: he needed no War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad The Prophet (peace be upon him) used to regularly repeat these 12. THE RETURN OF JA'FAR AND words, whenever he entered a town for the first time. OTHER MUSLIMS FROM ABYSSINIA (778 A.C.) Scion parates, on the authority of the sources, enacyarian, area, and the prophet (peace be upon 20. THE SURRENDER OF FADAK When the Jewish People of the fertile oasis of Fadak heard about the in quite pleased to see Ja far. He embraced him, and kissed relatively mild way in which the Prophet had treated the people of Remognic pressure and said: 'I do not know whether I am more Khaybar, they asked him to give them similar terms, and he agreed Bedwin the surrender of Khaybar, or with the coming of Ja'far In this way, the Jews of Fadak proved wiser than those of Qurayzah, Khaybar or Banū al-Nadīr. Thus, no siege of Fadak was necessary and the fay' (Land-tax) of Fadak was allotted as private property to bfirwas the young cousin of the Prophet (peace be upon him), the household of the Prophet (peace be upon him), and his relatives Remanger brother of 'Ali ibn Abi Țālib. He looked very much like exclusively. This arrangement was decreed by the Qur'an itself: trhaphet (peace be upon him) himself. He came accompanied with And whatever spoils of war Allah has given unto His Messenger from them against which you pricked neither horse nor camel, but Allah hwik, Asmā' bint 'Umays, and his son 'Abdullāh who was born to gives authority to His Messengers, over whomsoever He will. Allah is Powerful over everything. [al-Hashr 59:6] kifar soon lead an expedition to Mu'tah, and fell a martyr in the 21. THE YOUNG MAIDEN OF GHIFAR Ibn Hisham tells of a group of Ghifari women (i.e. from the tribe Two years after the Hudaybiyah Pact, the Prophet (peace be of Banu Ghifar), who came to the Prophet (peace be upon him), as annim) led the Muslims into Makkah, performing the 'Umrah (or he was about to depart to Khaybar. They asked to accompany him lister pilgrimage). His dream was eventually realized, and he and the so as to attend the wounded, and help the Muslims in any way they could. The Prophet (peace be upon him) told them to do so, with Muslims entered Makkah, in peace and without fear, with their heads God's blessing. One of these women was quite young, and the Prophet haven. In these two years, between Hudaybiyah and the performance (peace be upon him) took her on the back of his saddle. When they of the lesser Pilgrimage, Islam spread far and wide, across the Arabian stopped next morning to pray, there was menstrual blood in the saddle where the young girl had been sitting. She clinched to the camels back trying to hide it. The Prophet (peace be upon him) saw her and understood the cause of her embarrassment. He said, 'put some salt in the water and wash it, and continue your ride with me.' Such was the character of the Prophet (peace be upon him) easy, natural and quite accommodative to other people. No wonder, he was so dearly loved @ 214 D @ 215 D

CHAPTER 8

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath

1. THE MOMENTUM FOR PEACE DUE TO HUDAYBIYAH

No doubt, the successful conclusion of the Hudaybiyah Pact, and the subsequent peace agreements with the Jews of Khaybar and Fadak, after their defeat by the Muslim forces, created tremendous drive and momentum for peace in Arabia. The Prophet (peace be upon him), whose desire for peace was paramount, drove that momentum to its fullest. He was very clear that, in order to achieve total conversion of Arabia to Islam, he needed a period of peace so that Islam would spread, as a creed and as a way of life. The atmosphere of war was not congenial to the successful dissemination of ideas or religious movements. Once he obtained that period of grace, the Prophet (peace be upon him) lost no time or opportunity to utilize it to the maximum. After the removal of the Jewish opposition, Islam was still left with two adversaries, the Quraysh and the desert Bedouins, especially those in the immediate or reachable vicinity of Madinah. It was quite true that the Quraysh represented the greatest enemy. But the desert Bedouins were not to be taken lightly. For one thing, they were unpredictable, and quite often they were driven to military exploits by sheer poverty. Since they were not far from Madinah, they represented a real hazard to the security of the city. Consequently, they had to be watched very closely, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) took good care of that by placing informants amongst them.

www.m.h. the Prophet (peace be upon him) put into effect Prophet (peace be upon nm) put into effect their weakening their with the objective of further weakening their with the objective livelihood. The Quraysh's livelihood. The Quraysh's and the Down Land of the Down Land darling at men economic nyemova. The Quraysn's lead of the prophet (peace be lead of the prophet animher of allianoposarish at part of the prophet of the pr and bythe was particularly targeteus, and the rrupinet (peace be the peace be the p all norther isolate the Quraysh politically, and reduce their of Arabia at large. by herics and designs served as a sort of psychological and Applic warfare, antecedent to the eventual conquest of Makkah he Prophet (peace be upon him).

2. THE BLOCKADE OF QURAYSH bresid before, the Prophet's thoughts were all directed towards hibbh, after the Khaybar's expedition, and the return of the kisim immigrants from Abyssinia, led by Ja'far ibn Abī Ṭālib. He in performed the 'Umrah (or lesser pilgrimage) as provided for alle Hudaybiyah Pact. He carried out the rituals of the 'Umrah, аштыты dating the Ka bah, seven times, and moving between Ṣafa' ad Marwah seven times also, then shaving (the hair off) his head. He stayed for three days and nights in Makkah, as provided in the Hudaybiyah Pact, and was then asked to leave the city by the Quraysh. Heasked them to extend his stay in Makkah, so that he could marry Maymunah bint al-Harith, sister of Umm al-Fadl, the wife of the hopher's uncle al-'Abbas, but they refused. The Prophet (peace be 490n him) then returned to Madinah in Dhū'l-Ḥijjah, 7th A.H. On  $\mathfrak{h}_{\text{e-way}}\,\text{back}$  to Madinah, God revealed the following verses of the Allah has indeed fulfilled the vision, He vouchsafed to His Messenger: truly you shall enter the Holy Mosque, if Allah wills, in security, your heads shaved, your hair cut short not fearing. He knew what you knew not, and granted besides this, a speedy victory..."

3. THE PROPHET SENT FIVE RAIDS AGAINST BEDOUINS Within a month or so of returning to Madinah, the Prophet (peace be upon him) initiated five raids against the Bedouins around Madinah. As we said, the Bedouins around Madinah, had to be kept under constant check and surveillance. They were usually, treacherous and opportunistic, and quick to seize any advantage present to them. Their desire for spoils of war, and for women were boundless, and they moved quickly in pursuit of them. The raids initiated by the Prophet (peace be upon him) were useful also in maintaining a high level degree of alertness and mobilization among the Muslims. The enemy, whether the Quraysh or the Jews, or the Bedouins, might strike at any time, so the Muslims needed to be vigilant and prepared at all times. The raids were also important in keeping up the pressure against Makkah. They helped enforce the psychological and economic blockade of the Quraysh, and gave notice to the Bedouins, who might be considering an alliance with the Quraysh, that the Muslims were now the dominant political and military power in Arabia.

3.1 The Five Raids directed against the Desert Bedouins were as follows:

- The Raid of Abū al-Awja on Banū Sulaym (fifty men) most of
- The Raid of Ghadīsh ibn 'Abdullāh on Banū Mulayḥ at al-
- The Raid of Ghālib ibn 'Abdullāh on Fadak in the north.
- The Raid of Shujāʻibn Wahb to BanūʿĀmir at al-Sī.
- And lastly, the raid of Ka'b ibn 'Umayr on Dhat Aslah, to the north of Wādī al-Qurā, the north of Khaybar.

4. THE EXPEDITION TO MU'TAH

A much bigger expedition, both in number and military and political significance, was sent to the north, in the southern part of Syria. The

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath per peace be upon him) sent an emissary by the name of Al-Joseph Police Benjamans Al Harith and Lill 1 may a roun; to the sovernor of buoica, a massarity Annt al-Ghassani. The incident weighed heavily on positive of the Prophet (peace be upon him), who called the James in hattle against the Ghassani Authority in southern Syria. A And the thousand responded to this call. For a reason unknown 18th appointed three men to hold the command in succession, The first or second was killed then the third would take command. https:// he Prophet (peace be upon him) anticipated an intense and monged campaign on this new front against the Romans and their densin Syria. Zayd ibn Ḥārithah, the one-time adopted son of the Implett, Ja far ibn Abi Ṭālib, the Prophet's cousin; and 'Ābdullāh ibn լումիսի, a well-known Ansārī, physically fit, dedicated to the cause alkam, and with a strong love and loyalty to the Messenger of Islam. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was also known to be very fond of him Zayd ibn Harithah was called Zayd ibn Muhammad, until the (uran advised against that Arab custom of calling adopted children his names of their adopters, and ordered them to be called by the numes of their biological fathers. As to Ja far, he was strikingly similar whe Prophet (peace be upon him), both in physical appearance and unduct. 'Abdullāh ibn Rawāḥah often used to recite Islamic poetry in the presence of the Prophet (peace be upon him), and with his consent and approval. Once 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭāb tried to prevent him doing that, but the Prophet (peace be upon him) intervened on

When the Muslim army, led by Zayd ibn Hārithah, reached the when the Mushing army, southern border to Syria, they got disturbing news about the huge armies, amassed by the Romans and their Arab Ghassanid clients; a hundred thousand led by Heraclius, the Roman Emperor himself, a hundred thousand led by rieracinus, the Montain Emperor miniscri, and another army of one hundred thousand soldiers, led by Mālik in Zāfilah, according to Ibn Hishām¹ but, according to Ibn Saʿd, led by Shuraḥbil ibn 'Amr.' The Muslim army camped in southern Syria, and held a Shūrā Council. At first, the prevalent opinion was to inform the Prophet (peace be upon him), and await his advice on what to do in the circumstances, and to request additional forces and equipment, if they were to go forward. But 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah persuaded the army to move forward, regardless of the huge imbalance between the Muslim and the Roman forces (3000 vs 200,000)! 'Abdullāh said, 'What you see in front of you, is what you have come forward to meet,

The Muslims were swayed by Ibn Rawāḥah's argument, and pushed forward with great enthusiasm and ferocity. When they met the Roman armies, they stationed themselves in a village called Mu'tah, and the bloodiest battle in the history of Islam so far was fought. The first commander, Zayd ibn Hārithah, knew that it was a pitch battle, and wrote himself as a martyr, and thus he fought in the most gallant, almost reckless way, not taking any measure to protect himself. He plunged deep into the lines of the enemy, hitting right and left. He even dismounted from his horse and engaged the enemy in hand-to-hand combat. He did not fall a martyr until his whole body was bleeding profusely. Ibn  $Hish\bar{a}m^3$  described the scene saying: 'Zayd fought carrying the banner of the Messenger of God high, until he plunged to death, due to the piercing of his body by the spears of the enemy.'

When Zayd fell, Ja 'far came forward, and took the banner from him; and he too fought with such courage and fearless determination, that he received more than seventy sword and spear cuts. When his right hand was cut, he took the banner in his left. When that hand too was cut, he took the banner between his two arms. Finally, he received a sword blow that cut him in two halves. Such was the bravery and the dedication of Ja 'far for his Lord and for his religion! (The Prophet (peace be upon him) later said that he was in Paradise, his two arms replaced by two wings, with which he could fly anywhere he liked, in those lavish gardens of Paradise. For this reason, Ja 'far became known as Ja 'far al-Ṭayyār; the flying Ja 'far.)

When Ja far fell, the third commander, 'Abdullāh ibn Rawāḥah, came forward and took the banner of the Prophet (peace be upon him), Appended a bit, before he thrust himself forward. It was during de bould a bit, before ne unus muse tu was during in which he archestation that ne compused in standard in the Compused in t Aber couplets have been rendered into English as follows. I SWAL MY SOUL, YOU shall come to the battle! Toron hall fight, or be forced to fight! Though men shout and scream aloud! Why should you spurn Paradise? You are nothing but a drop in a worn out skin! Long have you been at ease! 0 soul, if you are not killed you will die! This is the fate of death which you suffer You have been given what you hoped for If you do what those two did, you will have been guided a right! How well it is to enter Paradise They are very good, and of very cool springs to drink The Romans are worthy to suffer Infidels and of bad lineage4 If I meet them, I should kill them

The Prophet (peace be upon him) managed to oversee the reans of that battle of Mu'tah, by a special kind of revelation, and he described it to his Companions, long before the defeated army returned to Madinah. Had it not been for the mercy of God, the whole Muslim army might have been routed. Khālid ibn al-Walīd was dosen as a commander by an Anṣārī soldier, who took the banner, after the fall of 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah. Being very skilled in the at of warfare, Khalid managed to manoeuvre the enemy, attacking them fiercely while he regrouped the Muslim forces. Then when the enemy retreated, he did not pursue them any further, but seized the opportunity to withdraw the Muslims in a safe and orderly way,

Although both Ibn Hishām' and Ibn Sa'de described the outcome Although both ton rusnam and roll of the battle of Mu'tah as a terrible defeat for the Muslims, the number

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad of casualties does not seem to have been very big. In addition to the martyred three commanders, Ibn Hishām gives the number of those killed among the Muslims as eight. This seems to me to be far fewer than one would have expected in a major battle, described as the worst defeat the Muslims had yet incurred. (We recall that the number of those killed at Uḥud was approximately seventy.)

5. THE PROPHET GRIEVES AT

The Prophet (peace be upon him) grieved profoundly at the slaying THE DEFEAT OF THE MUSLIMS of the Muslims, and he grieved especially for Ja far and Zayd ibn Ḥārithah. It was the practice of the Prophet (peace be upon him) to come and meet the people, after each prayer. That day, when he received the sad news of the defeat of the Muslim army at Mu'tah, the Prophet (peace be upon him) disappeared into his house, without talking to anybody. He did the same in the noon, mid-afternoon, sunset and night prayers. The Muslims sensed that something very grave might have happened, and they grieved deeply and profoundly. However, when the Prophet (peace be upon him) prayed the dawn prayer of the next day, he looked in the direction of the Muslims and smiled. They rushed to him saying: 'When we saw you in grief, and that was showing in your face, we suffered tremendously, and only God knows the extent of our grief for you, may ourselves be your ransom, O Prophet of God!"7

The Prophet (peace be upon him) told them that he grieved, because of the slaying of his Companions at Mu'tah. Then he told them that, in his night dream, he had seen them sitting on beds made of pure gold, facing each other in Paradise, and some of them were a little bit behind, seemingly because they hesitated a little bit in front of the swords of the enemy.

'But Ja 'far I saw as an angel with two wings covered with blood, even the front parts of his wings were painted red with blood, the colour is the colour of blood, but the smell is the smell of Musk!'

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath Apophet's grief for Ja'far was particularly acute: Ja'far was The prophets green to January as the was a young, And blomed by the rroppinet (prease of appendix), as the was a youngs, he had been a supply the ring the way of God. For many years, he had been Johnson Boner In Time Way of State of S Jahr returned to safety in Madinah, he was ready to go forth on John Promines to the formidable Roman armies. The way he fought, in January and dedication, made his memory one Municipal Cherished of the men who gave their lives in the way of ad 10 uphold His religion. The young Ja far was so attached to the happel (peace be upon him), that his manners and conduct were of much like those of the Prophet, even his physical appearance and is gistures, by long association, started to resemble the Prophet's. him was greatly mourned by his wife, Asma' bint 'Umays, and the goerality of the Muslims. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) satfor Jafar's children and they came to him, he cuddled and smelled them, with tears on his noble face and beard.8

6. THE CONQUEST OF MAKKAH

Ne have seen that it was a long-term plan of the Prophet (peace be monhim) to take Makkah where the Holy Mosque, built by Abraham and his son Ishmael, is situated. After the Quraysh's failure at the Battle of al-Khandaq, the Prophet (peace be upon him) had taken all kinds of measures to weaken and blockade the Quraysh, politically, miliarily, economically and even by psychological warfare. All the raids he made, after Ḥudaybīyah were directed towards that end, and the Quraysh trade routes were effectively disrupted. The city and its regime were cut off from the outside world, with no prosperous trade, and no allies among the Arab tribes, excepting the nearby Banū Bakr, in the Batha' Desert, around Makkah. It will be recalled that one of the stipulations of the Hudaybiyah Pact was that any tribe was free the stipulations of the Hudaybuyan ract was that any time was free to choose to ally with the Muslims or with the Quraysh, without prejudice to the terms of the Pact. Banú Bakr became the allies of prejudice to the terms of the ract. Danu Daki Decame the Quraysh, and Khuza'ah (partially Muslim) became allies of the War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad Prophet (peace be upon him). The reason behind these polarizations was the age-old feud in the jāhiliyyah (Pre-Islamic Era) between these two tribes. The Hudaybiyah Pact itself thus contributed to increase the isolation of the Quraysh, as we have seen. The Muslim rebels, who ran away from the Quraysh, and whom the Prophet (peace be upon him) was initially prevented from admitting to Madinah, because of the terms of the Pact, became a real menace to their trade routes to Syria. Led by Abū Baṣīr, as mentioned earlier, they were very successful in disrupting and effectively preventing the Quraysh movements, commercial or otherwise. That blockade dealt severe blows to the prestige of the Quraysh throughout Arabia.

Moreover, the defeat of the Jews and their expulsion from Madīnah, together with the conquest of their strong Khaybar strongholds, deprived the Quraysh of their powerful Jewish allies. Also, Ghatafan, and their allies among the Bedouins, who had been sympathetic to the Quraysh, were effectively pacified, and no longer contemplated coming to the aid of the Quraysh.

7. THE IMMEDIATE CAUSE FOR THE CONQUEST OF MAKKAH

The immediate cause for the conquest of Makkah however, was the breaching of the Hudaybīyah Pact by the Quraysh, and their Bedouin allies, Banū Bakr. Banū Bakr, taking advantage of the unpreparedness of Banū Khuzā 'ah, their traditional enemies, because of the peace granted by the Pact, launched a surprise attack, causing heavy casualties among them. When Khuzā 'ah took refuge in the vicinity of the Sacred Mosque, Banū Bakr followed them therein, and continued to inflict heavy casualties on them. They were not inhibited or worried about violating the sanctity of the Sacred Mosque, saying, 'So what? Everybody steals and commits all kinds of crimes in the vicinity of the Sanctuary!' Khuza ah dispatched two delegations to the Prophet (peace be upon him) at Madīnah, one led by 'Amr ibn Salīm of Banū Ka'b and the other by Budayl ibn Warqā' al-Khuzā'ī. The Prophet or him) received them well, and assured them of his The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath

8 THEARRIVAL IN MADINAH OF ABŪ SUFYĀN A Phophet (peace be upon him) predicted that Abu Sufyan would As prophet (peace one upon many Predictor with him. The Prophet's Mag Burry to made made straight to the made was soon fulfilled. Abú Sufyan made straight to the pument of his daughter, Ramlah, the wife of the Prophet. When guided to sit on the Prophet's bed, she hurriedly rolled it away, so as New Vision that Abu Sufyan retorted: 'By God' he said, 'since you left Reputhave been stricken by evil.'9 Then Abū Sufyān met the Prophet peace be upon him), but the Prophet would not talk to him. 'If I had gmuch as an ant, I would fight you with it,' said the Prophet. 'Alī, ht Prophet's cousin, was gentler with Abū Sufyān, no doubt because keanticipated that Islam stood to gain something from the status of Abi Sufyan, as the paramount chief of the Quraysh.

What shall I do?' asked Abū Sufyān in his predicament. 'Nothing.' rolled 'Ali. 'I don't see anything that can help you with the Prophet (peace be upon him). But you are the chief of Banu Kinanah, so get up and say that you would grant protection between men, (and thus avert a bloodbath in Makkah should fighting erupt there)!'

Will that make any difference to my situation?' asked Abū Sufyān,

No it won't, but it is the only thing you can do,' replied 'Alī ibn Abi Ṭālib. Abū Sufyān acted upon the advice of 'Alī. He knew that he could no longer cling to his former status; times had changed, a new power and authority was soon to take over Arabia as a whole, new power and authority including Makkah. If he was ever to hold any place in the new authority, he should act immediately and adopt a more pragmatic attitude. He should fit himself to a new role, less than what he was used to, but some measure of authority is better than none at all. So he took himself to the Prophet's Mosque and said what he was advised by (and himself to the Propriet Stationage and protection to people.)

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad Obviously, the only meaningful protection he could realistically extend would be in Makkah. It is possible that the Prophet (peace be upon him) took that hint and envisaged a role for Abū Sufyān, when Makkah was eventually stormed by the Muslim army, led by

9. THE PROPHET MAKES PREPARATION TO ATTACK MAKKAH

The Prophet (peace be upon him) seized the opportunity of Quraysh's violation of the Ḥudaybīyah Pact. He had to move to a new and more advanced stage towards achieving the total supremacy of Islam in Arabia. Makkah, the stronghold of Arabian paganism must be overrun and cleansed of polytheism.

So the Prophet (peace be upon him) called the Muslims to mobilize and take up their arms. The streets of Madinah were accustomed with the familiar cry: 'O horses of God be ready for battle.' The Prophet (peace be upon him), as usual, did not immediately disclose his destination. But when he was about to set out, he indicated that he was moving against Makkah. He prayed: 'O God, take the eyes and ears of the Quraysh, so that we may take them by surprise!'10

10. THE EPISODE OF HĀTIB IBN ABĪ BALTA'AH

Ḥāṭib ibn Abī Balta'ah, a Companion of the Prophet of good standing, who had fought at Badr, feared for his son and family, who were still at Makkah. To win some favour with the Quraysh, so that his family would not be harmed, he wrote a letter to them informing them of the intention of the Prophet (peace be upon him) to invade Makkah. Gabriel informed the Prophet (peace be upon him) about the action of Hatib, and told him about the letter that he had sent with the freedwoman of Banū 'Abd al-Muttalib, who was on her way to Makkah, in such and such location. The Prophet (peace be upon him) sent 'Ali ibn Abī Ṭālib and al-Zubayr ibn al-'Awwām after the woman. She was ad mild a first denied having the letter. However, when told that The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath admiddle stripped naked if need be, she produced the letter which de mod be stripped naked if need ver sine produced une tetter willen to the Prophet (peace) whithing the hind. Why who summoned Hatib, and asked him why he had komo him), who summoned in a cut of face for the late was a sincere believer, and had der what he dad acted out of fear for the safety of his immediate of add as ne nau acrea out of the shead, but the Umar wir al-Niasian was a saying: 'How do you monthly peace be upon him) prevented him saying: 'How do you booked favourably upon those who fught at Badr, and said: 'Do as you please for I have forgiven you!' It is on this occasion that God revealed the verses of Surah Al-

Obdievers, take not my enemy and your enemy for friends, offering them love, though they have disbelieved in the truth that has come 10 you, expelling the Messenger and you because you believe in God your Lord, if you go forth to struggle in My way and seek My good pleasure, secretly loving them, yet I know very well what you conceal and what you declare; and whoever of you does that has gone astray,

If they come to you, they will be enemies to you, and stretch against you their hands and their tongues, to do you evil, and they wish that you may disbelieve. Neither your blood-kindred nor your children shall profit you upon the Day of Resurrection. He shall sort you out. And God sees the things you do.

You have had a good example in Abraham and those with him, when they said to their people "We are quit of you and what you worship, apart from God. We disbelieve in you, and between us and you enmity has shown itself, and hatred for ever, until you believe in Allah alone..." [al-Mumtahinah 60:1-4].

11. THE PROPHET'S MARCH TO MAKKAH

The Prophet (peace be upon him) set out towards Makkah on the The Prophet (peace be upon min) section towards available for the tenth of Ramadan, with ten thousand soldiers, and appointed Abū tenth of Ramadan, wun ten thousand southers, and appointed ributum Kulthūm ibn Ḥusayn al-Fihrī, as governor of Madīnah. He

( 226 D)

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad Obviously, the only meaningful protection he could realistically extend would be in Makkah. It is possible that the Prophet (peace be upon him) took that hint and envisaged a role for Abū Sufyān, when Makkah was eventually stormed by the Muslim army, led by

9. THE PROPHET MAKES PREPARATION TO ATTACK MAKKAH

The Prophet (peace be upon him) seized the opportunity of Quraysh's violation of the Hudaybīyah Pact. He had to move to a new and more advanced stage towards achieving the total supremacy of Islam in Arabia. Makkah, the stronghold of Arabian paganism must be overrun and cleansed of polytheism.

So the Prophet (peace be upon him) called the Muslims to mobilize and take up their arms. The streets of Madinah were accustomed with the familiar cry: 'O horses of God be ready for battle.' The Prophet (peace be upon him), as usual, did not immediately disclose his destination. But when he was about to set out, he indicated that he was moving against Makkah. He prayed: 'O God, take the eyes and ears of the Quraysh, so that we may take them by surprise!'10

10. THE EPISODE OF ḤĀṬIB IBN ABĪ BALTA'AH

Ḥāṭib ibn Abī Balta'ah, a Companion of the Prophet of good standing, who had fought at Badr, feared for his son and family, who were still at Makkah. To win some favour with the Quraysh, so that his family would not be harmed, he wrote a letter to them informing them of the intention of the Prophet (peace be upon him) to invade Makkah. Gabriel informed the Prophet (peace be upon him) about the action of Hatib, and told him about the letter that he had sent with the freedwoman of Banū 'Abd al-Muttalib, who was on her way to Makkah, in such and such location. The Prophet (peace be upon him) sent 'Ali ibn Abī Ṭālib and al-Zubayr ibn al-'Awwām after the woman. She was dud first denied having the letter. However, when told that of this denied naving the netter. However, when told that which And the stripped naked in the letter was taken to the Prophet (peace) Applieden in her natr. The letter was taken to the Prophet (peace) and asked him why he had asked him who summoned him who had asked him w with the did. Hatib swore that he was a sincere believer, and had Journal Be and acted out of fear for the safety of his immediate distribution al-Khattab wanted to chop off his head, but the mar now ar remained him saying: 'How do you hoper (peace be upon him) prevented him saying: Mill speak we upon those who looked favourably upon those who input at Badr,' and said: 'Do as you please for I have forgiven you!' his on this occasion that God revealed the verses of Sūrah Al-

Obdievers, take not my enemy and your enemy for friends, offering them love, though they have disbelieved in the truth that has come to you, expelling the Messenger and you because you believe in God your Lord, if you go forth to struggle in My way and seek My good pleasure, secretly loving them, yet I know very well what you conceal and what you declare; and whoever of you does that has gone astray, from the right way! If they come to you, they will be enemies to you, and stretch against you their hands and their tongues, to do you evil, and they wish that you may disbelieve. Neither your blood-kindred nor your children shall profit you upon the Day of Resurrection. He shall sort you out. And God sees the things you do.

You have had a good example in Abraham and those with him, when they said to their people "We are quit of you and what you worship, apart from God. We disbelieve in you, and between us and you enmity has shown itself, and hatred for ever, until you believe in Allah alone..." [al-Mumtahinah 60:1-4].

11. THE PROPHET'S MARCH TO MAKKAH

The Prophet (peace be upon him) set out towards Makkah on the The Prophet (peace be upon in the prophet (peace be upon in the prophet (peace be upon in the peace be upon in the tenth of Ramadan, with ten thousand sources, and appointed Abdum Kulthūm ibn Husayn al-Fihrī, as governor of Madīnah. He

@ 226 D

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad started out fasting, but when he reached al-Kudayd, between Ustan and Amlaj, he broke his fast because of the journey. One unit in the army, led by the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself, was comprised exclusively of the Muhājirīn and the Anṣār only, and called the Green Battalion, because the soldiers were fully dressed in armour and their colours were visible. The tribes of Sulayman and Muznah each contributed a thousand soldiers, and the rest of the tribes each contributed a thousand soldiers, and the rest of the tribes contributed fewer numbers. The Muslim army encamped at a place called Marr al-Zahrān. The Quraysh were still completely in the dark, concerning the march of the Muslim army. But apparently al- 'Abbās, uncle of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his principal informant among the Quraysh, had been informed about the march of the Prophet (peace be upon him) towards Makkah. Consequently, he met the Prophet (peace be upon him) at a place called al-Juhfah with his family, as a Muhājir. Until then, al- 'Abbās had resided in Makkah, in charge of the traditional privilege of the Hāshimī clan to provide the pilgrims with water. The Prophet (peace be upon him) was content with al-'Abbās' staying in Makkah to discharge that vital service of providing water to the pilgrims on behalf of the Hāshimites. Abū Sufyān ibn Ḥarb, and some notable Hāshimites met the Prophet, and became Muslims

Two notable Hashimites, and relatives of the Prophet (peace be upon him), heard of his march to Makkah, no doubt from al-'Abbas, and came out to meet him, and declare their acceptance of Islam. They were Abū Sufyān ibn al-Hārith ibn 'Abd al-Muttalib and 'Abdullah ibn Umayyah ibn al-Mughirah. At first, the Prophet (peace be upon him) refused to see them, because they were offensive to him, and to the Muslims at large. But his wife, Umm Salamah, intervened on their behalf, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) forgave them, and accepted them as Muslims. As to Abū Sufyān ibn Ḥarb, he came out of Makkah, seeking information about the Muslims and their whereabouts. By chance, he met with al-'Abbās ibn 'Abd al-Muṭṭalib, the uncle of the Prophet, who had come out on the white mule of the Prophet (peace be upon him), hoping to advise the Quraysh to

Muslim army forced that if the Muslim army forced would he would h The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath John Makkah, the Quraysh would be utterly destroyed. He Makkan, the Quraysh would be diverty destroyed. The stroyed when and o aler and warm the Quiraysh against that eventuality. Wheen

What is the matter with you, O Abū'l-Faḍl, may my father and

Will to Quraysh And woe to you, Abu Sufyan. The Prophet is nutir be your ransom? asked Abū Sufyān!

What am I to do, O al-'Abbās?' asked Abū Sufyān, quite upset. brewith his army, answered al- 'Abbas. Ride behind me on the mule, so that we may go to the Prophet adask his protection for you, or your head will be cut-off,' said al-

Thus, they rode on, and at every check, the people made way, sying. This is the uncle of the Prophet, al- 'Abbas, riding his white mule But 'Umar recognized Abū Sufyān: 'This is the enemy of God. This is Abū Sufyān. Thanks to God, He has delivered him to us, without agreement or any pledge on our part for him.'11 Then 'Umar hastened to the Prophet (peace be upon him), to ask his permission to chop off Abū Sufyān's head. Al-'Abbās recalled: 'I drove the mule hard so as to reach the Prophet (peace be upon him) before 'Umar, so that I might reach the Prophet first and ask his protection for Abū Sufyān.

Al-'Abbas did manage to reach the Prophet (peace be upon him) first: Abū Sufyān declared his conversion to Islam and 'Umar's embassy was thwarted. The Prophet told al-'Abbās to take Abū Sufyān to a place, where he could see the strength of the Muslim army. The Prophet (peace be upon him) obviously wanted to bring home to Prophet (peace ve upon Mari), Abū Sufyān, that it was futile for the Quraysh to resist, and to use Abū Abu Sufyan, marit was stated and suffyan's influence to convince the Quraysh to surrender peacefully, and in that way save the tribe, and the Holy City, from being stormed and in that way save the throughout the prophet (peace be upon him) and destroyed. As we saw veloce, the Florence Destroyed and the Holy City.

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad Al- 'Abbas took Abū Sufyān to the nose of the valley, its narrowest and highest point, where the mountain projected inwards. Abū Sufyan then saw the Muslim squadrons pass by, with distinct standards, representing the different tribes allied with the Prophet (peace be upon him) at that time, such as Sulaym, Muzanah, and others. Abū Sufyān was impressed, but when the Green Squadron commanded by the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself passed by, he was quite awe-struck.

On being told, he commented: 'Who can withstand them?' Then, turning to al-'Abbās, Abū Sufyān said: 'By God, O Abū'l-Faḍl, the authority of your brother's son has become very great' Al- 'Abbas then told him it was Prophethood and not mere secular authority that was behind the rise in his nephew's authority, and Abū Sufyān said he had no case against that. By then, al-'Abbas told him to hurry to his people, and advise them to surrender peacefully to the Prophet (peace be upon him) because fighting was of no avail and would lead to the destruction of the Quraysh and the City. Acting upon al-'Abbās' advice, Abū Sufyān entered Makkah and shouted at the top of his voice: 'O Quraysh! Muhammad has come to you, with an army that you cannot withstand. Whoever enters the house of Abū Sufyān is safe!' His wife, Hind bint 'Utbah, having seized his moustaches in her hands, said: 'Kill this fat greasy bladder of lure. What a rotten protector of a people!'12

But Abū Sufyān went on unabated: 'Do not let this crazy woman deceive you. For Muhammad has come with an army that you cannot withstand! Whoever enters my house is safe.' But the people were confused. They said: 'May God slay you, what good is your house (for our masses)?'

Abū Sufyān then made an important amendment to his original announcement: 'He who enters the house of Abū Sufyān is safe! He who enters his own house, and shuts his door is safe! And he who enters the Holy Mosque is safe!'

This time, the crowds obeyed him, and they dispersed quickly and quietly into their homes.

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath 12 IMITED RESISTANCE DI QUINTI SI

12 IMITED RESISTANCE DI QUINTI SI

13 IMITED RESISTANCE DI QUINTI SI

14 IMITED RESISTANCE DI QUINTI SI

15 IMITED RESISTANCE DI QUINTI SI

16 IMITED RESISTANCE DI QUINTI SI

16 IMITED RESISTANCE DI QUINTI SI

17 IMITED RESISTANCE DI QUINTI SI

18 IMITED RESISTANCE DI CONTI SI

18 IMITED RESISTANCE DI CONTI SI

18 IMITED RESISTANCE DI CONTI SI

18 IMITED RESISTANC Makkah from its upper end, Judy peak ne upon many create a reason at the many create a reason and a reason at the many create a reason at the Jubbut third of nis given squauron. Amana to it all yvanta entered Jahran Galym, Ghifar, Muzaynah and Juhaynah. Al-Zubayr ibn al-Jumpungun Grundan at the left flank, and Sa'd ibn 'Ubādah Januaru Makkah, paving the Januaru Makkah, paving the

In the entrance of the Prophet (peace be upon him). The only resistance offered was at the lower end, where Khālid us oming at al-Khandamah. It was led by 'Ikrimah ibn Abī Jahl, hán Umayyah and Suhayl ibn 'Amr. During that brief and meted fighting, three Muslims fell martyrs, but thirteen were killed in the side of the Quraysh. That is according to Ibn Hishām; burret, according to Ibn Sa'd, twenty four men were killed from the Quraysh and four from Hudhayl.

B. SA'D IBN UBĀDAH DISMISSED FOR WORDS UTTERED 13

ท์ชี่เป็ก 'Ubādah (Chief of al-Khazraj of the Anṣār) was overheard by Umaribn al-Khaṭṭab, saying: 'Today is a day of war. Today sanctuary Bno more! 'Umar reported what Sa'd had said. The Prophet (peace k-upon him) immediately summoned 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib and said to him: 'Go to Sa'd ibn 'Ubādah and take the command from him. But according to Ibn Sa'd, the Prophet (peace be upon him) dismissed Sa'd ibn 'Ubādah and replaced him with his son, Qays.

14. THE PROPHET ENTERS MAKKAH IN HUMILITY

14. THE PROPHET ENVIOLENCE VALUE OF THE Prophet (peace be upon him) entered Makkah with humility, his The Prophet (peace be upon min) chiefted in account in thanks-giving to God, his chest almost touching the saddle of his camel. When he learnt about the fighting in lower the saddle of his camel, when he rearm about the highling in lower Makkah, he protested, 'Did I not tell you no fighting today?' he said

(@ 230 D)

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad The Muslims explained that it was Khālid, who had been attacked, and he had to fight back. The Prophet (peace be upon him) then said: this was God's determination, and it was all right. The Prophet (peace be upon him) then dismounted, and a hut of clay was made for him. When asked why he would not take up residence in his home, he answered: "Uqayl did not leave me any home in Makkah," perhaps

The Prophet stayed in his hut for a few hours of noon time, then entered the Holy Mosque, and encircled the Ka bah on his she-camel, al-Qaṣwā'. As he did so, he destroyed the idols, placed around the Ancient House. Ibn Sa'd says, there were three hundred and sixty idols. The Prophet (peace be upon him) destroyed them saying: 'Truth has come, and falsehood has vanished, Surely falsehood is perishable.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) then prayed two rak'ahs at the corner of Abraham and sent for 'Uthman ibn Talhah, the keeper of the Ka'bah, who kept the keys of the Ancient House. When the keys came, the Prophet (peace be upon him) entered the Ka'bah and prayed two rak ahs inside it. Then he came out. People by then had crowded around the Ka bah in very big numbers.

15. THE PROPHET'S FAMOUS SERMON AT THE DOOR OF THE KA'BAH

Standing there, at the door of the Ka'bah, the people of Makkah converged to him, anxious to know their fate, and the Prophet's decision. It was a moment of truth, and they knew very well in their hearts, what they had made the Prophet (peace be upon him) go through, in the twenty years or so that had elapsed since he announced his Prophethood to them. They could only expect the worst.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) started his sermon by praising God, as was his custom. Then he said:

I bear witness that there is no God but God, Alone, He has no partner. He has fulfilled His promise, and made His servant victorious, and defeated the Confederates alone! All claims of

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath and the custody of the House and the custody of the custody product of blood or property are automsteed by me (III, are under of the watering of a part of the custody of the House, and the watering of a part of the custody of the House, and the watering of a part of the custody of the House, and the watering of the custody of the House, and the watering of the custody of the cus A pole except the customy of the mouse, and the watering of the customy of the mouse, and the watering of the plants of the customy of the mouse, and the watering of the customy of the mouse, and the watering of the customy of the mouse, and the watering of the customy of the Oppolis, We have created you from male and female, and made Browning and its veneration of ancestors: Openation races and tribes, that you may know one another, of put the most noble of you in sight of Allah are the most Godfearing. [al-Hujurat 49:13] What do you think I am going to do to you?' he asked. They aplate: Good you are but a noble brother, and son of a noble He said: 'Go your way in peace and freedom, for you are the freed ones!'14

There was much commotion and rejoicing as the silent, apprehensive crowds suddenly came alive to the prospect of a new freedom, a new beginning and a new all-embracing political and radigious order. The Prophet (peace be upon him) then moved from he Ancient House to Mount al-Şafa, the very place where he first proclaimed his call to Islam, over twenty years before. 'Umar ibn al- $\overline{M}_{a}$  it is stood under him for security as well as protocol purposes. The huge crowd of "the freed ones" struggled to reach the Prophet Peace be upon him), touch his hand, pay homage to him and greet him. They wanted to get a glimpse of his beautiful face, which on that great occasion was radiant as if a column of light was focused on it. Above all the Prophet (peace be upon him) loved Makkah as a Holy City and as home of his childhood days. The Prophet (peace be upon him) also loved the Quraysh, Arabs of Makkah, as his own People, whom he never hated, even when they rejected and persecuted People, whom he never nateu, even when they have been in his heart, he knew that they would be the ones most qualified to carry the call of Islam and brotherhood to the whole of qualified to carry the carror man and obtained by the truth of Islam. humanity, only if they would become convinced by the Guraysh were heirs to the great Abrahamic legacy, which the Jews, The Quraysh were heirs to the great Advanantic regacys which the other Abrahamic tribe or race, had forsaken and abandoned. Most

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad of all, the Quraysh Arabs possessed the great virtues of generosity, sincerity and bravery. Niggardliness, cowardice and hypocrisy were qualities unknown in Makkah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) had hoped, prayed and waited for the Quraysh to come round to Islam. It was for this reason that he never cursed or damned them. Even when the ignorant crowd in Ta'if had pelted him with stones and caused his gracious face to bleed, he had refused to damn or curse them, knowing that if a Prophet cursed his people, then terrible chastisement must befall them. Gabriel came to him at Ṭā'if and offered: 'Shall I make the two mountains collapse and press down upon them?'

'No! No! No! Do not do that. Rather, I hope that God will bring forth Muslims from their offspring,' protested the Prophet (peace be upon him) in eagerness, and apprehension.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) again displayed that same compassion that he had felt for the Quraysh on the eve of the conclusion of the Ḥudaybīyah Pact. He had felt dismay and grief at the prospect of the destruction of the Quraysh, by their insistence on war, and hostilities, with him: 'Woe to Quraysh, they have been devoured by successive wars with Muslims! Why don't they leave me to deal with the desert Bedouins? If I perish, that is what they want, but should I succeed, they would enter Islam with dignity and honour. Otherwise, they would fight when they have sufficient power.'

But nowhere did the Prophet (peace be upon him) show greater compassion and magnanimity than at the time when he conquered Makkah:

First of all, he sternly instructed his commanders not to resort to any fighting on that day, and showed displeasure when he knew of the battle fought by Khālid, at the lower end of the City, at al-Khandamah, and demanded an explanation for the incident. He was only satisfied, when he learned that Khālid had only fought back against his attackers in self-defence.

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath What when it was remarked to him a when it was remarked to him with he moved quickly to uchose out that he was specific with that he was large with him that he was l defor a Khaira), when it was reported to thin that he was the day is the day is the Makkans. Sa'd had said: "Today is the day is the The modestly he displayed as he entered Makkah was sufficient Bendestyne usprayed as the was in no mood for undicate to everybody around, that he was in no mood for last, but not least, the great amnesty and forgiveness he gave ht Makkans, his former enemies and persecutors, was perhaps unparalleled in history.

The Prophet's understanding that the Quraysh Arabs would in a crucial role in carrying the banner of Islam to mankind, was anistely borne out by subsequent developments. 'Umar ibn al-Butth described the Arabs in general as 'the material force of Islam.' The Quraysh were the elite of the Arabs who epitomized their best qualities of intellect as well as character.

The view that the Arabs were destined to play a major role in the mead of this universal religion is emphasized in the Qur'an itself. Ime and again, God reminds the Arab Muslims of His great favours and blessings upon them: Says God in the Qur'an:

Surely, there has come to you (O Arabs) a Messenger from amongst yourselves (your race). Grieving to him is your suffering, anxious is he over you, gentle to the believers, compassionate. [al-Tawbah 9:128]

As stated by this verse of Sūrah al-Tawbah (Repentance), the Prophet (peace be upon him) was very anxious and concerned that the Quraysh, in particular, and the Arabs in general, should enter the Quraysn, in particular, and in this way be saved. Thus he called them to Islam in the most vigorous way, argued with them, fought and struggled with them, but, most of all, he hoped, prayed, and waited struggled with them, but, most or an, he hopeu, prayeu, and wanted for them to come round and uphold the banner of Islam because he knew very well that they were uniquely qualified to do so.

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad In another verse, the Qur'an also reminds the Arab Muslims of God's greatest favour upon them:

Truly Allah was most gracious to the believers when He raised up among them a Messenger from themselves: to recite to them His signs (his verses), and to purify them, and to teach them the Book and the Wisdom, though before they were in manifest error.

The Qur'an tells us also that this was no mere accident of history, but part of God's grand design for mankind. The commissioning of Muḥammad, descendent of Ishmael, son of Abraham, as the last Messenger to mankind, and the Seal of the Prophets, was in answer to Abraham's most sincere and passionate prayer in Makkah, when he and his son Ishmael finished the building of the Ka'bah:

And when Abraham and Ishmael with him, raised the foundation of the House. Our Lord, receive this from us, you are the All-Hearing. All-Knowing. And, our Lord, make us submissive (Muslims) to you and of our seed a nation submissive to you, and show us our holy places, and turn toward us (relent to us) you are the All-Relenting. All-Merciful, and, our Lord, you send among them a Messenger, one of them, who shall recite to them your verses, and teach them the Book and the Widsom, and purify them. You are the All-Mighty, the All-Wise. [al-Baqarah 2:127-129].

Although Islam is a universal religion for all mankind, it is, at the same time, the spiritual heritage of the progeny of Ishmael, son of Abraham, of the Arab nation as a whole, and it is their primary and foremost responsibility, duty and privilege to uphold and convey it to humanity at large.

16. A GREAT DAY AND A GREAT MOMENT

As the Prophet (peace be upon him) stood there on Mount as-Safa, his face gleaming with joy and delight, and a great sense of fulfilment, the crowd grew bigger and bigger. The Quraysh were almost certainly

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath Thom him had accorded to them An John Mark of that oreat day. nart of the ork upon nim) may according to the moment, and part of the moment, and part and the part of unar process and new political order. In a sense, the new Age and a series of the series As Abū Sufyān did not a Qurayshite par excellence? As Abū Sufyān did not Misimpossible to reverse his loyalties, who had been the figure-In the pre-Islamic Arabian aristocracy, the ordinary men of the to do so.

Touthe Prophet (peace be upon him), who was a direct descendant Hibmael, son of Abraham, it was indeed the moment of homearing, of reunion and a great moment of restoration. The great prival legacy of Ishmael and the Ancient House of God, rebuilt and med by his ancestors, Ishmael and Abraham, had now returned to the astedy of the sons of Ishmael and Abraham, as cleaned and rescued him the custody of paganism. To reinforce this sense of legitimacy, nutice, charity and fidelity, the Prophet called upon 'Uthman ibn [alpah, and gave him the keys of the Ka'bah. 'Here! Take these keys, tiday is a day of charity and fidelity.' Before that, 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib ame along, and asked the Prophet (peace be upon him) to give the Rishimite the privilege of the custody of the Ka'bah, in addition to their original privilege of giving water to the pilgrims. But the Prophet peace be upon him) refused and returned the keys to 'Uthman ibn Talhah, of the Banū Shaybah, the original custodians of the Kaʿbah, sying: 1 give you O Hāshimites what will be to you a burden, and an

17. THE PROPHET'S SHORT SERMON

When he addressed the masses of Quraysh, for the first time after When he addressed the masses of Qurayon, not the content Makkah victoriously, the Prophet (peace be upon him) Bave a short but momentous speech. The basic ideas in that speech were meant to herald a new phase in the history of Arabia, a phase that would constitute a total break with the norms of the pre-Islamic jāhiliyyah (or age of ignorance). The sermon can be broken down into

- All the rites of privileges, blood or property were all discredited and abolished, excepting the custody of the Holy Mosque, and providing water to the pilgrims. This meant a total break with the socio-religious order of Pre-Islamic Arabia, with the privileges of the aristocracy of the Quraysh, and that of the religious order of the oracles of Hubal, and the other allies of Makkah and Tä'if. It also meant a ban on the blood feuds that were responsible for so much fighting and suffering in pre-Islamic Arabia, together with usury, fornication and the burial of young girls alive, and last but not least, the worship of idols as well as excessive veneration of
- The first notion was meant to prevent new outbreaks of war and fighting, the second was meant to curb foul play with arms, leading to accidental and unnecessary loss of life. That is the reason for the heavy penalty of a hundred camels as blood ransom. The Bedouins had to be educated about the value of human life; as it was the gift of God, none should take it but God Himself. Thus if a life was taken by error, a ransom, and a heavy one, must be paid. A hundred camels was a lot of wealth, with fifty of them being pregnant, and served as a good and effective deterrent against such conduct, as led to wanton loss of life.
- The third notion was that the Holy Mosque should continue to have its sanctity as the House of God, rebuilt and raised by Abraham and son Ishmael. The Holy Mosque was the spiritual heritage of all Muslims, especially of the sons of Ishmael. So the privileges of the custody of the house, and the watering of the pilgrims were not abolished. They continued to be the privilege of the Muslims in general, Banū Shaybah and Banū Hāshim in particular.

and prejudice were abolished, in particular and prejudice were abolished, in particular around the perhasion of the perhasion proference and prejudice were auditshed, in particular of racially of racially and prejudice was rejected. In constant of the particular o Manufaction to other non-Arabs was rejected. In fact, all racial sector to other non-Araus was rejected. In ract, an ractal and sector to other non-Araus was rejected. Was declared null and sector to other non-Araus was rejected. The ract, and ractal and sector to other non-Araus was rejected. deprimentation and continuous conservations of Surah al-Hujurat (the and The propose recovery which rejects outright any kind appropriate famous verse are equal of descrimination or inequalities among men. All men are equal and sight of God. They are all the off-spring of Adam, and Ministrang or was created from dust and clay. God says in this

O mankind, we have created you of male and female, and made you into races and tribes, that you may know each oher. Surely the noblest among you in the sight of Allah, is the most God-fearing of you. Allah is All-knowing All-Aware... [al-Hujurāt 49:13]

18. NAMES OF THOSE DECLARED DEAD, (EVEN IF THEY CLUNG TO THE CURTAINS OF KA'BAH)

In exception to the general amnesty and pardon declared by the Prophet (peace be upon him) to the people of Makkah, there were a Ewpersons who were to be killed, because of the exceptionally terrible trimes they had committed against the Prophet (peace be upon him), blam and the Muslims. Some managed to meet the Prophet (peace be upon him), before they were killed, and, as was his habit, the Prophet (peace be upon him) pardoned them. But those who did not make it, were seized and killed. Those excluded from the general amnesty

a. 'Abdullāh ibn Sa'd, foster-brother of 'Uthmān ibn 'Affān, had been a Muslim and one of the Prophet's amanuenses. But he ran off to Makkah and became an apostate. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) entered Makkah, he was excepted from the general amnesty, and was to be killed. However, he managed to escape to his foster-brother 'Uthman, and he took him to the Prophet (peace be upon him), who forgave him, after some

- 'Abdullāh ibn Khatal, who was employed by the Prophet (peace be upon him) to collect Zakāt. He had an assistant whom he killed; he himself apostatized and ran away to Makkah with the Zakāt money he had collected. He had two slave girls who used to sing abusive songs about the Prophet (peace be upon him). The Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered him to be killed, together with the two slave girls. 'Abdullāh ibn Khatal was killed, and one of the slave-girls. The other slave-girl made her way to the Prophet (peace be upon him), asked to be forgiven and he forgave her.
- Al-Huwayrith ibn Nuqaydh, a man who used to follow the Prophet in Makkah and harm him whenever possible. He also followed the daughters of the Prophet, Fāṭimah and Umm Kulthūm, and caused them to fall to the ground by agitating the camels on which they mounted. He was later killed by 'Alī ibn Abi Ṭālib.
- Miqyās ibn Şubābah who, having killed an Anṣārī Muslim who killed his brother by mistake, had fled to Makkah. He was seized, and killed.
- 'Ikrimah ibn Abī Jahl was also one those excepted from the amnesty. He fled to Yemen. However, his wife, who was a Muslim, came to the Prophet (peace be upon him), secured amnesty for him, then went to Yemen and brought him back. 'Ikrimah converted to Islam, became a sincere Muslim and fought well in the defence of Islam.
- Sārah, the slave-girl of 'Abd al-Muttalib, used to compose abusive poetry about the Prophet (peace be upon him). She was supposed to be killed, but managed to meet the Prophet (peace be upon him), and ask his forgiveness, and he forgave her. All in all, the number of persons executed was very small indeed: three men and one woman, a facet which speaks a great deal about the

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath abrille of the Prophet (peace be upon him), and the human Memory of the religion of Islam.

19. THE PROPHET DECLARED MAKKAH his stay in Makkah, the Prophet declared it a Jang Sanctuary. Banū Khuzā ah killed some individuals of their Intermenties, But the Prophet (peace be upon him) forbade any Industrialing, and gave an address declaring the Sanctity of the city.

Omen, God made Makkah an Inviolable Sanctuary, the day he crated heavens and earth. So the City is inviolable until the Day of Resurrection. It is not lawful for anyone, who believes in God and the Hereafter, to shed blood in it or to cut a tree. It has not been lanful for anyone before to violate its sanctity and it is unlawful for anybody after me to do so. It has been made violable to me this day as an exception, because God is angry with its inhabitants. But now it has returned to its sanctity again. If anybody would say otherwise and point to my killing some persons in it these days, tell him that God had made it violable for the Prophet, only as an exception.

20. THE PROPHET REASSURES THE ANSĀR

The Prophet (peace be upon him) stayed in Makkah, after its conquest, for eighteen days and nights, praying as a traveller would pray, two Tak ahs instead of four. He was evidently enjoying his stay in Makkah. He used to frequent the Holy Mosque to pray and to make Ṭawāf. Then he would go to Mount Al-Şafa, and meet the delegations. One day he was sitting there, and 'Abdullah ibn Umm Maktum walked between

Al-Şafa and al-Marwah, reciting poetry on the love of Makkah. The Ansar became uneasy. They feared that Muhammad might The Ansar became uneasy. They redict that pulliannian might now prefer to stay in Makkah. One day, he was deeply engulfed in now prefer to stay in Markan. One day, ne was deeply enguired in his supplications at Mount Al-Şafā, a group of the Anṣār crowded around him, by now very anxious for the Prophet (peace be upon him) whom they loved more than they loved their own kith and kin. They said to each other, 'now that the Prophet has settled nicely at Makkah, and found his beloved ones, do you think he would go to Madinah again?' When the Prophet (peace be upon him) finished his prayer he addressed them. 'What is it that you were saying?' asked

@ 240 D

'Nothing, O Messenger of God, nothing,' answered the Anşar. But the Prophet (peace be upon him) insisted on hearing what they were whispering about, and so they told him. Then he said: 'God forbids, God forbids! The living, is your living and the dying is your dying' meaning that he would live and die with them in Madinah! Then he prayed passionately that God will shower this Mercy on the Ansars and their future generations.17

21. THE ERROR OF KHĀLID IBN AL WALĪD

Khālid ibn al-Walīd was sent to Banū Judhaymah ibn 'Amr ibn 'Abd Manāt ibn Kinānah as a dā 'iyah, that is, to teach, not to fight, together with a number of the Muhājirīn and Anṣār. When he reached them, he called out. 'Put down your weapons, if you people have embraced Islam.

The men put down their arms, but then Khālid seized and killed them by surprise. When 'Abudllah ibn 'Umar ibn al-Khattab and Sālim, the freed man of Abū Hudhayfah, attempted to stop him, he yelled at them. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) heard of the incident, he was very upset indeed. He faced the Holy Mosque, and raised his two hands towards heaven and prayed.

'O God, I am innocent before you of what Khālid had done.' He said that phrase and repeated it three times. Then he dispatched 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib, with a lot of money, to pay blood money for the deceased men, considered killed by mistake. 'Alī apologized on behalf of the Prophet (peace be upon him) for the terrible error committed by Khālid.

The Conquest of Makkah and its Aftermath 22. THE SECURE STATUS OF THE in this returned, fire nad an argument with Average and Average an Who possible against the killing, and also for his admining Rhamman ibn 'Awf. 'Leave my Companions alone, and any ou spend all spend and you spend all Add by cour, it you would not reach a reward of a morning Tooling unavail of the first Muslims is quite secure ground travail of one of them... DECOMPOSATION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE SUMMAR AND THE SITAH. These were the pioneering Muslims, who accepted Islam when ha acceptance put their whole life in peril and jeopardy. 'Umar in al-Khattiab, when he organized his government, composed a amprehensive register of all Muslims in the state, according to the

- 2 precedence in entering Islam.
- making the two Hijras to Abyssinia and to Madinah.
- participating in the expeditions (battles).

Even stipends were determined according to the above criteria. The Prophet (peace be upon him) declared that there would be no Hijrah after the conquest of Makkah, but sincerity in religion and

He stayed in Makkah for about eighteen days and nights, receiving men and women who came to pay homage to him. On the day he was receiving women, Hind bint 'Utbah, wife of Abū Sufyān, the one who had chewed the liver of Hamzah, came in disguise, fearing for her life. The Prophet (peace be upon him) took the woman's pledge to witness that there is no god but God, that Muhammad is His Messenger, that they would obey Him for better or worse, and that they would not

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad in surprise.

'O Messenger of God, does a free woman fornicate?' asked Hind The Prophet recognized her voice: 'Is that you Hind bint 'Utbah?'

Yes, Messenger of God, I bear witness that there is no God, but God, and that you are His Messenger.'

The Prophet (peace be upon him) laughed, and forgave her the heinous crimes she had committed against him, Hamzah and the Muslims. Hind then migrated to Madinah, while her husband Abū Sufyān and her son Mu awiyah joined the jihād expeditions.

CHAPTER 9

After the Conquest of Makkah, Ḥunayn and Tabūk

Be thief tribes residing in the territories to the east of Makkah were Hawin, and Thaqif of Ta'if. When they heard about the conquest of Makkah, they called for a gathering to consider their position vis-à-vis the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims. That gathering was attended by the chiefs and leaders of Hawazin, Thaqif and some lesser tribes like Nasr, Jusham, Sa'd ibn Bakr and some clans of Banū Hilāl. The powerful clans of Ka'b and Kilāb of Banū Hudhayl stayed away  $_{\text{from the gathering, which was largely organized by Mālik ibn }\,^c\text{Awf, the}$ unwise or inexperienced chief of Hawazin at large. Thaqīf attended, but they had no paramount chief, and were represented by their elders and apparently accepted the overall presidency of Mālik ibn 'Awf, the dief of Hawazin. The meeting was also attended by the famous knight and poet Durayd ibn al-Şimmah, of Banū Jusham.

The strategy of Mālik bin 'Awf was to confront the Prophet (peace The strategy or Mark will Away between Makkah and Ṭā'if. He encamped at a valley called Awtas, having ordered every soldier to bring with him his valley called Awtass, naving ordered family and wealth, mainly camels and sheep. The old and experienced family and wealth, mainly camers and sneep. The old and experienced Durayd ibn Abi al-Şimmah did not like Mālik's strategy for the battle. Durayd ibn Abi al-Şimman did nor inc mann social by the lasked: 'O Malik, you are the chief and leader of your people, He asked: O Malik, you are the enter and reader of your People, and this is a very important day, which will have grave consequences. and this is a very important way, will the work of goodness sake, did you order the men to bring their women,

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad 'I wanted every man to have his women, children and wealth with him, so that he would know what it is he is defending, replied 'Stop! By God, you are nothing but a shepherd of sheep! Does anything stop one who is fleeing the battle? If the war goes in your favour, you would have no use except for a warrior with a sword or spear, but should it turn against you, you would be disgraced and lose your families and wealth as well.'

When Durayd further learnt about the absence of Ka b and Kilāb, the two most powerful clans of Hawazin, he said sadly 'Both bravery and strength are absent.' Then Durayd added: 'This is a day which I have not witnessed (as a warrior) nor did I miss altogether.'

Durayd then composed poetry, which can be translated into English as follows: 'Would that I were young again, I would ride forward gently leading long manned steeds like young antelopes.

Durayd then advised Mālik to change his strategy, send the women, children and animals home, meet the advancing Muslims on horse-back, and be ready to manoeuvre according to the fortunes of battle. But Mālik insisted on his strategy, even threatening to kill himself, if Hawazin did not obey him. In this way, he got his way, and the battle was fought as he planned.

1. ANGELS SEEN FIGHTING WITH THE MUSLIMS

Mālik sent out a reconnaissance force which came back broken and defeated: 'What happened?' asked Mālik. 'We met white men riding on black horses, wearing turbans and they struck at us such as you see!'

2. THE PROPHET SENT A SPY

When the Prophet (peace be upon him) learnt of the encampment of the enemy, he sent one 'Abdullāh ibn Hadrad al-Aslamī to infiltrate their ranks, and bring exact information as to their numbers, weapons and dispositions for battle. Ibn Hadrad did as commanded, and came

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabuk Ministriple information, undetected and unharmed. The Prophet of that information, no doubt, made good use of that information.

3. THE PROPHET BORROWED WEAPONS prophel (peace be upon him) borrowed some weapons from The proporting the state of the rathered by the Prophet (peace be upon him), and given the option pomeur an unbeliever for some time, was ready and willing to lend Americans. In all, he gave about a hundred steel shields, as well as amels to carry them.

4. THE PROPHET MARCHED TO HUNAYN

The Prophet (peace be upon him) then marched to Hunayn, his umy consisting of twelve thousand soldiers; ten from Madinah and no thousand who had joined at Makkah. 'Utbah ibn Usayd was appointed governor of Makkah in the absence of the Prophet (peace be upon him).

This army reached through a narrow and steep side of the valley of Hunayn, when it was still dark before dawn. Here the Muslims were taken in a severe ambush by Hawāzin, who had concealed themselves among the rocks and defiles of the valley. The Muslims' lines were shattered in a few hours of fighting, and they ran for their lives in every direction. But the Prophet (peace be upon him), just as in Uhud, held his ground, with a few Muslims around him. Al-'Abbās, uncle of the Prophet, and who had a strong voice, was instructed by the Prophet (peace be upon him) to shout at the top of his voice: 'O Ansar! O comrades of the Acacia Tree (of the Pledge of Ridwan)!

They answered: 'Here we are O Prophet! Here we are, O Prophet!' They answered: The Ansar rallied to the Prophet (peace be upon him), about a The Ansar railied to the Prophet (Peace of upon min), about a hundred of them. They dismounted from their fleeing camels, which hundred of them. They distribution their neuring carries, which they could not control. Around the Prophet (peace be upon him), they could not control. Around the Propher (peace be upon only a few Companions stood their ground. They included:

( 246 D)

- 1. Abū Bakr al-Şiddīq.
- 2. 'Umar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb.
- 3. 'Alī ibn Abī Ṭālib.
- 4. Al-'Abbās ibn 'Abd al-Muṭṭalib.
- 5. Abū Sufyūn ibn al-Ḥārith ibn ʿAbd al-Muṭṭalib.
- 6. Jaʿfar ibn Abī Sufyān ibn al-Ḥārith.
- 7. Al-Faḍl ibn al-ʿAbbās ibn ʿAbd al-Muṭṭalib.
- 8. Rabīh ibn al-Hārith.
- 9. Usāmah ibn Zayd.
- 10. Ayman ibn 'Ubayd, the son of Barakah, the Abyssinian maid of the Prophet who was martyred that day.

Some of the new Muslims from al-Ţulaqā' (the freed ones) were secretly pleased with the defeat of the Muslims. Abū Sufyān ibn Ḥarb said, jestingly, 'These fleeing Muslims can only be stopped by the Red Sea!' Another, by the name Jabalah ibn al-Hanbal, brother of Sufvan ibn Umayyah (then still an unbeliever), said: 'Today, the magic spell has been broken.'2

But one Quraysh fighter told them to shut up, saying, 'Be quiet or I will strike your face! By Allah, to have as a master one of the Quraysh is more to my liking than to have a master from Hawazin.'

5. THE PROPHET CHARGES AGAIN

When about a hundred men, mostly from the Anṣār, had assembled around the Prophet, he again charged the enemy, his face red with the fire of courage and determination shouting: I am the Messenger of Allah!'

The Muslims charged with the Prophet (peace be upon him), and the fortunes of the battle were reversed by a tiny minority. When

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabūk Market had felt secure in their big numbers, and boasted about pladent had felt secure in men vig numvers, and voasted about

we will not be defeated

a they were defeated. They had said. "We will not be Mer defeated. Incy nate sature. We will not be defeated.

My browns of deficiency in our numbers. But when they were a standard minority. They was a standard minority. de brouse of generally in our numbers. Due when they were a large with the battle. Allah says in the agrand steadast innioneys ency work and overcome a numerous company

With the patient. [al-Baqarah 2: 249] will king alia bint Milhan, and her husband Abū Ţalḥah, were mong those who held their ground around the Prophet (peace be politim). Umm Salim had a dagger in her fist. When the Prophet yake upon him) saw her, he called out to her: 'Umm Salim! Umm

Yes, O Prophet,' she said: 'Shall I kill those who ran away from RUL 81 kill those who attacked you, O Prophet?' she asked. 'No! No!' said the Prophet. 'Is Allah not sufficient unto us, O

The Prophet (peace be upon him), when surveying the casualties ad the captives of Hunayn, found a dead woman. 'Who killed this woman?' he asked.

It is Khālid ibn al-Walid who killed her, O Messenger of Allah,

'Tell Khālid that the Prophet prohibits killing women, children

6. AL-SHAYMĀ', THE FOSTER SISTER OF THE PROPHET, TAKEN CAPTIVE

Al-Shayma', the foster-sister of the Prophet(peace be upon him), was taken captive, among many women, after the defeat of Hudhayl and Thaqif at Hunayn. She told them that she was the foster-sister of the Prophet (peace be upon him), when he was with his nurse (Halimah Prophet (peace be upon min), when the prophet (peace be upon min), al-Sa'diyyah of Banū Zuhrah). They took her to the Prophet, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) asked her how she would prove that Prophet (peace be upon mm) asked not now one would prove that she was actually his foster-sister. Al-Shayma' then showed him a scar on her back, which was a result of a bite by the Prophet (peace be War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad upon him), when he had ridden on her as a child. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) saw the scar, he remembered the incident, and was greatly moved by pity and compassion for her. He gave her the choice, either to stay with him, in good standing and good company, in affection and honour, or join her own family and people with gifts and presents. She chose the latter option. The Prophet (peace be upon him) gave her a male servant, and a female servant. She had the two marry, and their children continued to live with and serve her family,

7. THE MARTYRS OF HUNAYN

The number of those killed at Hunayn, among the Muhājirīn and Ansār was very small indeed. Ibn Hishām gives only four names, the most notable among which was Ayman ibn 'Ubayd, maternal brother of Usamah ibn Zayd. Their mother was Barakah, the Abyssinian, the wet nurse of the Prophet (peace be upon him). Ibn Sa'd, gives only three names, but he says that a good number of the Bedouins of Banu Nașt, and Banū Rabāb were killed. So much so that a Muslim, apparently of the latter tribe, said, 'Alas, the Banū Rabāb have all perished!' The Prophet prayed for them: 'O Allah, reward and compensate the Banū Rabāb in their calamity.' It would appear that the Bedouins of Banū Rabāb bore the brunt of the casualties, because they were the front battalions of the Muslims' army, attacking Hunayn. It is these Bedouins who took to flight, when the battle started, thus causing the initial defeat of the Muslim army. So, it would seem that they were not listed as casualties, because their names were not known by the historians.

8. THE EXCLUSION OF THE ANSĀR FROM THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE SPOILS

The accumulated spoils of the battle of Hunayn were huge. The tribes of Hudhayl, Thaqīf and their allies were among the richest in

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabúk Their wealth was only matched by that of the Jews of the Their wealth was only materied by that of the Jews of the land of and specially Khaypar and radak. Their region was ramous for another agricultural produce, camels and sheep, gold and silver. Androis agriculturar produces, carners and succeps, gold and suveri. brown, the all-conceived strategy of the react of righting all their wealth and families behind their fighting as for all these reasons, the spoils were tremendous and very great:

May d gave the following list: Suthousand captives, men, women and children;

Twenty-four thousand camels;

More than forty thousand head of sheep;

d Four thousand ounces of silver.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) distributed the bulk of the war spuls before he left the battlefield. He gave large portions to the 'freed mes' of the Quraysh, but gave nothing to the Anṣār and Muhājirīn. Among the Quraysh who received spoils were:

- a. Abū Sufyān ibn Harb: a hundred camels, and forty ounces of silver. He said, 'And my son Yazīd?' And he was given another hundred camels and forty ounces of silver. He said, 'And my son Mu'awiyah?' And was given a further hundred camels and forty ounces of silver.
- Ḥakim ibn Ḥizām: a hundred camels. He asked again and got
- c. Suhayl ibn 'Amr (the chief negotiator of the Quraysh at
- d. Al-Nadr ibn al-Ḥārith: a hundred camels.
- e. Al-Ḥārith ibn Hishām: a hundred camels.
- Şafwan ibn Umayyah (who had just became a Muslim): a hundred

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad Ḥuwayṭib ibn al- 'Uzzā: a hundred camels.

Makhramah ibn Nawfal (also from the Quraysh): fifty camels.

'Umayr ibn Wahb al-Jumaḥī (from the Quraysh): fifty camels Hishām ibn 'Amr, ibn Yarbū' and 'Udayy ibn Qays: all got fifty camels each. From his gift, the Prophet (peace be upon him) gave 'Usayd ibn Jāriyah and al-'Alā' ibn Ḥārithah each a hundred

The Prophet (peace be upon him) also distributed some of the spoils, indeed substantial shares, among the heads of the Bedouin tribes, that fought with the Muslims. However, nothing was given either to the Anṣār or the Muhājirīn, who felt unfairly dealt with. Especially among the Anṣār, feelings of resentment were running high: 'The Prophet was favouring his own kith and kin from the Quraysh, who had done all they could to harm the Prophet and the Muslims, and who obstruct the cause of Islam, who had not become Muslim, until there was no other option for them, but to submit to the overwhelming power of a victorious Islam, the Ansar complained bitterly.'

The Prophet (peace be upon him) heard about those murmurings and resentments of the Ansar. He called them for a meeting. When they were assembled in his council, he began:4 'O men of the Anṣār, what is this statement I have heard of you? And what is this resentment in your hearts against me? Did I not find you poor, and Allah made you rich? Were you not enemies of one another? And Allah softened your hearts towards each other, and gave you peace and reconciliation?

The Ansar answered: 'Yes indeed, Allah and His Messenger are most kind and generous.'

The Prophet continued: 'Why don't you answer me, O Anṣar?' 'How can we answer you O Prophet of Allah? Kindness and generosity belongs to Allah and His Messenger,' said the Ansar. The Prophet changed his tone so as to elicit a franker answer from the Ansar, who did not speak their minds, out of love, respect

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabūk propried for the Prophet (peace be upon him). The Prophet downtion for the propner speace we upon nm.). The Propner (You Swished, you could have said with truth: 'You should have said with truth: 'You January 1901 80 Wisned, your count nave said with truth: 10th or helding and we harboured you; are you angry with me, because ar figure, and we manuscured your arrighty which I gave to desc invances of this work of the new Muslims) hoping to win over their hearts to ham while entrusting you to your faith and conviction? Are you not minded that men should take away flocks and herds, while you take had with you the Messenger of Allah? By Him, in whose hand is the and Muhammad, but for the migration (the hijrah), I should like như ben one of the Anşar myself! If all men take one way, and the Institution of the Ansar, May Allah have mercy on the Ansar, their sons, and their sons' sons.'

The people wept until tears ran down their beards, as they said: We are indeed satisfied with the Messenger of Allah as our lot and portion, O Messenger of Allah.

9. A DEPUTATION FROM THE VANQUISHED HAWĀZIN VISIT THE PROPHET

A deputation from the vanquished tribe of Hawazin came to the Prophet (peace be upon him). They asked him to set free their captured men and women. They said, 'These included the people of your foster mother, Halimah as Sa'diyyah,' for Banū Sa'd were a clan of Hawāzin. The Prophet's heart softened, and he was very lenient with them. He at once ordered all those captives in his own custody to be set free. But some of the captives were dispersed among the allied tribes. So the Prophet (peace be upon him) asked the delegation of Hawazin to come Prophet (peace be upon many back when the people assembled for the noon-prayer. The Muslims assembled, and when the prayer was over, the delegation made their request again, acting in this way, on the advice of the Prophet (peace be upon him). They mentioned the fact that among the captives were the foster-aunts and uncles of the Prophet (peace be upon him) himself. Then the Prophet stood up and declared all the Hawāzin's Captives

( 252 D

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad at his disposal set free. The Anṣār and the Muhājirūn did the same. Then most of the Bedouin tribes also did likewise, except for a few of them. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) requested them to free their captives, promising them good compensation in the future, all the remaining captives were set free, and the majority of Hawazin entered Islam, as a result of that magnanimous and generous act of

10. THE SIEGE OF AT-TĀ'IF

The Prophet (peace be upon him), after Hunayn, marched towards Țā'if. He laid siege to that city for seventeen or twenty days, but was unable to overcome its resistance. The city was well fortified, with huge and strong doors, well guarded by skilful bowmen. The Prophet (peace be upon him) used a catapult to shell the city, but to no avail. Then he tried to storm it with wooden vans, filled with men, and pushed up to the walls; the vans were covered with leather so as to protect the men from the enemy archers on the towers of the fortress. But Thaqif was able to destroy their vans, by pouring hot iron down on them, and in this way setting them alight. A number of the Companions of the Prophet were killed by archers, and the Prophet's army was forced to retreat a considerable distance, beyond the reach of the bowmen.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) saw that no good was going to come of that siege. Ta'if was a very rich city, and had food provisions that might last them many months, possibly years. Moreover, it would have been very costly, in terms of casualties, for the Muslims as well as for the enemy, if he were to take the city by force. There was no point in that, because Thaqif would eventually have no option, but to become Muslims, as Arabia as a whole, and the two major tribal groupings, Quraysh, and Hawazin, had already accepted Islam. So, the Prophet (peace be upon him) called upon his army to depart.

Before marching to Madinah, the Prophet (peace be upon him) entered Makkah, once more, this time to perform the rites of the 'Umrah, or the lesser pilgrimage.

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabūk that he hurried on to Madinah, where the site of his larger family. the this he nurried on to wadman, where the one of ms larger family, and his Mosque were Jacobs The city of Madinah was destined soon to be the focal The city of Mauman was desured soon to be the tocal and the ribes of Arabia from near and the missula The Marketine Landson and of the peringula. The year of deputations lay ahead. Before that as the pennsula. The year of acquaration with the Romans, and bound the death of Banu Ghassan. It must be recalled that the battle Market was far from being decisive, and apparently the Roman mular was all the same of the Muslim state of Madinah.

11. THE PROPHET ARRIVES IN MADINAH AND THE ADVENT OF KA'B IBN ZUHAYR

The poet Ka'b ibn Zuhayr, son of the famous pre-Islamic Arabian poet Zuhayr ibn Abi Salmah, one of those whose poems was among the seven Mu'allaqat hung on the walls of the Ka'bah, had written poetry against the Prophet (peace be upon him), and against Islam and the Muslims. When Islam had spread far and wide in Arabia, and the Quraysh and Hawazin were subdued, Zuhayr hurried to Madinah, and hid in the house of one of his friends, until he could come to the Prophet (peace be upon him), and secure his pardon. Then he composed his famous and most charming poem, known as al-Burdah, because the Prophet (peace be upon him) liked it so much, that he gave his own green mantle (Burdah) as a reward to Zuhayr, and he Ka'b ibn Zuhayr ibn Abī Salmā praised the Prophet (peace be upon him) and praised the Muhājrīn, but he did not praise the Anṣār, because an Anṣārī almost killed him when he was trying to enter the council of the Prophet (peace be upon him). It was even believed that he had censured them, when referring to them as 'the black folks.' It he had censured them, which had it not been for the Prophet's honouring him, they might have killed him. To amend this, the Prophet (peace be they might have knied in the praise the Ansar, and he composed another

@ 254 D

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad poem, later on, on the virtues of the Ansar and they were satisfied. The gist of what Ka'b ibn Zuhayr had said in the above poem has been

'Su'ad is gone, and today my heart is love-sick enthralled to her Unrequited, bound with chains and as to Su'ad, when she came On the morn of departure Was but as a gazelle With bright black downcast eyes When she smiles, she lays bare A shining row of side-teeth That seems to have been bathed Once and twice in (fragrant) wine

Ka 'b ibn Zuhayr continues the long poem, until he says:

I was told that the Messenger of Allah threatened me (with But with the Messenger of Allah

I have hope of finding pardon! Gently! May you be guided by Him Who gave you the gift of the Qur'an

Wherein are warnings and a plain setting out (of the matter) Do not punish me, when I have not sinned, on account of what is Said by the informers,

Even should the (false) sayings about me be many I did not cease to cross the desert Plunging betimes into the darkness When the mantle of night is fallen Till I laid my hand, not to withdraw it, in The hand of the avenger Whose word is the word of truth

Truly, the Messenger is a light Whence illumination is sought A drawn Indian sword, One of the swords of Allah! Amongst a ban of Quraysh!

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabūk This only a small part of al-Burdah. It is simply beautiful, but About cannot be conveyed in any language, other than its own John Connection of the mystic-poet al-Busayri of Egypt, composed a pair later on the prophet (peace be upon him), in which and the praise of match the rhythm and rhyme of Zuhayr's Burdah. Al-Jordi to materi une my mine and a state and the called al-Burdah Many premium of the priginal much later in time than the original and of Ka'b Ibn Zuhayr.

12. THE TABÜK EXPEDITION ther his return from Hunayn and Ta'if, the Prophet (peace be upon im) stayed in Madinah for almost eight months, from Dhū'l-Ḥijjah and Rajab of the ninth year of the Hijrah. He then disclosed his mention of marching against the Romans in Rajab. That was unusual, sme it was the Prophet's habit not to disclose his military objectives. Why did he depart from his custom on this occasion? It is thought that he did so, because he would be waging war against the formidable Romans and he wanted the people to make the necessary preparations. The expedition of Tabūk was also unique because the distance was  $_{\mbox{\scriptsize 50 great}},$  and it was summer time, with heat scorching, crops not yet harvested, and the people needing to harvest. It was in such testing circumstances that the Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered his people to prepare to march to Tabūk, to engage the Romans.

The hypocrites were very active in discouraging people from joining up. They themselves gave the most strange and unacceptable

One of the leaders of the hypocrites, al-Jidd ibn Qays, came to see the 12.1 The Excuse of al-Jidd ibn Qays Prophet (peace be upon him). The Prophet (peace be upon him) asked Prophet (peace be upon min). The Prophet (Peace be upon min) asked him to join the expedition. But al-Jidd had the most extraordinary

'You know, O Messenger of Allah, nobody loves women more than I do; and they say that the women of the Romans (Byzantines) are so beautiful, so I am afraid that I shall be infatuated by them.'s

The Prophet (peace be upon him) accepted his apology, but Allah did not, and the Qur'an condemned the man in very severe terms:

Some of them they are that say: 'Give me leave and do not tempt me,' Truly, such men have fallen into temptation, and surely Hell fire encompasses the unbelievers. [al-Tawbah 9:49]

12.2 Another Group asks Leave because of the Heat

Another group asked the Prophet (peace be upon him) to excuse them from fighting, because of the scorching heat. The Qur'an also rejected their excuse as unacceptable. Says Allah in the Qur'an, referring to

They said, 'Go not forth in the heat', Say Hell Fire is hotter. Do they not understand? Therefore, let them laugh little, and weep much in recompense for what they have been earning. [al-Tawbah 9:81-82].

13. THE PROPHET ORDERS THE HOUSE OF SULAYM THE JEW, TO BE BURNT

The hypocrites used to assemble in the house of Sulaym, a Jew from Madinah, to jest and joke about the orders to mobilize for war against the Romans. They discouraged the people against going out to meet the Romans, making fun of the Muslims' confidence that they could beat them. The Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered that house to be burnt down. It was burnt down with the hypocrites assembled inside: Many of them sustained wounds because of the fire, one of them jumped out of the window, breaking his leg in the process.

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabūk 14. THOSE WHO WEPT BECAUSE THEY HAD NOTHING TO KIVE ON

HAD NO Joe Roof Muslims wanted to Join the expedition of Tabuk. As they bigothing to ride, they asked the Frophict's neily, out the excused they were small They went back to their houses weeping, because they were they went back to then nouses weeping, because they were able to join the Prophet in the jihād against the Romans. They

Salim ibn 'Umayr,

'Utbah ibn Zayd,

Abū Laylā, 'Abd al-Raḥmān ibn Ka'b,

¿ 'Amr ibn Humām ibn al-Jamūḥ,

e. 'Abdullāh ibn al-Muqaffa',

Harim ibn 'Abdullāh,

g. 'Irbād ibn Sāriyah al-Fazārī.

15. THE STORY OF THE THREE MUSLIMS WHO FAILED TO JOIN THE EXPEDITION

Three Muslims, of good standing with the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims, failed to join the expedition, for no good reason, and they stayed behind. They were described as al-mutakhallifin i.e. those who stayed behind, for no good reason.

They were:

- a. Ka'b ibn Mālik.
- b. Murārah ibn al-Rabī',
- c. Hilāl ibn Umayyah.

On his return, from Tabūk, the Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered a boycott, which meant that nobody would deal with the three men, or even talk to them. For it was a great sin indeed not to join in jihād, when an expedition was being waged against the enemy. After some time, he ordered them separated from their own wives, and forbade them to touch them. Life became very hard for those three Muslims, especially for Hilal, who was an old man. Hilal's wife came to the Prophet (peace be upon him), and asked for special permission to serve him, because he was too old to serve himself. The Prophet (peace be upon him) agreed, but cautioned her not to let him approach her sexually. To that she replied that Hilāl was too

The boycott was also especially hard for Ka'b ibn Mālik, a young man, who had participated in all the previous battles. Because Kab loved the Prophet (peace be upon him), he could not abandon the congregational prayers. He would enter the Mosque, and give the greeting, but nobody would reply to him, even the Prophet (peace be upon him) used to look the other way, which hurt him the most. The other two Muslims stayed locked in their homes, until Allah pardoned them, and verses were revealed declaring that pardon, but not accepting their action of staying behind the Prophet (peace be upon him). Says Allah in the Qur'an:

Allah has relented (turned) towards the Prophet and the Muhājrīn and Ansar, who had followed him in the hour of difficulty, after the hearts of some of them well-nigh were aside, then He relented towards them, surely Allah is Gentle to them, and All-Compassionate. And to the three who were left behind, until when the earth became very small for them, for all its breadth, and their souls became tight for them, and they thought that there was no shelter from Allah, except in Him. Then He relented (turned) towards them, that they might also repent, surely Allah is Relenting, and is All-Compassionate. [al-Tawbah 9:117-118]

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabuk Appropriated for fifty days, in the last ten days of which the The severity days, in the last ten days of which the severity days and including the boycott of their wives. John Model meluang the voyeou of their wives. The severity wives, the severity with in hopford served to marcate now grave a sur to 18 tot a neartry and served Muslims, and to take part in jihad with the Muslims, addebodied Muslim, not to take part in Jinua with the Triustims, and the battlefield. It also served to show that no exception The partie of the battlenetd. It also served to snow that no exception is provide for anyone not to join in jihad, because Hilal was an old and pet was not exempted or executed, nor was Ka'b ibn Malik, and the state of t

IN THE PROPHET TOLD ABÛ DHARR OF LONELY DEATH Mi Dharr al-Ghifari was not able to keep up with the pace of the abundar around the state of the finitually, he abandoned it and came running on foot. He caught up with the Prophet (peace be upon him), when the army was encamped hir some rest. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) saw a solitary fgure coming in the distance, he made a wish – 'Be Abū Dharr,' the Prophet (peace be upon him) wished and it was Abū Dharr. When he approached, the Prophet (peace be upon him) said to him: 'May Allah's mercy be on Abu Dharr; he walks alone, dies alone and he will be resurrected alone?

As a matter of fact, Abū Dharr died alone. Only his wife and an attendant were with him at a place in the desert called Al-Rabdhah, to which he was exiled by 'Uthman ibn 'Affan, because Abu Dharr disagreed with the Caliph 'Uthman over the way he was running the state. The Prophet's prophecy for Abū Dharr was realized. The Prophet used to praise Abū Dharr and said of him: 'The earth has not borne, nor the heaven has under its roof anyone more truthful than Abū Dharr.'

17. THE MOSQUE OF DISSENSION

This Mosque was built by the hypocrites of Madinah to oppose the Prophet, and to rival his Mosque. It was denounced by the Qur'an, Prophet, and to rival his musque. It was denounced by the Qui an, in the strongest possible terms, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) was forbidden to pray in it, by Allah. It was described as the Mosque of Dirār. That mosque was built by twelve men of the hypocrites. Their names are given by Ibn Hishām. They finished building the mosque when the Prophet (peace be upon him) was about to depart on his way to the Battle of Tabūk. They came to the Prophet (peace be upon him) and said: 'O Messenger of Allah, we have built this mosque for the sick, the busy, and for rainy or cold nights, when we cannot join you, and come to your mosque! We would like you to come and pray in it.'

The Prophet (peace be upon him) wished them well, and said that he was about to set out for the Battle of Tabūk, but that when he will be back, he would come and pray with them, in their mosque. But when the Prophet (peace be upon him) marched for about an hour, and encamped at a place called Dhū Awān, Gabriel came and told him about the true purpose of the new mosque: that it was a mosque of opposition, and that he was forbidden by Allah to pray in it. At that point, the Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered a group of the Anṣār to go to Madinah and burn down that mosque. The group was headed by Mālik ibn Dukhshum of the Anṣār. The mission was carried out immediately and efficiently, and the mosque was burnt down with the hypocrites assembled inside. The Qur'anic verses revealed on the Mosque of the Opposition, run as follows; said Allah in the Qur'an:

And those who have taken a mosque in opposition and unbelief, and to divide the believers, and as an outpost for those who fought Allah and His Messenger before-time. They will swear; 'We desire nothing but good.' And Allah testifies that they are truly liars; stand there never! A mosque that was founded upon God-fearing from the first day, is worthier for you to stand in, therein are men who love to cleanse themselves, and Allah loves those who cleanse themselves. Why, is he better, who founded his building upon the fear of Allah and His good pleasure, or he who founded his building upon the brink of a crumbling bank, that has tumbled with him unto the Fire of Hell? And Allah guides not the wrong-doers. The building they have built will not cease to be a (cause of) doubt within their hearts, unless (until) their hearts are cut into pieces. Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise. [al-Tawbah 9:107-110]

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabuk THE OUTCOME OF THE EXPEDITION OF TABÚK Afflorrome up in the radion and the popplet peace be upon num; arrived in tabuk, there was arrived in tabuk, there was the region, seeking peaceful the region to the region that the region the region to the reg He was met by me rulers of the region, seeking peacerul of mith him. runanna non ru van, the tuner of riya, carre de mode peace with the rulers of Jaba' and Adhrush, who also

Aprace and paid jizyah. not the peace agreement between the Prophet

dhanna ibn Ru'bah, as follows: in the Name of Allah, the compassionate the Most Merciful This is a guarantee from Allah and Muḥammad, the Prophet and Meserger of Allah to Yuḥannā ibn Ru'bah and the people of Īlyā, for their ships and their caravans by land and sea. They and all the men with them, in Syria, and Yemen, and their seamen, all have the protection of Allah, and Muḥammad, the Prophet. Should any one of them, break the treaty by introducing new factors, then his wealth shall not save him, it is fair prize of him who takes it. It is not permitted that they shall be restrained from going down to their wells, or using their roads by land or sea.

18.2 Khālid ibn al-Walīd and the Ruler of Dūmah

Ukardir ibn 'Abd al-Malik, was the Christian client of the Romans, and the ruler of Dumah. The Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him) dispatched Khālid ibn al-Walid, in a suitable military contingent for him. The Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him) told Khālid: 'You will find Ukaydir hunting wild cattle?

Khālid found Ukaydir, as predicted by the Messenger of Allah, and took him completely by surprise. He brought him to the Prophet (peace be upon him), his gown embroidered with pure gold. The Prophet (peace be upon him) spared his life and made a peace treaty Prophet (peace of appropriate to pay jizyah and recognize the overall with him. Ukayan agreed to pay payan and recognize the overall authority of the Prophet in Arabia. The Prophet (peace be upon War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad him) stayed in Tabūk for ten days, before he made his way back to

18.3 Peace at last: Thaqīf Converted to Islam

The Prophet (peace be upon him) returned to Madinah in good cheer. The Muslim authority in Madinah was no longer threatened by any power in Arabia at large. The north borders with the Romans were by then thoroughly pacified, and made to recognize the authority of Allah and his Messenger. The only exception to this was the enclave

As the Prophet (peace be upon him) had foreseen, the position of Thaqīf was no longer tenable. They themselves became remorseful, especially after the killing of their tribal leader, 'Urwah ibn Mas'ūd, after his conversion to Islam. Gradually, Thaqif came to realize their isolation in Arabia, as well as their increased inability to deal with the tribes around them, since those tribes had converted to Islam. Their business interests were severely curtailed, as nobody was prepared to deal with them. Gradually, they became prisoners in their own city, unable to venture outside, with nobody visiting them. Moreover, they lost much of their labour force, when a good number of their slaves ran away to the Prophet's encampment when he was laying siege to at-Ta'if, and converted to Islam, and they were declared free men.

So, Thaqīf gradually awoke to the gravity of their situation. Since all other Arab tribes had adopted Islam, they could not contemplate war or conflict with them. One of their chiefs, 'Amr ibn Umayyah, was the first to analyze the situation and understand that something had to be done to end the isolation of Thaqīf, vis-à-vis the Arab tribes, and the state of the Prophet (peace be upon him) in Madinah. He conferred with another chief, 'Abd Yalayl ibn 'Amr ibn 'Umayr, who agreed that the position of Thaqīf was no longer tenable. They recognized that they were not secure in their own quarters, nor able to venture outside their own town, except at a great risk. They decided to go to Muḥammad at Madīnah and accept Islam. 'Abd Yalayl ibn

After the Conquest of Makkah, Hunayn and Tabūk to lead the embassy to the Prophet (peace be real many pointed to lead the embassy to Thank and Table 1. and pointed to lead the surrender of Thaqif and Ta'if to Islam.

IN THE DELEGATION OF THAQ IF TO THE PROPHET B THE DELEGRATION of Thaqif consisted of six men, representing the Be get galuan of the tribe, headed by 'Abd Yalayl: Abd Yalayl ibn 'Amr ibn 'Umayr, Al-Hakim ibn 'Amr, Shurahbil ibn Ghaylan/confederates of Thaqif,

Abān ibn Abī al-'Āṣ

i. Aws ibn 'Awf/Banū Mālik,

6. Numayr ibn Kharashah.

As the delegation approached Madinah, they found al-Mughirah In 'Abi Shu'bah looking after the camels of the Prophet (peace be upon him). The task of tending the camels of the Prophet (peace be upon him) was rotational, and it was the turn of al-Mughirah ibn Abī Shu bah. When he saw the delegation and understood their intention, he ran towards Madinah to tell the Prophet (peace be upon him) the good news, leaving the delegation at his station. On the way, he was met by Abū Bakr, who insisted on being the one to bring the good news to the Prophet (peace be upon him). He implored al-Mughīrah to let him take the news to the Prophet (peace be upon him), and Augurran agreed.

When the Thaqif's delegation was eventually standing before the Prophet, they asked him for some concessions:

- a. that their beloved idol, al-Lat, should not be destroyed for three
- b. that they be excused from the  $\hat{a}_{\bar{a}t}$  (Prayer).

that they should not be required to break their idols themselves: the Prophet must appoint somebody else to do so, should it come

The Prophet (peace be upon him) refused the first two demands, but conceded the third . They tried to get a lesser concession with regard to the first demand. They asked to keep al-Lat for two years: the Prophet (peace be upon him) again refused; then they suggested one year, again the Prophet (peace be upon him) refused; then three months, again he refused. Then they asked him to leave al-Lat for a month or even a few days, but the Prophet (peace be upon him) was adamant that al-Lat be destroyed, at the first possible opportunity. As for salāt, he told them that it was the prime pillar of Islam. Whoever failed to perform prayer, would not be regarded as a Muslim.

As for the third demand, which the Prophet (peace be upon him) had conceded, he appointed al-Mughīrah ibn Abī Shu 'bah, and Abū Sufyan ibn Harb, to carry out the destruction of al-Lat and all the other idols of Thaqif. The Prophet (peace be upon him) also appointed Abān ibn Abī al-ʿĀṣ, as the Amīr over Thaqīf. He was very young, but most learned in the Qur'an and sunnah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) also wrote them a letter, containing instructions to be followed by them in Tā'if.

CHAPTER 10 The Year of Deputations:
The Advent of Peace in Arabia

phical implications of the surrender of the Quraysh, signalled 18 eta in Arabia. After the return from Tabuk, and Thaqif's Toping of Islam, the Prophet (peace be upon him) became the against and ruler of Arabia as a whole. The Arabs, al the Bedouin tribes of the desert, knew very well the political microins of the surrender of the Quraysh. After all, the Quraysh werthe leaders of the Arabs and their respected guides and chiefs. Begwere, moreover, the guardians of the Ancient Sanctuary, and the pure stock of Ishmael, son of Abraham. When the Quraysh were abdued, the Arabs knew that a new political force had come into habia, and that they could not fight the Messenger of God, or show amity towards him. Consequently, they entered in the religion of God in throngs, as God says in the Qur'an, and they converged on Madinah from all directions. This has been underscored in the Qur'an, in Surah al-Nasr (Help) as follows:

When comes the victory of Allah, and the conquest, and you see men entering God's religion in throngs, then proclaim the praise of your Lord, and seek His forgiveness, for He is Most Forgiving.

The Arabs arrived in 'throngs' from the remotest corners of The Arabs amved in this second and the new authority. They entered

@ 267 D

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad into the religion of Islam in 'throngs' as the Qur'an reports. The first delegation to call on the Prophet (peace be upon him) was that of the tribe of Banu Tamim. Banu Tamim called out loud from outside. Banū Tamin were desert Bedouins, coarse, ignorant and ill. mannered. They called out loudly from the street: 'O Muḥanmad,

The Prophet (peace be upon him) did not like to be summoned in this way, but with his accustomed gentleness and courtesy, he said nothing and showed nothing. Banu Tamim went on: 'O Muhammad, we came to compete and boast the glory of our tribe. So, give permission to our orator and our poet to speak praise of our pride and glory.' The Prophet (peace be upon him) reluctantly gave permission to this jāhiliyyah custom of boasting. So, he consented to play the game, according to their rules, taking great care not to put them off at that initial encounter.

Then the Banū Tamīm's orator, 'Uṭārid ibn Ḥājib, got up and said: 'Praise belongs to God, for His favour on us, and He is worthy to be praised, who had made us kings, and had given us great wealth, wherewith we are generous, and has made us the strongest people in the east, the greatest in numbers and the best equipped, so who, among mankind, is our equal? Are we not the princes of men and their superiors? He who would compete with us, let him enumerate what we have enumerated. If we wished, we could say more, but we are too modest to say much of what He has given us, and we are well known for that. I say this, that you may bring forward the likes of us anything better.' Having said his piece, 'Uṭārid ibn Ḥājib sat down.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) then asked Thabit ibn Qays ibn al-Shammās, of the Khazraj, to reply to the orator of Banū Tamim. Thabit got up and said: 'Praise belongs to God, who created the heavens and earth, and established His rule therein! His knowledge embraces His Throne. Nothing exists but by His Bounty. By His power, He made us kings and chose the best of His creation as Messenger, honoured with lineage, made him truthful in speech, and favoured him above all that He had created. He was God's choice from the

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia nodds, and gent down to him His Book, and entrusted him with it

Then al-Zibriqan ibn Badr got up and said: 'We are the nobles; hope all that He has created...' our midst are born, and in our midst hurches are built. In time of dearth, we feed meat to the hungry. Openis coming to us are well-satisfied with food. We forbid others,

The Prophet asked his poet, Ḥassān ibn Thābit, to answer az-Thirtian ibn Badr. Hassan got up and recited a long poem, in which he praised the Prophet (peace be upon him), and his Companions, both as virtuous and brave people and of noble birth, going back to Fibr, the ancestor of the Quraysh. Banū Tamīm were duly impressed by Hassan's poem, and felt obliged to acknowledge the superiority of the Prophet's position. Az-Zibrigan, then got up and said:

'By my father, this man has a ready helper! His orator and his poet are better than ours, and their voices are sweeter than ours!'

In the end, Banu Tamim accepted Islam, and the Prophet (peace be upon him) honoured them, accorded them very generous hospitality, and gave them valuable gifts on their departure.

All of this duly recorded, in the Qur'ān, in Sūrah al-Ḥujurāt (The Apartments or Rooms). As a matter of fact; this Sūrah gave a whole set of rules and moral principles and an elaborate code of mannerism of how a Muslim should behave and act, when in the gracious presence

It is significant that the Prophet (peace be upon him) agreed to deal with them in their own idiom. Although the Prophet (peace be upon him) was known to dislike boasting and arrogance, yet he had to work within the accepted customs of the pre-Islamic Arabs. Large and prestigious tribes, like Banu Tamim, were very proud of their tribal poets and orators. Good, eloquent and pure Arabic speech and poetry poets and orators. Good, eloquent and pure Arabic speech and poetry were highly valued by them. Banu Tamim did not expect the Prophet were highly valued by them. Danu Tammir out not expect the Prophet (peace be upon him) to have with him such eloquent orators and data and data and data. poets. They were greatly impressed by them, and decided to embrace poets. They were greatly impressed by them, and decided to embrace Islam for that reason. Thus one of the Prophet's strategies was to work

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad within the cultural and political systems of Pre-Islamic Arabia, and

1. THE UNSUCCESSFUL PLOT ON

'Āmir ibn al-Ṭufayl, and Arbad ibn Qays came to Madinah, planning to murder the Prophet (peace be upon him). The plot was that 'Āmir would distract the Prophet (peace be upon him) and Arbad would strike him with his sword and kill him.

<sup>c</sup>Āmir did his part as planned, but Arbad failed to move against the Prophet (peace be upon him). When they came out, 'Amir scolded Arbad for his failure to perform his part. Arbad explained that every time he had tried to strike against the Prophet, he saw his friend 'Amir standing between him and the Prophet (peace be upon him) so that if he struck at the Prophet he would kill only his own friend 'Amir. The Prophet (peace be upon him), knew of their evil intention, (Gabriel told him), and he prayed to God Almighty to punish and destroy them. 'Āmir fell ill after contracting the plague, and died on his way home. Arbad reached his people, but was killed by a thunderbolt, a short time afterwards.

2. DIMĀM IBN THA LABAH, THE QUICK-MINDED DEPUTY

Dimām ibn Tha labah was sent by his people, the Banū Sa'd ibn Bakt, to find out about the Prophet (peace be upon him). Being a man of quick mind and keen eye, he recognized the Prophet (peace be upon him) as such, asked him a few questions and set out on his way

When the people assembled around him, he told them that Islam was a true and noble religion from God Almighty, that Muhammad was truthful and that idol-worshipping was indeed a false and irrational religion. Being respected and trusted by his tribe, they all converted to Islam on his advice. This incident tells us something

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia and the pre-Islamic Arabs. The notion that they were Jack Wildom or the pre-isramic rataus. The motion under they were the story of the light route, unruly and foolish is not very fair. The story of the light route, unruly and foolish is not very fair. Job course, unrusy and rooms 15 Hot very ratt. The stury of the pulming the recognition of purpose, and had sound judgement, since Journal the advice of the person they had chosen and trusted. giacident also shows that their leader, Dimam ibn Tha labah was PRINCELLE WARD AND A CONTROL HE THOUGHT HE HAD discovered the truth Jun Muhammad (peace be upon him), he lost no time taking that compry to his people. This is evident from the fact that he only spent ifw hours in the company of the Prophet (peace be upon him). Be did not want to waste the time of his people or their chance of koming one of the first tribes to embrace the new religion of Islam, and support the new Arab state.

3. THE COMING OF AL-JĀRŪD IBN 'AMR

Allarudibn 'Amribn Hanash accepted Islam, because he was moved by the generosity and fairness of the Prophet (peace be upon him). When a member of his tribe asked the Prophet (peace be upon him) to pay off his debts, the Prophet (peace be upon him) immediately agreed. But when al-Jarud himself asked him permission to take into his possession any stray camels on the road, the Prophet (peace be upon him) refused and warned against that, because he had no right

4. ZAYD AL-KHAYL BECAME ZAYD AL-KHAYR

A. LAND AL-MAN As the chief of the tribe of Tayy, famous for their Zayd al-Knayi was une cline of the state of in his generosity, considered to have been the most generous prein his generosity, considered to have occur the intost generous pre-Islamic Arab, whoever lived. Whenever guests came, he would slaughter a camel. On one occasion when guests came, and he did slaughter a camer. On one occasion when Sucas came, and ne chu not find any camel to slaughter, he slaughtered his own transport and not find any camel to statigniers he statigniered his own transport and favourite she-camel. The Prophet (peace be upon him) used to collect

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad information about the chiefs of the Arab tribes, so that he would know how to treat them, and how to win them over to Islam. On this account, the Prophet (peace be upon him) is reported to have said:

No Arab has ever been spoken of in high terms but that, when I have met him, I have found him to fall below what was said of him, except Zayd al-Khayl, who exceeded all that has been said

Zayd al-Khayl (i.e. Zayd of the horses) was so-called because of his bravery. The Prophet (peace be upon him) liked him very much, and when he became a Muslim, on the invitation of the Prophet (peace be upon him), he renamed him Zayd al-Khayr (i.e. Zayd of the good). The Prophet (peace be upon him) then gave Zayd al-Khayr gifts and allotted to him a piece of land, by name of Fayd, and other land, and wished him a safe journey home. However, and quite sadly, Zayd al-Khayr fell ill on the road and died, before reaching his destination.

5. THE CONVERSION TO ISLAM OF THE CHRISTIAN 'ADIYY IBN HATIM

This was the son of the famous Arab chief of the tribe of Tayy, Ḥātim al-Tā'ī. He was a Christian, and he said he felt a consuming hatred for the Prophet of Islam, when he first heard of him. When Muhammad's army was advancing against Tayy, 'Adiyy ibn Ḥātim fled to Syria. But his sister, who was taken captive by the Muslim soldiers, and subsequently freed, went to him in Syria and praised the Prophet (peace be upon him). She told him that it was not befitting of him, being the chief, and the son of a chief, to be on the run abroad. She asked him to come back, and meet the Prophet (peace be upon him) and find out for himself about Islam. Nobody was going to compel him to accept it. It was his free choice, and if he did not like Islam, he could walk away with dignity. But should he accept Islam, he would be reinstated as the chief of his people Tayy.

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia O. Adiyy decided Organism his sister, and listening to her advice, 'Adiyy decided' 6. 'ADIYY MEETS THE PROPHET by repring nis susters and reserving to the advices and reserving to the prophet (peace be upon him) in Madinah. He up and meet unc respect the area of the prophet (peace be upon him) to Just milent on checking up on the Prophet (Peace Bermine whether the his own house, and was host work 'Adiyy ibn Ḥātim to his own house, and was host Bhim, since he was very keen to see him become a Muslim, because of his high social standing among his tribe and people. Should 'Adiyy brome a Muslim, all the tribe would convert to Islam. 'Adiyy, who was closely watching the Prophet (peace be upon him), said: 'As we were making for the house, there met him an old feeble woman, who asked him to stop, and he stopped for a long time, while she told him her needs. I said to myself, "This is no King." Then he took me into his house, took hold of a leather cushion stuffed with palm tree leaves, and threw it to me saying, "sit on that," and he insisted that I sit on ii, which I did, while he sat on the ground in front of me, and I said (to myself), "This is not the way a King behaves."

'Adiyy, then, said that the Prophet (peace be upon him) addressed him:2 'Are you not a Christian, O 'Adiyy?'

'Yes, I am', I said.

'But why then do you take a quarter of the stock of your people? That is not permitted to you by your religion.'

'Quite true, O Prophet', I said. 'Adiyy then reached the conclusion that indeed Muḥammad was not a king, but a true, genuine Prophet, since this question of 'Adiyy taking a quarter of the stock of his people was not generally known. 'Adiyy became a Muslim, after listening to a passionate and moving speech by the Prophet (peace be upon him), as follows: 'O 'Adiyy, why do you not accept Islam? It may well be that the poverty you see among the Muslims prevents you from joining the poverty you see among the ividantia prevents you from Johning this religion, but, by God, wealth will soon flow so copiously among them, that there will not be people to take it. But perhaps, it is that them, that there will not be people to take it. Due pernapo, it is that you see how many are their enemies, and how few we are? But, by you see how many are then entitles, and how lew we are: Dut, Dy God, you will hear of a woman unaccompanied coming on her camel God, you will hear of a woman unaccompanieu coming on ner camel from Qādisiyyah to visit this Scared House unafraid. But perhaps it is that you see that others have the power and sovereignty, but, by God, you will soon hear that the White Castles of Babylon have been opened to them: (The Muslims).' The Prophet (peace be upon him) thus addressed 'Adiyy, very much eager, and hopeful to win him over

'Adiyy, on hearing the Prophet's moving speech, and because of what he saw of the modest manners, and behaviour of the Prophet (peace be upon him), became a Muslim. 'Adiyy said that he lived on until two promises and prophesies of the Prophet had been achieved: the opening of the White Castles of Persia, and that women began to come to Makkah from Qādisiyyah on camel back, quite safe and sound. The third promise of abundant wealth was realized later on, during the reign of the fifth Caliph 'Umar ibn 'Abd al- 'Aziz, of the

7. THE COMING OF AL-ASH 'ATH IBN QAYS THE KING OF KINDAH

The kings of Kindah were probably the strongest kings of Yemen, Hadramawt and the eastern parts of Arabia, whereas the Quraysh were the kings and nobility of Hijaz, and the western region of Arabia. From Kindah came the famous poet, Imra' al-Qays, who is said to have exploded the Arabic language, that is, added so many words, expressions, idioms, rhymes and rhythms that it became very rich and wide in scope. From Kindah too came the famous philosopher and physician, Abū Ya qūb Ishāq al-Kindī, who was the first Arab philosopher to study and transmit Aristotle's logic and philosophy. The kings of Kindah were rich and civilized people. They wore elaborate striped robes embroidered with silk. They made their hair in a very beautiful way and they put kohl in their eyes to enhance their looks. When the Prophet (peace be upon him) saw them, he did not like their lavish costumes, especially he did not like the wearing of silk. He therefore asked them, if they had accepted Islam, and when they answered in the affirmative, he added, 'Why do you wear silk, then?'

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia of that wearing silk is not allowed for men! At that point, they distributiveaning survival and threw them to the ground! Application of John and the December 2011 This incident is quite sugain and the Prophet's method of insisting demonstration of source and the start. The incident is John Repulling the Arab's readiness to change their ways alkhariour, and modify their life-styles to fit the orientation and Touches of the new state of Madinah. That incident also says a great hadbout the flexibility and wisdom of those pre-Islamic Arabs. Then the kings of Kindah, headed by al-Ash 'ath ibn Qays, tried upmind the Prophet (peace be upon him) that they and the Prophet ver relatives, at least on their maternal side. Al-Ash 'ath said: 'We arche sons of the Eater of Bitter Herbs and so are you.' The Prophet smiled cordially, but added, 'You want to say that to my uncle al-Abbās' Of course al-'Abbās was a merchant, and used to travel quite alot among those Arab tribes, especially to the east and south of Makkah. And to secure his safe passage, he would remind those Arabs that he was the son of the Eater of Bitter Herbs. The Prophet (peace beupon him) then added that he was the descendant of al-Nadr ibn Kinanah, and that a man should be linked, genealogically speaking, to his paternal side, and not maternal ancestors and, no offence meant, one must not disown one's father.' On hearing this, al-Ash ath turned to his men of Kindah, and warned them that if they should ever mention anything about the Eater of the Bitter Herbs, he would deal them eighty strokes of the cane! Now, it is of course, quite true, that the Eater of Bitter Herbs, was one of the great-grand fathers of the Prophet, from his maternal side, the Banū al-Najjār, of Yemen, who were then living in Yathrib (Banū al-Ashhal of Khazraj).

8. THE DEPUTATION OF THE KINGS OF HIMYAR (YEMEN) After returning from the Battle of Tabūk against the Byzantines After returning from the Dathe of Labour against the Dyzantines (Romans), the Prophet (peace be upon him) received the embassy (Romans), the Propner (peace be upon min) received the embassy of the kings of Himyar of Yemen. He wrote them a detailed letter

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad explaining the Five Pillars of Islam, giving details of the Zakāt and jizyah. He also sent the knowledgeable Mu'adh ibn Jabal with them, to teach them the principles of Islam and Qur'an. Mu'adh ibn Jabal was a close and beloved Companion of the Prophet. He was quite young, handsome and very knowledgeable in Islamic jurisprudence and da'wah, with a sharp mind and an easy and friendly disposition. So the Prophet's choice was not at random. The Prophet (peace be upon him) knew the importance of the Yemen as a region, and he knew the calibre of the Yemeni people. Later on, history proved the far-sightedness of the Prophet (peace be upon him), as the Yemenis came to form the core of the Muslim armies that conquered extensive territories, and spread Islam from the borders of China and the Himalayas to the plains of Muslim Spain.

'How would you judge and govern those people of Yemen?' the Prophet (peace be upon him)4 asked Muʿādh.

'By the Book of God, Almighty!' answered Mu'adh.

'But suppose you didn't find anything (by way of guidance) in the Holy Qur'an?' added the Prophet (peace be upon him).

'Then I will invoke the sunnah of the Prophet,' answered Mu'ādh.

'But suppose you didn't find any help there, either, what will you do?'

The Prophet (peace be upon him) confirmed his questioning of Mu adh, to measure-up, the extend of his knowledge and wisdom!

'Then I will seek out my best judgement, and spare no effort to find the right ruling.' replied Mu'adh emphatically.

'Praise be to God, Almighty, Who has guided the messenger of the Apostle of God to what would please God', said the Prophet (peace be upon him), quite impressed and pleased with the wisdom and prudence of Mu'adh ibn Jabal.

This exchange became a hallmark of Islamic jurisprudence, because it demarcated the three foundational pillars of Islamic jurisprudence. The basic sources of all Islamic legislation are:

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The summath of the Prophet (both verbal, and situational, i.e. his al-Jinhād, i.e. the enlightened, educated and knowledgeable opinion of the executive ruler, and his Shūrā Council.

What is meant by the 'enlightened, educated and knowledgeable mood, is that this opinion must follow rules of deduction 'Istinbāṭ'. redould not be based on mere subjective or whimsical judgement. The objective rules of deduction, as developed by a Shāfi i and other urists, stipulate that any 'reasoned', or 'deduced' opinion must be ahmately based on a text (nass) of the Qur'an or the sunnah. Thus, uristic deduction proceeds by analogy (or qiyas), either strict and narrow qiyās or wide-ranging, 'general' qiyās. By strict or narrow qiyās a meant qiyas based on a text (i.e. directly or indirectly). By 'general' mas is meant an appeal to the basic or universal aims of the shari ah or Islamic law. These general aims of the shari ah are termed. Al-Maqasid al-Kulliyyah', i.e. the universal goals of the Islamic law at

The Islamic law generally aims at realizing utilities and benefits for mankind, and avoiding unbeneficial and harmful behaviour. That is to say, it generally aims at realizing the legitimate and proven interests of humanity. For instance, Islamic law generally aims at preserving:

- b. Money and property,
- c. Honour and integrity of man,
- The soundness of the intellect,
- The sanctity of religion.

Any ruling that is deemed consistent with those general objectives Any ruling that is deemed consistent with those general objectives or universal goals of shari ah is considered to be desirable from the War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muhammad standpoint of the Islamic law. This is what is meant by 'general' qiyas or general analogy. Al-Shafi 'i warned quite emphatically against views

After this rather long digression, which is quite relevant and important, we must now return to our historical scene and describe, in gist, what had gone between the Prophet (peace be upon him) and

It appears that the Prophet (peace be upon him) had given the matter of spreading Islam quite a lot of thought. Firstly, he had chosen the best of the Muslims' jurists and learned ones to be dispatched to

- Muʿādh ibn Jabal, leader of the delegation.
- 'Abdullāh ibn Zayd.
- Mālik ibn 'Ubādah.
- 'Uqbah ibn Nimr.
- Mālik ibn Murrah

Obviously, there were others (lesser jurists) to whom the Prophet (peace be upon him) had alluded by the expression 'and their companions.' The Prophet (peace be upon him) commended those jurists, and their companions very highly and advised the kings of Himyar to respect them, and treat them in the best manner. He praised them as pious and knowledgeable men, the best of his people.

Further, the Prophet (peace be upon him) had written, for the nobles of Himyar, an elaborate document addressed to the kings, to teach them their religious duties and obligations, and how to discharge them. He ordered them to practise the following pillars of Islam:

- To perform salāh, as best as it should;
- To pay zakāt, and the fifth of the booty;
- To perform hajj (pilgrimage to Makkah) whenever possible.

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia Letter who did more than those fixed pillars of Islam (which no agone wind under the arrange of the The document also mentioned the obligation to uphold Islam, Meanwritness that it is the true religion of God Almighty. Ralso stressed the believers' obligation to uphold the faridah Dignory nature ) of jihād, and that was by helping their fellow weren against the idol worshippers or polytheists of Yemen. last, but not least, the document advised the nobles of Himyar to must their people well and not to be false or treacherous, because the Wasenger of God (i.e. Muḥammad) was the friend of both the poor ad the rich of them. That important document, which the Prophet peace be upon him) dictated in an elaborate and thoughtful way, was uncluded by the following significant words:5

Mālik [Mālik ibn Murrah, one of the dispatched jurists] has brought the news concerning the conversion of the kings of Himyar to Islam, and kept secret what is confidential, so I order you to treat him well. I have sent to you some of the best of my Companions, pious and learned men, and I order you to treat them well, for they must be respected. Peace be upon you, and the mercy and the Blessings of God.

It was most significant that the Prophet (peace be upon him), in his letter to the kings of Himyar should emphasize the importance of receiving those 'pious and learned men' with respect and good treatment. That was intended to underscore the importance of knowledge and enlightenment, in the new Islamic order and society. Secondly, it is also significant that the Prophet (peace be upon him) should remind the nobles of Himyar to treat their people, poor and should remind the north rich alike, with fairness and compassion. That new policy was intended to bring about a change for the better in the life of the people under the New Islamic Order. The document contained elaborate details about Zakāt, together with booty and charity, constituted about Zakar, tugetier with body and enacity, constituted some of the revenue sources of the new Muslim State, without which it could not function well, hence the need both to emphasize the importance of Zakāt, and educate the nobles of Himyar on how to go about collecting it, together with jizyah and booty.

Another significance of the Prophet's emphasis on the collection of Zakāt has something to do with the fact that the Muslim State has an obligation towards the poor, the needy and the dispossessed. It caters for such things as their safety, their health and education and that of their children. Not only this, but also if they are travelling they become entitled to Zakāt allowances, even if they are rich at home, because they are termed 'Ābir Sabīl (wayfarers). Another category recipients of Zakāt, is those termed 'Al-Ghārimīn', i.e. those who have incurred debts which they cannot repay. Thus, in a sense, an Islamic State is a welfare state, catering for the basic needs of the underprivileged. It has an Islamic responsibility towards the poor and the dispossessed. Having compassion and mercy towards the weak and the needy, is a basic feature of an Islamic State. The Qur'an tells the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) that he has been sent by God Almighty as a Mercy unto Mankind: We have not sent you except as a Mercy unto Mankind. [Al-Anbiyā' 21:107]

We saw earlier that the Prophet (peace be upon him) ordered the nobles of Kindah not to wear silk clothes. This is another aspect of how Islam organizes economic and financial matters. The basic philosophy behind this system of Islamic Economy is that of wealth-preserving and wealth-sharing between the rich and the poor. Wealth shall not to be the monopoly of the rich few, nor should it be allowed to be squandered through foolish and irrational extravagancy and indulgence in meaningless luxury! Lavish spending, and those engaged in it are condensed in the most harsh and uncompromising way. They are singled out as the cardinal cause of the destructions of townships and cities. The Qur'ān rules against the monopoly of wealth by the rich people:

What God has bestowed on his Apostle, (taken) from the people of the township, belongs to God, to His Apostle, and to the kindred and the orphans, the needy and the wayfarer... In order that it (wealth) The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent the wealthy among you.

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations: The Advent of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputations in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in Arabia

The Year of Deputation in The Year of Peace in The Year of Pea

Hoarding of money, gold or silver is strictly forbidden, like the Hoarding of money, gold or silver is strictly forbidden, like the Hoarding of misuse of funds are likewise forbidden, like wearing with like the Hoarding of wealth or extravagance (as is extracted by the wear not will be kings of Himyar. It is for this reason that men are not will be kings of Himyar. It is for this reason, though, these are will be wear silk or use gold as an ornament, though, the wear silk or use gold as an ornament.

9. THE DEPUTATION OF BANŪ AL-ḤĀRITH OF NAJRĀN (YEMEN)

OF NAJRAN (TEMEN)

It would appear that Banū al-Ḥārith of Najrān (Yemen) were late to dispatch their deputation to Madīnah. So, the Prophet (peace be upon him) dispatched his famous Companion and general, Khālid ibn alhim dispatched his famous Companion and general his his dispatched his famous Companion and general his his dispatched his famous Compan

When they came before the Prophet (peace be upon him), he asked them how it was that they always fought so well and were never defeated. They explained that they were never divided, but always fought united, and that they never initiated hostilities or acted as The Prophet (peace).

aggressors.

The Prophet (peace be upon him) described them as looking like Indians. No doubt they resembled Indians as they were living on the 10. CONCLUDING REMARKS The year of deputations witnessed the total submission of the whole peninsula of Arabia to the authority of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the state of Madinah. That was the logical consequence of the collapse of the authority of the Quraysh, who were the leaders of the Arabs and their notables. They had been a stumbling block in the way of the other Arabs, who might otherwise have accepted the authority of the Prophet (peace be upon him) much earlier. It would also appear that some of those Arabs were not at liberty to come to the Prophet (peace be upon him), and offer their political and religious allegiances, or that they were hesitant to do so, as shown by the Christians of Najrān. However, it appears that the Prophet (peace be upon him) demanded that they come, and recognize his overall authority, in the entire Arabian Peninsula. Those who tarried somewhat or hesitated, were reminded that it was incumbent on them to come, and offer their political and religious allegiance, to the authority of the Prophet (peace be upon him). The Prophet used the occasion of these meetings to become acquainted with them, and they had the chance to get acquainted with the new political order of Islam. He also used the occasion, to teach them the principles of Islam, paramount among them was Salāt and Zakāt. Those deputations were very colourful occasions, and a great deal took place during them. The Prophet (peace be upon him) showed an excellent understanding of the names and characters, of the chiefs of the major Arab tribes, and he used that knowledge to endear Islam to them. He also treated them very well, and confirmed them in their positions as tribal chiefs or kings as the case was. That was what he did with the kings of Kindah, and the kings of Himyar of Yemen. It was certainly a very wise policy to recognize the positions of men, and confirm them in their status. The year of deputations marked a new stage in the history of Islam, and the state of Madinah. The Prophet (peace be upon him) started to look beyond Arabia, in particular to think about the threats and challenges coming from the North (the Romans) and the East (the Persians).

CHAPTER 11

Epilogue

1. CAN A POWERFUL ISLAMIC STATE

COEXIST PEACEFULLY WITH OTHER POWERS? Some Western orientalists used to argue that a powerful Islamic State cannot coexist peacefully with other non-Muslim States, because Islam does not recognize other regimes or ideologies, and resists and fights such regimes. According to these orientalists what jihad (or holy war) is designed for is to wage war against the infidel states. Those orientalists further claim that Islam is an inherently violent religion. It was spread by the sword in the early stages of its inception, and would be violent again if it became strong enough. If Muslims are not doing this now, it is because Islam is weak. This view has been expressed recently by such figures as Richard Nixon, the former American President, and Samuel Huntington. According to these orientalists Muhammad, as ruler of the Islamic State at to these orientansis management. Madinah became a despot, and Islam itself became a violent and Madinah became a desponsibility of the Madinah beligerent religion. Khadduri<sup>2</sup> claimed that even the Qur'an changed its peaceful accent and reconciliatory language. He claimed that the Qur'anic verses which advocated tolerance and religious coexistence Qur'anic verses which advocate tolerance and religious coexistence and liberties were superseded by what he called the Sword Verse(s). Among the Qur'anic verses that advocate freedom and religious

Let there be no compulsion in religion: truth stands out clear from falsehood. Whoever rejects tyranny, and believes in Allah has grasped the strong rope that never breaks. [al-Baqarah 2:256]

And say: The truth is from your Lord, let him who he chooses to will believe, and let him who chooses to disbelieve do so, at will. [The Cave 18: 29]

Fight in the cause of Allah those who fight you, but do not initiate aggression. For Allah loves not the aggressors. [al-Baqarah 2:190]

Therefore remind them (by giving admonitions) for you are just a reminder. You are not a controller over them. [al-Ghāshiyah 88:21-22]

Could you compel people to become believers (in Allah)? [Yūnus 10:99]

We know best what they say, and you are not a controller over them: so admonish with the Qur'an whoever fears My warning... [Oāf 50:45]

All these Qur'anic verses are Muhkam verses, i.e. definite, not allegorical. They are not known to have been abrogated, so they naturally hold. No reason exists at all to think that they have been overruled. But orientalist Khadduri says that the so-called sword verse has abrogated them.

According to Khadduri, the verses of the sword are verse numbers 5, 29 of Sūrah al-Tawbah:

When the sacred months are passed, then fight and slay the idolaters, whenever you find them, and seize them, and beleague them and ambush them by every possible strategem (of war). But if they repent, and establish regular prayers, and give Zakāt, then make way for them, for God is All-Forgiving, All-Merciful. [al-Tawbah 9:5]

This is the verse of the sword indeed, but its military is in response to that of the idolaters of the Quraysh. It was the Quraysh who persecuted Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him), and his Makkah and eventually forced them to leave the Holy Makkan and eventually rorect them to reave the 1101y (mortheir homeland, leaving behind their wealth and property. But grafther homeiand, leaving better their weather are property. Jet was in which this verse finishes off, advocates tolerance, advocates to real their John green their former insolence. If they indicated their peaceful on and the Muslims or appropriate to take refuge in the camp of the Muslims or distillations, then using to the Qur'an, then they should be allowed to go

fredy, Says God in the immediate next verse: If one of the idolaters ask you for asylum, grant it to him; so that he may hear the Word of God, then escort him to where he can be safe and secure, that is because they are men without knowledge'. [al-Tawbah 9:6]

As we have said before, this verse expresses the peacefulness of Islam and the Prophet's basic desire for peace; that peace is the rule, hostilities are the exception, even with former belligerents and enemies such as the Qurayshites, peaceful coexistence is preferable, should they be willing. The idea is that an enemy may fight the Muslims out of ignorance and hatred, unfounded hatred. Therefore every chance for peace and reconciliation must be seized to educate him, and remove the subjective factors of hate and prejudice.

Immediately following these verses (7 and 8 of Sūrah al-Tawbah), verses which advocate war against the Quraysh idolaters. These say that Qurayshite idolaters have no respect for their covenants or pledges which they made to the Muslims. They were the ones that started aggression and hostilities, and should they prevail over the Muslims, aggression and nosting, heeding neither the bonds of family, nor any pledges or covenants they had made with them. That the advocacy of hostilities against the Quraysh idolaters was a special case, governed by specific circumstances, and historical relations between the Muslims and those idolaters. So any attempt to generalize from that or infer from it that Islam is a violent religion does not hold. In particular, to infer from it that verse 5 (which advocates tolerance and peaceful

Khadduri also gave another verse of Sūrah al-Tawbah which he counted as the second and principal verse of the sword:

Fight those who believe not in God, nor the Last Day, nor hold that forbidden which has been forbidden by Allah and His Messenger, nor acknowledge the religion of Truth (Islam), from those who are the People of the Book, until they pay Jizyah, with willing submission. and until they feel themselves subdued. [al-Tawbah 9:29]

There are a number of remarks which we must first make with reference to the above verse:

Although the verse refers to the People of the Book, in a way, that refers both to the Jews and Christians of the time, yet the Arabic text clearly indicates that this reference is not absolute or general. The Arabic expression (minal-ladhina) clearly indicates that the reference here is to a certain faction, from among the People of the Book, who are characterized as:

- Not believers in God:
- Not believers in the Last Day;
- Non-practising (i.e. they did not observe what God had made forbidden);
- Not acknowledging or recognizing anything in common with (the religion of Truth namely Islam).

If we put this verse in historical perspective, it becomes quite clear whom it is referring to. It is definitely not referring to the Christians in Arabia at that time, who were described elsewhere as believers in God and the Last Day, who uphold religious values and obligations. Most importantly, these People of the Book maintained peaceful and even cordial relations with the Prophet of Islam, and from the start opted for and accepted the citizenship of the Madinah State. Those were the Christians of Najrān in the Yemen, to the south, and the Christians of the Banu Taghlib to the north of Madinah. Both Christian groups were of Arabic stock, visited the Prophet (peace be on him in his Capital, and were very well received by him. Indeed, whith in his capital, and were very well received by nim. Indeed, with crooking the Christians of Najran came, the Prophet (peace be upon the Christians of Najran came) (peace be upon and the christians of realization arms, the report of the christians of realization and kindness, and stended to their needs, with special cordiality and kindness, and stended to their needs, with special cordiality and kindness, and stended to their needs, with special cordiality and kindness, and stended to their needs, with special cordiality and kindness, and stended to their needs, with special cordiality and kindness, and stended to their needs, with special cordiality and kindness. and prayers in his propernited them to perioring them are prayers and with them, and manney indicated their desire of sticking to their faith, he accepted and respected their decision and choice in good faith and cheer, and indrespected uses a Georgia and even gifts. For their part, Malment Talewell, when was in section 2007. The peace of Islam, and declared themselves citizens of the new Muslim State, as well as their willingness to pay the jizyah INT. There were never any ill-feeling between the two groups. This was also the case with the Christians of Banu Taghlib to the north of Madinah. History does not record any such misunderstanding or tension between the Prophet (peace be upon him) and those Arab Christians of Najrān or Taghlib; never a single incident of conflict or discord. Most probably, those Arab Christians tolerated the new blamic authority in Madinah because they recognized that it was doser to them than the Roman authority of Syria or the Persian Authority of al-Ḥīrah, in southern Iraq. Moreover, the Islamic State was not aggressive, but quite tolerant towards them, as Christians.

However, with the other People of the Book, namely the Jews, the story was quite different: First of all, the Jews of Madinah and other enclaves to the north of Madinah were not of Arabic stock. If anything, they showed nothing but arrogance, intransigence, and contempt towards the Arabs, as an ignorant and backward lot.

Although they entertained friendly relations with the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Muslims in the first days of the inception of the Muslim State, and even signed an accord with the Prophet of the Musini (the Sahifah of Madinah) they later violated that accord. Not only that, they declared themselves as allies of the Qurayshite idolaters, and did all they could to incite them to engage our available of the respectives the other nerspectives the other nervectors the other nervector From the other perspectives, those Jews of Madinah were From the other perspectives, those Jews of Iviauman were characterized with haughtiness. They were not particularly religious people either, and some of them took Judaism as a sort of nationalism. Together with this, they were given to belligerency and conflict. They were quite rich, but a substantial source of their wealth came from the fact that they were makers and traders of weaponry. So it was in their interest to fan wars and military conflicts, out of which they stood to gain handsome dividends. They were also quite lax in their way of living, given to wine drinking, and the practice of usury. Therefore, it was quite obvious that the Jews of that time and place were the ones meant in the above verse, and not the Arab Christians. The advocacy of hostilities with them was dictated by their belligerent and aggressive attitudes towards the Prophet and the Muslim State of Madinah! In a way, it is a reaction to their misdeeds, and scheming, against the Muslims.

This reading of those verses which Khadduri called the 'sword verses' and which he claimed abrogated the verses advocating tolerance cited above, is not borne out by the facts of history. Moreover, Khadduri has never demonstrated that these verses were abrogated. Khadduri's failure to read those verses in their historical perspective is responsible, in a large measure, for his inability to read correctly the Islamic theory of international relations. In addition to this, he failed to take into account the cordial relations that existed between the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Christians of Najrān and those of Banū Taghlib.

It is really surprising that Khadduri should fail to read the Qur'ān in a more comprehensive and objective way, given that he was of Arabic stock, and knew the Arabic language and culture. For there is an abundance of Qur'ānic verses which admonish the Muslims to maintain cordial relations with the People of the Scripture generally, so long as they do not wage war on, or start hostilities with the Muslims. We will quote just one clear and comprehensive Qur'ānic verse as an example:

God forbids you not, with regard to those who did not fight you because of your faith, nor did they drive you out of your homes,

Epilogue

Epilogue

God loves those who fought you, for food dealing kindly and justly with them, for God loves those who fought you, with regard to those who fought you, with regard to those and supported for justless of your faith, drove you out of your homes, and supported are justless of your faith, drove you out to them for friendship and because of your faith, drove you turn to them for friendship and others in driving you out that you turn to them for friendship and others in driving you out that you turn to them for friendship and others in driving you out that you turn to them for friendship and others in driving all Muntahinah 60:8-9]

These verses 8 and 9 of Sūrah Al-Mumtaḥinah; (the woman worder it quite clear that there was nothing wrong if the examined), made it quite clear that there was nothing wrong if the made it quite clear that there was nothing wrong if the examined, made it quite clear that there was nothing wrong if the examined with the jews or Christians, so long as these remained with the jews or Christians, so long as these remained with the jews or Christians, so long as these remained with the jews or Christians, so long as these remained with the jews or Christians, so long as the second control of the jews of Christians, so long as the jews of Chris

The conduct of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his Caliphs pacific in their intentions and actions. after him, give ample evidence of the tolerant and relaxed way, with which People of the Book were treated, by the Muslim State and society: Muslims used to visit the Jews of Madinah (before the breaking out of hostilities), have dialogue, and shared food with them, marry their girls, and have commerce with them. It is known that the Prophet (peace be upon him) married a Jew from Khaybar, namely Şafiyyah bint Huyayy ibn al-Akhtab, the daughter of the vanquished chief of Khaybar. Although she was indeed beautiful, the Prophet (peace be upon him) had married her out of compassion, seeing that both her husband and father had been killed in the fighting. She came to him seeking his help, to avert falling into slavery, as was then the custom that slavery was the lot of captives of war. We have already discussed above the dream (narrated in Muslim historical sources: Ibn Hishām, lbn Sa'd and others) of Şafiyyah, long before the battle of Khaybar took place. When she came to him, the Prophet (peace be upon him) offered to marry her, and she consented without hesitation. Although offered to marry ner, and Safiyyah's family tried to poison the Prophet (peace be upon him) Safiyyah's tamuy tree battle, offering him a poisoned shoulder of roast lamb, knowing it to be the Prophet's favourite dish, the Prophet (peace be upon him) was not deterred, and the marriage took place. The Prophet held Safiyyah in high esteem, cherished and loved her. The Prophet new party and to be quite jealous of her, once remarked: 'I

The Prophet was angered by her remark.

'O 'A'ishah you have just uttered a word that, if it were mixed with the ocean, it would have made it dirty! Moreover, how could you call her a Jewess when she has embraced Islam, and become a good Muslim!'

The Prophet (peace be upon him) used to treat the Jews of Madinah, who opted to stay after the banishment of their settlement, with obvious compassion and care. He continued to have commercial dealing with them, including borrowing money from them. It was said that when the Prophet (peace be upon him) died, his shield was mortgaged to a Jew. When the Prophet was living in Makkah before the hijrah, he had a Jewish neighbour, who used to throw garbage in the Prophet's yard, almost every day. Then the throwing stopped for some time. The Prophet (peace be upon him) went to visit his Jewish neighbour, to see what was wrong with him, that he stopped throwing garbage in his yard, and he found him ill in bed. The Prophet continued to visit him and send gifts to him, until he became well again. The Jew was so moved by the Prophet's behaviour that he embraced Islam.

The Prophet's second Caliph, 'Umar ibn al Khattāb, found one old Jew begging in the streets of Madinah. He was moved by compassion, at this sight, that he ordered for a permanent pension from the state treasury. The Caliph 'Alī ibn Abī Tālib, the fourth Caliph, contested the ownership of a shield with a Jew, who had actually stolen it from him. But the Muslim judge, finding the evidence advanced by 'Alī inconclusive, gave his verdict in favour of the Jew.

It is not our purpose here to enter into a lengthy discussion of the status of non-Muslims in a Muslim State. That status is outlined by the Qur'an itself, and detailed in the sunnah of the Prophet (peace be upon him), but the subject lies beyond the scope of the present

The Qur'an stipulates that both marriage to women of the People of the Book, and eating their food are lawful for the Muslims.

1 THE SPECIAL STATUS OF THE PEOPLE OF THE BOOK 2. THE SPECIAL STATUS OF THE FEOFLE OF THE BOOK

The People of the Book have a special status in Islam is well this indeed a very privileged of the status in Islam is well-That the People or the pour nave a special status in Islant 15 went believed in the land of the land o Movin, if he does not believe in the Prophethood of both Moses Muslim, if he goes not believe in the Frophethous of Bour-Prioses, and Jesus Christ. Further, he is enjoined to show great veneration, and Jesus Curist. Turcines, the 13 enjource to 3110 W 51 are to 17 or 18 respectant love for them. The Floring Peace of the Property of 2001ceptual, religious and legal framework, it would indeed be very Odd for the Prophet (peace be upon him) to have waged unprovoked War against the People of the Book. The only feasible explanation for the outbreak of hostilities between the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Jews of Madinah, must be the political one. The responsibility for these hostilities must be placed squarely on the shoulders of the

Some orientalists cite the invasion of Byzantine and Persian Empires by the Muslims, as a conclusive proof that Islam is an lews themselves. aggressive and belligerent religion. However, it is well known that the Romans, in particular, were a massing huge forces on the northern frontier of the Muslim State of Madinah. They had stationed large forces to invade Madinah, for this reason the Prophet (peace be upon him) mounted the Mu'tah and Tabūk expeditions.

The hostile intent of the Romans is borne out, not just by their amassing of soldiers, but by encouraging opposition inside Madīnah itself. Apparently, they were able to monitor events inside Madinah, through their agents and spies:

- a. When Jabalah ibn al Aytham apostatized, they summoned him to Constantinople and he went there. They were obviously monitoring every small event in the Muslim State.
- b. When Ka'b ibn Mālik, one of the three Muslims who failed to when Ka to ton mann, on the orders of the Day of the Da by the Muslims on the orders of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the instructions of the Qur'an, the Roman secret agents came to him in Madinah, with gifts and money, and told him that

@ 290 D

We have been a supply a financial of the later the supply of the supply of the later than the la

Islam is very accommodating and conciliatory towards other religions. It acknowledges Moses and Jesus Christ, as true and authentic Apostles of God Almighty. Muslims are allowed to mix freely with the People of the Book:

- · To eat their food;
- To visit their homes and invite them into their Muslim homes:
- To marry their women, without requiring them to convert to Islam and:
- To be kind and charitable to them, so long as they maintain peaceful relations with the Muslims. Many Qur'anic verses emphasize these notions.

In addition, the Qur'an advises courteous dialogue, and friendly and kind exchanges with the People of the Book:

Do not argue with the People of the Book unless you do so in the fairer way - except in the case of those of them who do wrong, and say, we believe in what has been revealed unto us and what has been revealed unto you, and our Lord, and your lord is One and the same and we are submissive unto Him. [al-'Ankabūt 29:46]

The emphasis here is on dialogue, and not conflict, emphasizing what is shared rather than what is controversial, valuing friendly relations, rather than hostilities. Islam commends exchange of views and dialogue and not clash between societies and civilizations, knowing very well that the luminous truth will triumph at the end of the day: Says God, in the Qur'an:

It is Him who has sent His Messenger with the true guidance, and the true authentic religions that He will make prevail (over all religions) despite the displeasure of the associationists. [as-Ṣaff 61:9]

Subḥānaka Allāhumma wa biḥamdika, Ashhadu an Ilāha Illā Anta...

Notes and References

1. Verse 39 of Sūrah al-Ḥajj was revealed in the tenth year of Hijrah. 2. A fifth expedition against Quraysh was led by Zayd ibn Ḥarithah al-Kalbī,

He intercepted a caravan belonging to Quraysh, led by Şafwan ibn in the third year of the Hijrah, after Badr. Umayyah, won all the caravan and captured one of its men, by the name of Furat ibn Hayyan, who later became a Muslim. The same Zayd is said to have led and of having won a caravan on the Red Sea Coast in the sixth

3. Vide. Majid Khadduri, War and Peace in the Law of Islam, John Hopkins Press, Baltimore, 1955.

- Muhammad ibn al-Ḥasan as-Shaybānī Siyar, Translated by M. Khadduri, titled as: The Islamic Law of Nations, John Hopkins Press, Baltimore, 1966.
- Joseph Schacht, The Origins of Muhammadan Jurisprudence Oxford University Press, 1979 (paperback).
- Conversity Free:
   Muslim states were forced into coexistence peacefully
   Khadduri believes that Muslim states were forced into coexistence peacefully by other nations, i.e. by their own weakness. The theoretical level, Muslims remain committed to the Verse of the Sword al-Tawbah 9:29.
- remain committee to the Color of the Standard Theory of International Standard Theory of International Institute of Islamic Though the Standard Theory of International Vide, Dr. Abdul Hannu Abb. State of Islamic Thought, Washington, USA,

Dr. Abu Sulyman's account seems to be more tilted in the direction Dr. Abu Sulyman's account seems to be more titled in the direction of emphasising the temporal aspect of Shari'ah and discounting, in an account of emphasising the more basic eternal divine aspect is a large of of emphasising the temporar aspect of onarr an and discounting, in an unwarrantly degree, the more basic eternal divine aspect in dealing with unwarrantly degree, the more paste eternal divine aspect in dealing with the issues of war and peace in the Prophet's early stage of Islamic history. the issues of war and peace in the Prophet's early stage of Islamic history.

6. Vide: Yusuf Talal De Lorenzo's translation of Muhammad al-Ghazali's work:

Remembrance and Prayer. The Way of the Prophet Muhammad al-Ghazali's work: Nide: New York: Vide: New York: Way of the Prophet Muhammad al-Ghazali's work: Foundation UK, 1986, pp. 184.

- 7. This hadith is narrated by Muslim.
- This hadith is narrated by Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal, Imam Abū Dāwūd

It is significant to note that both the Qur'anic verse (8:60) of Sūrah al-Anfal (War Spoils) and the ahadith of the Prophet, referred to above. footnotes 30, 31, consist of warning against the enemies and their designs. and they seem to imply that (a) those enemies are prone to aggression against the Muslims because of the latter's proclamation of religious freedom and their stance against Towaghir (tyrants and oppressive forces). (b) that weakness is an open invitation for the invaders and aggressors, (c) that a cardinal strategy of defence is to be strong and appear strong; this will deter the enemy, (d) these texts of Qur'an (8.60) and ahadith of the Prophet (peace be upon him) do not incite the Muslims to initiate wars and conflicts, but merely to prepare and be ready for them and to intimidate the enemy that, if that enemy is speculating aggression against them, aggression will not go unpunished, that the Muslims are both able and willing to retaliate. These considerations, together with what we called the lenient Qur'anic text, which command kindness and compassion towards the People of the Book and forbid the Muslims to use harsh words in their debate, seem to mitigate against what I called 'the militant understanding' of the verse of the award as the final ruling over the issue of how to deal with the People

The verse of the sword was revealed on the occasion of the Battle of Tabuk against the Romans who initiated hostilities against the Muslims. firstly by killing the Propher's ambassador al-Hārith abn "Urnayr al-Ardi. and secondly by a massing soldiers on the northern borders of the Muslim

CHAPTER II

- 1. Ibn Hisham, Ibn Sa'd, al-Waqidi, al-Tahari and Ibn Karbir. Conflict and war, in the Qur'anic conception of things, are ways and means which sometimes becomes necessary, to defeat and vanquish the forces of evil and Satan, which otherwise could not be defeated. Just war becomes an important and legitimate instrument by means of which God propels (yadfa') some people by the means of others. This is the 'Daf' Allah' to which the Qur'an refers more than once. See, Zakaria Bashiev: Sunshine at
- 3. Ibid, p. 144. However, al-Waqidi gives another/other versions of the number of those killed and captured at Badr, from among the Qurzysh unbelievers version, puts the number of those killed at 45, while another puts number of these killed at 73. There is similar disagreement as to the numbers of apones. In Hisham, Sirië, al-Ḥalabi, Cairo, 1955 Vol. 111, p. 644.

Zalaria Bashier, Sureshine at Madinah, Islamic Foundation, Leicester, 6 Zikiria Bashier, Hijirah, Story and Significance, The Islamic Foundation, Lexister, 1983.

In Hishim, vol. 11. Al-Halabi edition, p. 43, 644. Nimess the statement of Salamah ibn Salamah when entering Madinah after the Burile, with the Prophet, in reply to the congratulations of the Madinans, that the war was too exally won, 'as the army of the Quraysh consisted of no more than baild-braded old soldiers.' See also the statement of Abû Sufvân. ibs al-Härith and 'Abd al-Muttalib of Banú Häshim when asked by Abû Lahah, 'How was it, son of my brothers?' Abû Sufyan ibn al-Harith said: I do not blame Qurawsh for the defeat, for by God, we met men in white metume, riding on piebald horses between the sky and the earth. For by God. nothing could stand in front of them, and nothing could escape their blows. Somebody present, by the name of Abū Rāfi', commented: 'These are indeed angris. Abu Lahab hit him hard, and when Abu Rāfi ' repeated his statement about the angels' interference. Abu Lahab threw him on the ground, and sat on top of him, hirring as hard as he could in his mad anger. Ibn Hishām, Vol.

These verses were revealed in the wake of the affair of the Jews of Banu-Osymmet, and it refers to the intercession of both 'Abdullah ibn Salūl, the Deputings , and it is a support of the Madinan hypocrites, and Sa'd ibn 'Ubādah, the Companion of the Prophet and head of the Khazraj, who was an age old ally of Jews. of the Prophet and beauty of Jews.
Henceforth, the Muslims were forbidden to take friends and confidants Henceforth, the Man the Man among the Jews of Madinah, since it was then total war between two groups. The verses strongly condemned the intercession of Ibn Salūl but that groups. The verses are any common as it did out of good faith and good of lbn 'Ubadah was pardomed, coming as it did out of good faith and good of lbn 'Ubadah, together with many other A. a. it of the 'Ubadah was parasis of the control of the Co intentions, as the county general and any other administrations, at the time still harbouted love and friendship to their jewish compatriots, unaware of and harboured love ma transcription our period compatitors, unaware of their guiles and achieves against Muslims – hence the Qur'anic reminders the need for a second reminders. their guiles and schemes against annuant — hence the Qur anic reminders and educational remarks signaling the need for a new orientation on the

15: 296 SM

452 297 Edw

Another Qur'anic verse which singled out the Madinan Jews as foremost among the enemies of Muslims must have been revealed at that time, when among meeticance of the relations between Muslims and Jews reached their climax of mistrust. hostility and enmity. You will find, (Muḥammad), the most hostile of men to those who believe are the Jews and the polytheist, and you will find the nearest of them in affection to those who believe are those who say: "Surely we are Christians that is because, there are among them priests and monks. and because they were not proud."

This verse, if read in conjunction with verse 5:51 raises the question of whether this hostility between Muslims and Jews is an eternal one, or one merely anchored in historical accidents related to the Madinan Jew? Or is it perhaps anchored in an ever-lasting clash between cultural identity of the two groups? One factor militating against the second possibility is that the Muslims and Jews of Madinah did enjoy an interval of peace, mutual love and friendship in the pre-Badr period. That this did take place is, in part, attested to by the Our'anic injunctions to the Muslims to cease regarding the Jews of Madinah as friends and confidence, injunctions to which we have been referring. Another reason, which tends to mitigate against the second possibility, is also provided by the status of Ahl al-Kitah, accorded to the Jews by the Qur'an itself. However, this issue is a complex one, and it could very well turn out that the hostility in question is not a passing facade, but of some groups, as a matter of fact. Though, theoretically speaking, peaceful coexistence remains an open possibility.

- 2. In the first year of the Hijrah, The Prophet (peace be upon him) made a pact with the Jews of Madinah, laying down the following terms:
  - a. Anyone of the Jews, who joined us (as a citizen of Madinah), will be defended, protected and helped, on equal footing with other citizens, not wronged or abandoned.
  - The Jews will contribute towards the expenditure of war, and will join as fighters if they so-wished.
  - c. The Jews will be part of the Ummah of Islam, as citizens; however they will be free to practise their religion, as will the Muslims.
  - The Jews will be free to have followers, and alliances, except those who committed a crime or a wrongdoing against the Muslims.
  - However, should the Jews opt to go out of Madinah, they should secure the permission of the Prophet, before they do so.
  - The Jews will be obligated to come to the help of the Muslims, should an enemy attack Madinah, and they bear the expenses, in doing so, as
  - will the defenders among the Muslims also bear their expenses. The parties to this 'Sahifah' will help and support each other against anybody who fight the People of this Sahifah (be they Muslims or non-Muslims). They shall advise each other and consult each other, non-Muslims). They snall advise each other and consult each other in good charitable deeds, but not in evil or they will help each other in good charitable deeds, but not in evil or wrong deeds.

Yathrib will be a Ḥaram (an inviolable sanctuary) for all parties to this pact. A neighbour is exactly like the self, not harmed, or stand accused

WIMOUT TEASURE.

Anyone committing a crime will not be given a sanctuary in Yathrib,

Should any disagreement or conflict arise between parties to this pact, it should be referred to God and to the Prophet (peace be upon him) as juuge and alone.

This pact should be accepted freely and with full approval, as God and His party from among the Mu'minun have freely and gladly accepted

m. Parties to this pact will not give refuge to anyone from the Quraysh, or to anyone who is a supporter of the Quraysh. Parties to this pact will all come to the defence of Yathrib, should it be attacked by any enemy, and if the people of Yathrib should decide to conclude a peace agreement with anyone, the Jews should uphold that peace agreement alongside with the Muslims.

The text of this pact is given by Ibn Hishām, in Vol. 2, p. 149-150 of the version of Dar al-Qalam, Beirut (No date given).

- version of Dar at Qalam, Beirut, (No date given) vol. 3, p. 3. Ibn Hishām, the edition of Dār al-Qalam, Beirut, (No date given) vol. 3, p.
- 4. Al-Tabari ibn Jarir: Jāmiʿ al-Bayān ʿan Ta'wil āy al-Qur'ān (Arabic), Dār al-Fikr, Beirut, 1982 vol.3, p. 60-65.
- al-rikt, Beitus, 752 5. Sayyid Quth Fi Zilāl al-Qur'ān, Dār al-Shurūq, Cairo, 1973 Vol.1, p. 431-435.
- 435.
  6. Ibn Hishām, Dār al-Qalam edition, Beirut, (No date given) vol.3, page 55. 7. Ibn Hishām, Dār al-Qalam edition vol, 3, page 50.
- 8. Al-Tawbah [9:99].
- 8. Al-Tawbah (9:99).
  9. Al-Tawbah (9:99) which reads; 'and of the Arab Bedouins, there is that who Al-Tawbah (9:99) which the Last Day, and takes that which he expends and also the prayers of the Messengers as acceptable offering in the sight of God; surely, prayers of the Messenger of them. God will bring them into His Mercy.
- Surely God is Forgiving, were in.

  10. Al-Tawbah 9:97,98, verses that denounce these hypocritical Bedouins are live Al-Tawbah 9:97, 98, verses that unique these hypocritical Bedouins are live in the Qur an, viz. Verses 49:14:101. Verse 49:14 of Sūrah al-Ḥujurāt records as follows: 'The Arab Bedouins said we believe Say (O Muḥammad). You do not (as yet) believe but say "We surrender" for belief has not yet entered your hearts. It is such Qur'anic verses which seem to give a very strong impression that, in the Qur'anic scheme of things, civility and urbanism are by far the favourite mode of living and his constant condemnation of civility and city-dwelling in his famous Muqaddimah.

- 11. Al-Waqidi: al-Maghāzi, Vol. 1 (No date given) see his account of the Battle of Uhud.
- 12. Ibid.
- 13. Ibid, (al-Wāqidī -vol.1).
- 14. Ibn Hishām, vol. 3, page 68 (al-Qalam edition).
- 15. Al-Wāgidī vol. 1.
- 16. Ibn Sa'd al -Tabaqāt al-Kubrā, vol. 2, page 40, Dār Ṣādir, Beirut (No date given).
- 17. It is narrated by some sirah sources, that the Prophet (peace be upon him) vowed, in the wake of the martyrdom of Hamzah, his uncle, and the mutilation of his body by Hind bint Abī Sufyān, to mutilate the bodies of thirty of the Qurayshite polytheists, but God forbade him from doing so. Vide, Sūrah al-Nahl (16:126); also ibn Hishām, vol. 3, page (101).
- 18. Ibn Sa'd: al-Tabaqāt al-Kubrā, vol. 2, page 44, Dār Ṣādir, Beirut, (No date
- 19. Ibn Hisham, vol. 3, p. 85.
- 20. Ibn Hishām, vol. 3, page 89; Al-Qalam edition.
- 21. Ibid, p. 86.
- 22. The Prophet's beautiful, radiant face turned into a hardness, like that of steel, when he became angry, and his eyes became red, and none could then dare look him in the face.
- 23. The Prophet's bravery was amply demonstrated in the battles of Uhud, and Hunayn, being rare occasions, on which he did actual fighting. 'Ali ibn Abi Talib, legendary for his bravery, said that, when the battles reached their most fierce moments, they used to protect themselves by fighting from behind the Prophet, taking him as a protection shield.
- 24. Ibn Hishām, al-Qalam edition vol. 3, p. 79.
- 25. Ibid, vol. 3, p. 79.
- 26. Ibn Hishām, vol. 3, p. 99.
- 27. Ibid, vol. 3, p. 99.
- 28. Ibid, vol. 3, p. 104.

CHAPTER IV

1. Ibn Hishām; vol. (II) al-Ḥalabi edition, 2nd impression, Cairo, 1955, p.

2 [hn Hishām; vol. (II), al-Ḥalabī edition, 2nd impression, Cairo, 1955, p. 1833. lbn Hishām; vol. (II), al-Ḥalabī edition, 2nd impression, Cairo, 1955, p. 86. M. H. Haykal: The Life of Muhammad, Translated by Ismail Faruqi, The N. H. Haykai: The Life of Trush Publications, 1976 U.S.A., P. 281-285.

North America Hustrum Cattons, 1970 Group, P. 2017.
5. Ibn Hishâm; vol. (III), Dâr al-Fikt, Damascus (n.d.), p. 187.

1. Ibn Hishām narrates (vol 3, p. 225) that when the Qurayshite polytheists asked the Jews of Banu al-Nadir whether Muḥammad's new religion was CHAPTER V better or their idol-worshipping, the Jews replied without hesitation: Your religion is better, and you are more worthy of the true religion

Furthermore, the Jews vowed to the Qurayshites to fight with them against Muhammad and his Muslim followers until they were completely

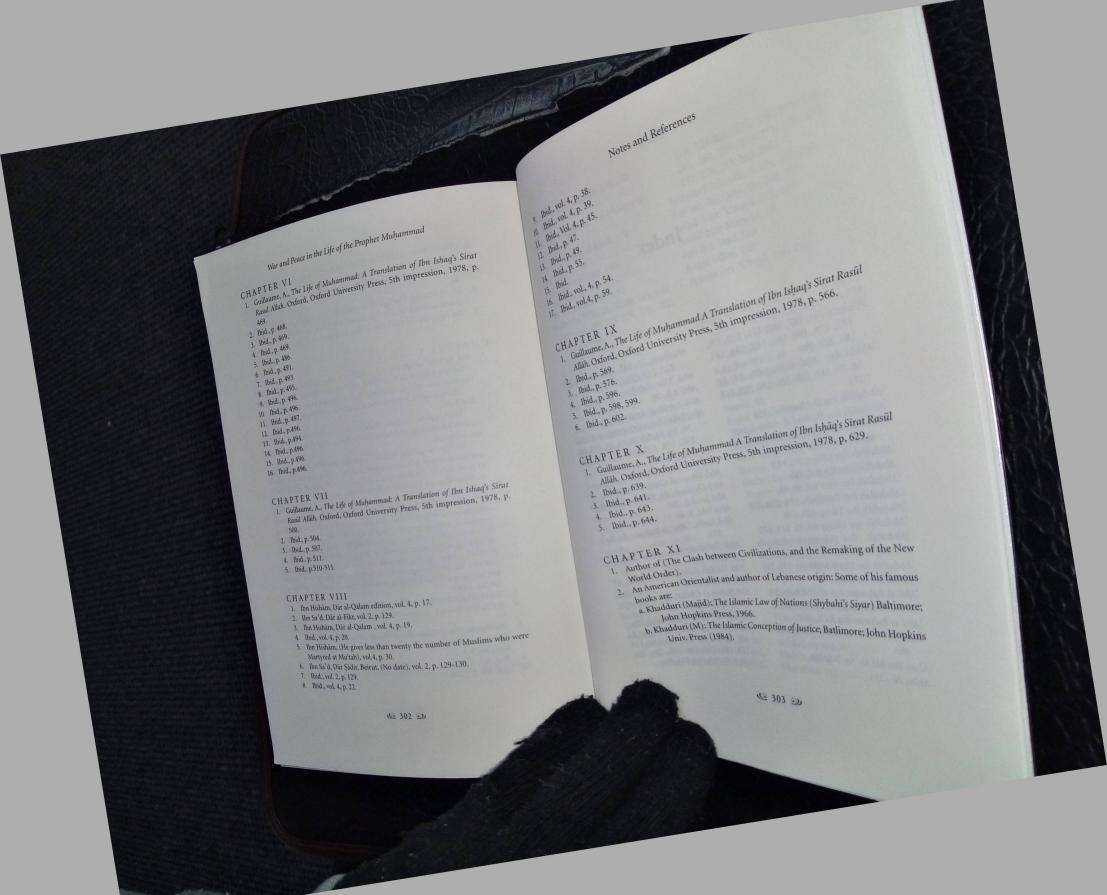

The Qur'an al-Nisa' 4:54, attributes this state of the Jews to their envy and invidiousness, because Prophethood used to be among the descendents of Jacob (Israel), but Muḥammad was Arabian of the seed of Ismā ʿīl, son of Abraham through Hājir, the Egyptian former slave-girl.

- 2. Ibn Hishām narrated that some of the hypocrites excused themselves from participating in the digging of the Trench, or worked without any vigour or enthusiasm, or even slipped out of the camp, secretly and without taking permission from the Prophet (peace be upon him). But the Qur'an exposed their ill designs. Says Allah in the Qur'an, exposing the hypocrites' misdeeds of slipping out of the camp without being noticed, and without taking permission from the Prophet (peace be upon him): 'God knows those of you who slip away surreptitiously; so let those who against His command you who sup awa; beware, lest a trial befall them, or there befall them a painful chastisement.
  - (al-Nur 24.05).

    3. Ibn Hishām, Dār al-Qur'ān, Beirut (no date given) vol. 3, p. 231.
  - 3. Ibn Hishām, Dar al-Qui all, Dar Ṣādir, Beirut (no date given) vol. 2, p. 4. Ibn Sa'd al-Ṭabaqāt al-Kubrā, Dār Ṣādir, Beirut (no date given) vol. 2, p. 69.
    5. Ibn Hishām, Dār al-Qalam, Beirut (no date given) vol. 3, p. 242.

  - 8. Ibid., vol. 3, p. 247.
  - 9. Ibid., vol. 3, p. 249.

@ 300 D

Index

177, 178, 180, 181, 182, 184, 185, 186, 289, 290 'Abbās ibn 'Abd al-Muttalib, Al- 54, 56, 75, 217, 228, 229, 230, 239, 247, 'Abdullāh ibn al-Muqaffa', 259 Abdullāh ibn Hadrad al-Aslamī, 246 'Abdullāh ibn Jahsh, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 90, 96 98 103 139 'Abdullāh ibn Jubayr, 81, 94 'Abdullāh ibn Khatal, 240 'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd, 60, 61 'Abdullāh ibn Rawāḥah, 219, 220, 221 'Abdullāh ibn Ṭāriq, 129, 130 Abdullah ibn Ubayy 69, 91, 113, 122 Abdullah ibn Umayyah ibn al-Mughirah, 228 'Abdullāh ibn Umm Maktūm, 170, 241 Abdullāh ibn Unays, 107 'Abd al-Raḥmān, son of Abū Bakr, 50 'Abd al-Rahman [Ibn 'Awf], 59, 243 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Ka'b, 259 'Abd Yalayl ibn 'Amr ibn 'Amr, 264, Aban Ibn Abi al- 'As, 265, 266 Ablaq Al-, 211

'A'ishah, 101, 167, 168, 171, 175, 176,

Abraham, 71, 144, 189, 190, 204, 223, 227, 232, 236, 237, 238, 267 Abū 'Ubaydah ibn al-Jarrāh, 85 Abū Afk, 70 Abū Ayyūb al-Anṣārī, 183 Abū Bakr [Ibn Abī Quḥāfah; al-Ṣiddīq], 39, 50, 54, 57, 76, 85, 88, 100, 131, 132, 176, 177, 179, 184, 185, 195, 200, 248, 265 Abū Basīr, 203, 204, 224 Abū Dharr al-Ghifari, 172, 261 Abū Dujānah, 84, 87, 88, 90, 92, 93, 98 Abū Jandal, 203 Abū Jahl, 5, 40, 51, 59, 60, 61 Abū Laylā, 'Abd al-Rahmān ibn Ka'b, 259 Abū Lubābah ibn al-Mundhir, 161, 162 Abū Nā'ilah (Silkān ibn Salamah), 87 Abū Quhāfah, 100 Abū Ruḥm al-Ghifari, 87 Abū Saʿīd al-Khudrī, 79 Abū Salamah ibn 'Abd al-Asad, 106 Abū Sufyān [Ibn Harb], 6, 39, 40, 53, 67, 82, 90, 91, 92, 100, 126, 135, 136, 154, 155, 156, 225, 226, 229, 230, 237, 243, 244, 251, 266

Index abi sufran ibn al. Ḥārith, 228, 248 ,850 Jaille, 12 ,850 Umm Kulthum ibn Husayn alabū iá qub Ishaq al-Kindi, 274 4bū'l-'Awjā', 218 Abil-Bara ibn 'Amr, 130 Adiy) ibn Ḥātim, 272, 273 Aury Marithah Al-, 252 Ati iun iyanunan 1747, 2007, Ati ibn Abi Talib, 42, 58, 88, 155, 159, 177, 198, 215, 225, 226, 231, 237, 240, 242, 248, 290 'Amir ibn 'Awf, 81 Amir ibn Tufayl, 130, 131 Amir ibn Umayyah al-Damari, 131 'Amr ibn 'Abd Wudd, 146 'Amr ibn al-'Āṣ, 169, 205 'Amr ibn al-Ḥaḍramī, 7 'Amr ibn Hisham, 5, 53, 59 'Amr ibn Humam Ibn al-Jamuh, 259 'Amr ibn Jahsh Ibn Ka'b, 132 'Amr ibn Salim, 224 Amr ibn Umayyah, 131, 132, 169, 264 'Agangal, 46 'As Al-, 5, 205 'Āṣ ibn al-Rabī' Al-, 54 Ashir Al-, 204 'Ashirah Al-, 11 'Āṣim ibn Thābit, 85, 129 'Awf ibn al-Harith, 49, 50 Abyssinia, 1, 32, 60, 75, 82, 85, 124, 169, 193, 194, 215, 217, 223, 243, 248, 250 Adhri'āt, 68 Afghanistan, 92 Amlaj, 228 Anas ibn al-Nadr, 84, 98 Arabia, 2, 3, 5, 8, 9, 10, 13, 16, 30, 31, 32, 38, 51, 55, 60, 61, 62, 67, 70, 102, 103, 136, 140, 146, 156, 157, 169, 186, 187, 191, 205-213, 215-

218, 224-226, 237, 238, 251, 255, 263, 264, 267, 269-271, 274, 275, 277, 279, 281, 282, 286 Arabian Peninsula, 5, 103, 215, 282 Ash'ath ibn Qays Al-, 274, 275 Asma' bint 'Umays, 215, 223 Asmā' bint Marwān, 70 Aws ibn 'Awf, 265 Ayman ibn 'Ubayd, 248, 250 Awtas valley, 245 Badr. 65, 66, 67,68, 70, 71, 75, 76, 93, 108, 113, 115, 122, 135, 136, 138, 143, 146, 150, 155, 156, 179, 185, 226, 227 Bakr ibn Wā'il, 74 Barā' ibn 'Āzib Al-, 79 Barakah, 85, 248, 250 Basrah, 61 Batha' desert, 223 Bawat, 14 Bilāl [Ibn Rabāḥ], 59, 60, 124 Bishr ibn al-Barā' ibn Ma'rūr, 87 Bosnia, 92 Budayl ibn Warqā' al-Khuzā'ī, 224 Buşayri Al-, 257 Busrā, 219 Caesar, 195, 212, 292 Chosroe, 195, 292

David, 33 Dermenghem, [Emile] 141 Dhāt al-Riqā', 141 Dhãt Aşlah, 218 Deedat, Ahmed, 35 Dhū 'Amr, 74 Dhũ Awān, 262

Dimâm ibn Tha 'labah, 270, 271 Dūmah, 263 Dūmat al-Jandal, 141 Durayd ibn al-Şimmah, 245, 246

Eriterea, 93 Ethiopia, 93

Fadak, 206, 207, 213, 214, 216, 218, 251 Fadj ibn al. 'Abbās Al-, 248 Faruqi Ismail Al-, 141

Gabriel, 45, 58, 160, 162, 163, 167, 226, 234, 262, 270 Ghadish ibn 'Abdullāh, 218

Hadramavt, 274, 292
Hagar, 190
Hagarites, 71, 190
Hakim ibn 'iAmr Al-, 265
Hakim ibn Hishām, 59
Hakim ibn Hisām, 251
Halimah al-Sa' diyyah, 249
Hamnah birt Habh, 176
Hamna' al-Asad, 107, 125, 126, 137, 138
Hamzah [Ibn 'Abd al-Muṭṭalib], 5, 6, 82, 83, 84, 85 on on

82, 83, 84, 85, 90, 98, 100, 103, 104, 105, 114, 117, 119, 156, 243, 244 Hanzalah, ghasil al-malai ikah, 90, 91, 92, 98 Harim Ibn 'Abdullah, 259 Harim Ibn 'Abdullah, 131 Harih Ibn 'Umayral-Azdi Al-, 219 Harih Ibn Abi Dirar Al-, 172

Hārith ibn Hishām Al-, 251 Harrah, 77, 80 Hāshim, 12, 54, 204 Hassān ibn Thābit, 176, 180, 183, 185, 269

Hāṭib ibn Abi Balta ʿah, 87 Hāṭim al-Ṭaʾi, 271, 272 Hawdhah ibn Qays, 143 Hjiāz, 156, 213, 274 Hilāl ibn Umayyah, 259 Himyar, 275, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282 Hind bint ʿUtbah, 67, 82, 230, 243, 244 Hirah Al-, 287 Hishām ibn ʿAmr, 252

Hubāb ibn al-Mundhir Al-, 41, 85 Hubayrah ibn Wahb, 146 Hudaybiyah Al-, 204-209, 211, 213, 215-217, 223, 224, 226, 234, 251 Hudhayfah ibn al-Yamān, 153, 154 Hulays ibn 'Alqamah Al-, 194, 197

Hunayn, 247, 249, 250, 257, 259, 261, 263, 265 Huwayrith ibn Nuqaydh Al-, Huwaytib ibn al- Uzzā, 240 Huyayy ibn Akhṭab, 143, 147

Ibn Hishām, 78, 80, 88, 125, 128, 131, 175, 208, 214, 215, 219, 220, 221, 222, 231, 250, 262, 263, 289
Ibn Rushd, 190
Ibn Sa'd, 219, 220, 231, 232, 250, 251, 289
'Ikrimah ibn Abi Jahl, 146, 152, 231,

240 Imra'al-Qays, 212, 274 India, 31, 256

Iraq, 71, 74, 287, 292 'Irbāḍ ibn Sāriyah al-Fazārī, 259 ming Washington, 141

pair, 71

Jamael, 190, 223, 236, 237, 238, 267

ifaribn Abī Sufyān, 248
ishlah ibn al-Aytham, 291
ishlah ibn Hanbal, 248
ishribn Salamah, 131
ishribn 'Abdullāh, 197
isob, 71, 159, 181
ishish, 172
Jamīlah bint 'Abdullāh ibn Ubayy ibn Salūl, 91
isrūd ibn 'Amr Al-, 271
idd ibn Qays Al-, 257
iohn [the Baptist], 33 iudah, 71
iuhfah Al-, 228
juwayriyyah bint al-Ḥārith, 175

Ka'b ibn 'Umayr, 218 Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, 70, 71, 132, 168 Ka'b ibn Asad, 147 Ka'b ibn Zayd, 131 Ka'b ibn Zuhayr, 255, 256, 257 Kadā', 231 Khadduri, 283,284,286,288 Khadijah, 55 Khālid ibn al-Bakīr, 129 Khālid ibn al-Walīd, 95, 99, 114, 136, 137, 165, 169, 192, 205, 221, 231, 242, 249, 263, 281 Khālid ibn Sufyān, 107 Khandamah Al-, 231, 234 Khaybar, 142, 144, 168, 169, 205-218, 224, 251, 289 Khirāsh ibn al-Şimmah, 87 Khirāsh ibn Umayyah, 196 Khubayb ibn 'Adiyy, 129, 130, 170

Index
Kinānah ibn Abī Ḥuqayq, 143
Kindah, 274, 275, 280, 282
Kindah, 231
Kudayd Al-, 228
Kurz ibn Jābir al-Fihrī, 14

Lammens, 141 Lebanon, 31

Majdi ibn 'Amr, 245
Makhramah ibn Nawfal, 252
Makhzūm ibn 'Abd al-Dār, 81
Makkah, 1-7, 10, 11, 17, 38-40, 45, 53-55, 59, 61, 70, 71, 75, 81, 87-90, 92, 102, 107, 113, 114, 125, 130, 135, 136, 137, 143, 156, 166, 167, 169, 170, 186, 187, 191-197, 199, 203, 204, 206, 215-219, 212, 223-226, 257, 259, 261, 263, 265, 274, 275, Mālit ib.

Mālik ibn 'Awf, 245 Mālik ibn Anas, 88 Mālik ibn Dukhshum, 262

@ 306 D

© 307 D

Mālik ibn Murrah, 278, 279 Mālik ibn Zāfilah, 219 Marthad ibn Abi Marthad al-Ghanawi, Marhaba, 211, 212 42, 129 Maymunah bint al-Hārith, 217 Mihras Al-, 87 Miqdad ibn 'Amr Al-, 39, 87, 170 Miqdad ibn al-Aswad Al-, 170 Miqyās ibn Subābah, 240 Mistah, 176, 179, 180, 183, 185 Mu'tah, 215, 218, 220, 221, 222, 255, Mughirah ibn Shu'bah Al-, 266 Muḥammad ibn Maslamah, 80, 85,

Muhammad, the Prophet, 2, 4, 6, 8-10, 12-14, 16-18, 20-24, 26, 28, 30, 32-36, 38, 40-42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, 54, 56-60, 62, 64, 66-70, 72, 74, 76, 78, 80-82, 84-86, 88, 90, 92, 94, 96, 98, 100, 102, 104, 106-110, 112, 114-116, 118, 120, 121, 122, 124, 126, 128, 130-134, 136-138, 140-144, 146-148, 150-154, 156-158, 160, 161, 164, 166-170, 172-174, 176, 178, 180, 182, 184, 186, 188, 190, 191, 192, 194-202, 204, 206, 208-214, 216, 218, 220, 222, 224, 226, 228, 230, 232, 234, 236-238, 240-244, 246, 248, 250, 252-254, 256, 258, 260, 262-264, 266, 268, 270-274, 276, 278-280, 282-284, 286,

288, 290, 292-294 Muir William, 141 Mukhayriq, 137 Mundhir ibn 'Amr Al-, 128 Mundhir ibn Muḥammad Al-, 131 Murārah ibn al-Rabī', 259 Mus'ab ibn 'Umayr, 58, 81, 83-86, 90, Mūsā ibn Maymūn (Maimonid), 190 Musaylimah, the liar, 83 Mut'im ibn 'Udayy, 12

Nadr ibn al-Hārith Al-, 53, 251 Najd, 74, 83, 130 Najrān, 31, 32, 281, 282, 286, 287, 288 Nakhlah, 7, 8, 9, 11, 15, 107 Nu 'aym ibn Mas 'ūd, 150, 151 Nu'mān ibn Bashīr Al-, 79 Numayr ibn Kharashah, 265 Nusaybah bint Ka'b (Umm 'Umarah),

Palestine, 31, 68, 159 Philippines, 31

Qadisiyyah, 6, 273, 274, 292 Oaradah Al-, 74 Qarqarat al-Kudr, 73 Qatādah ibn al-Nu mān, 69, 85, 86, 87 Qurbah ibn 'Amr, 87 Qusavy, 204 Qutb Savvid, 70

Rabī'ah ibn Abī al-Barā' ibn Mālik, Rābigh, 6 Rabīḥ ibn al-Ḥārith, 248 Rāfi ibn Khadīj, 78 Rajī Al-, 128, 129, 130, 133, 138, 141, 170, 201 Rayhanah, 213 Red Sea coast, 5, 6 Rufaydah 166, 167 Sa'd ibn 'Ubādah, 69, 77, 85, 177, 231,

Ţā'if, 7, 234, 238, 245, 254, 257, 264-

Syria, 10, 39, 52, 74, 203, 204, 217-219,

si dihn Abi Waqqas, 83, 85, 87, 88 Wyam Au 3dh, 39, 40, 49, 69, 77, 85,

Sampah bint 'Abd al-Muttalib, 103

silim, the dient of Abū Ḥudhayfah,

Sallām ibn Abī Ḥuqayq, 143, 168

Samaw'al ibn 'Adiyā Al-, 211, 212

Sārah, slave-girl of 'Abd al-Muttalib,

Salman, the Persian, 145

Samurah ibn Jundub, 78

Sawad ibn Ghaziyah, 49

Shām Al-, 159, 161, 170

Shawt Al-, 77, 80

Shavma' Al-, 249

Sinān, 172

Solomon, 33

231, 251

Sumayra' bint Qays Al-, 101

224, 263, 272, 287

Sulālim, 210

Sudan, 92

Shammas ibn 'Uthman, 98

Shaybah ibn Rabī 'ah, 53

Shujā' ibn Wahb, 218

Shaykhān Al-, 77, 78, 80, 81

Shurahbīl ibn 'Amr, 219

Shurahbīl ibn Ghaylān, 265

Simāk ibn Kharashah, 92

Suffyrah bint Huyayy, 212, 289

104, 163, 165-168, 177 50 bin 'Uthman ibn Maz un Al-, 87

Sufwan al-Mu'attal, 176

Sahl ibn Hunayf, 85

Țabari [Abū Ja far ibn Jarīr] Al-, 69 Index Tabūk, 257, 260, 261, 264, 267 Ţalḥah ibn 'Ubaydullāh, 84 Thābit ibn Qays ibn al-Shammās, 175, Thaqif, 245, 249, 250

Ubayy ibn Khalaf, 88, 89 'Ubaydah ibn Ḥārith, 6, 85, 231 Uḥud, 77, 87, 91-97, 102, 105, 106, 'Ukāshah ibn Miḥsan, 60 113 Ukaydir ibn 'Abd al-Malik, 263 'Umar ibn 'Abd al-'Azīz, 274 'Umar ibn al-Khaṭṭāb, 54, 79, 84, 86, 92, 137, 173, 177, 186, 196, 200, 203, 219, 227, 231, 233, 235, 242, 243, 248 'Umarah ibn al-Sakan, 85, 86, 90 Umaymah bint 'Abd al-Muttalib, 103 'Umayr ibn al-Humām, 49 'Umayr ibn Wahb al-Jumahī, 252 Umayyah ibn Khalaf, 14, 53, 59, 60, 89 Umm al-Fadl, 217 Umm al-Qura, 206 Umm Ayman (Barakah, Abyssinian), 85 Umm Salamah, 161, 162, 228 Umm Salīm bint Milḥān, 249 Suhayl ibn 'Amr, 54, 198, 202, 203, Urbah ibn Aws, 79 'Urwah ibn Mas'ūd, 195, 264 'Uqbah ibn Nimr, 278

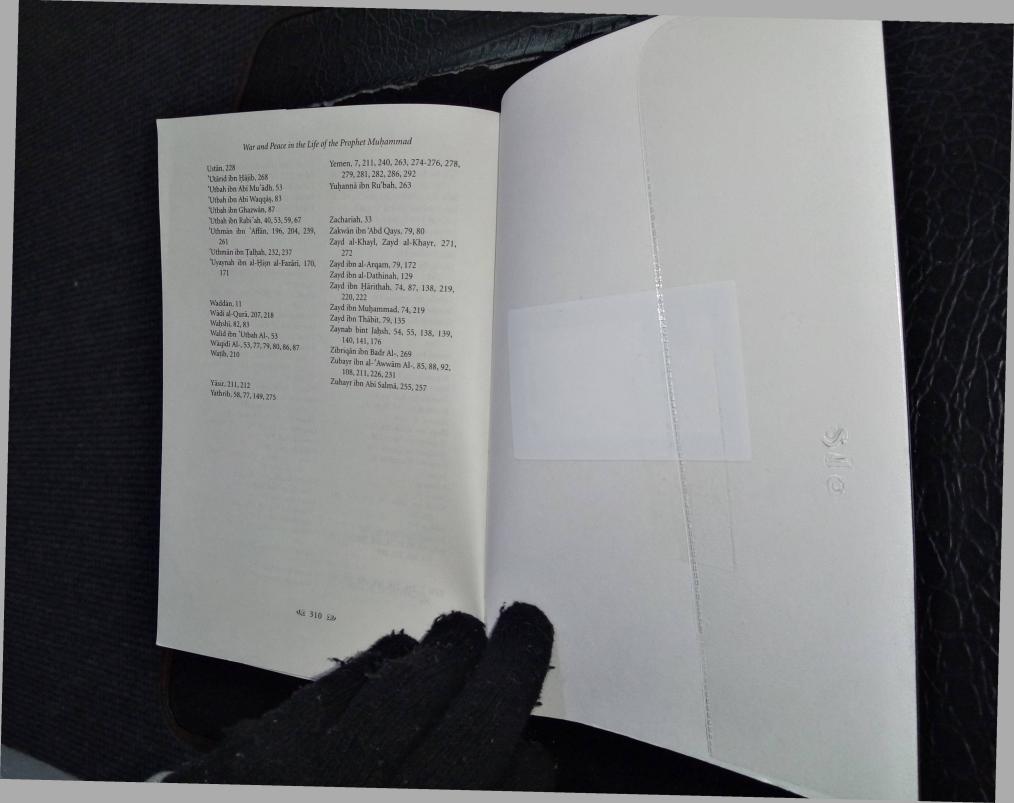

Usāmah ibn Zayd, 79, 85, 177, 248,

Usayd ibn Hudayr, 85, 167, 173, 176,

Usayd ibn Jāriyah, 252 Usayd ibn Zuhayr, 79

@ 308 D

@ 309 D

War and Peace in the Life of the Prophet Muḥammad (peace be upon him), seeks to bring into sharper focus the relevance of the Prophet's exemplary life in our times. In doing so, the misperception is allayed that Islam is inextricably linked with violence. That Islam preaches and practises the ideals of peaceful coexistence and freedom of faith is brought home with reference to the elucidation of the Qur'anic verses which allow Muslims to wage war, if necessary. The same truth is illustrated by analyzing the Prophet's conduct in war and his measures for ensuring peace. All the major battles in the early history of Islam are studied in the wider context of Islamic teachings on war and peace.

Zakaria Bashier (b. 1940) obtained his BA and M.Litt. in Philosophy from the Universitites of Khartoum, Sudan and Durham, UK respectively, and his PhD on Islamic Philosophy from the University of Pittsburgh, USA. Apart from holding faculty positions at the universities of Sudan, Saudi Arabia, UAE, he had also been the Vice Chancellor of the University of Juba, Sudan. Presently he is Visiting Professor at the Markfield Institute of Higher Education, Leicester, UK. He has to his credit 14 books in Arabic and 8 in English, besides scores of articles in Journals on a wide range of topics related to Islamic Studies. The present work concludes the series of his books on Sira; the earlier titles being Life of the Prophet in Makkah, Hijra: Story and Significance and Sunshine at Madina all published by the Islamic Foundation, Leicester, UK.

THE ISLAMIC FOUNDATION aims to achieve excellence in academic research, education, publications, training and building bridges between Muslims and others. Since 1973, the Foundation has developed its national and international standing through the character, variety and scope of its activities. It has, at present, over 300 published titles, and houses one of the largest private Islamic libraries in Western Europe. It publishes three academic journals: The Muslim World Book Review (quarterly), Encounters: Journal of Inter-Cultural Perspectives (biannually) and Review of Islamic Economics (biannually). Its academic wing the Markfield Institute of Higher Education awards MA/MPhil/PhD degrees, Post-Graduate Diploma and Certificate in Islamic Studies in partnership with the Loughborough University, UK.

